In New York Paulino Uzcudun, a Basque, will fight Joe Louis, colored. Nobody knows whence come the Basques that lived for ages in and around the Pyrenees and hunted whales in the Atlantic, off the French coast, when whales were plentiful.

Nobody knows the exact origin of Joe Louis' people either. The two will meet in America, whence neither came originally, and millions will be interested in the effort of Louis, colored, to "work on the Basque stomach until he brings down Uzcudun's guard, then swiftly changes his attack to the chin.

There is more interest in that "attack on the chin" in millions of American minds than there ever was in any problem attacked by Professor Einstein.

Murder is becoming an intricate business. It was desired to kill Samuel Mandel, 40-year-old alcohol runner. The would-be killers located Mandel's "red-haired sweetheart" in Paterson, N. J., bound her hand and foot, waited for Mandel to visit her, also tying up her brother and another man found with her.

Mandel came, ran when he saw the killers, but too late. They got him, and escaped. News only because tying up the red-haired friend for bait had not been done before.

In Minnesota, Walter Liggett, newspaper editor, made himself obnoxious by criticizing gangsters and other criminals. Somebody killed him with "slugs" from a type of sub-machine gun unknown in Minnesota. Minneapolis police say killers were imported from another state.

Governor Olson of Minnesota wants Washington to send G-men to find out about it. The governor indicates that local authorities are accused of not making "the proper effort" to get the murderers.

The noble lords of England do things in a noble way. Baron De Clifford, twenty-sixth holder of that ancient title, was accused of manslaughter; his automobile killed Douglas George Hopkins, a "commoner."

Baron De Clifford was tried for manslaughter, but not as commoners are tried. Brought into the House of Lords, he knelt on a soft cushion of red velvet while the case was presented for and against him. At the end of the trial, the Lord High Steward of England, Viscount Hailsham, raised his knee, broke a white wand on the knee, meaning that Baron De Clifford was acquitted.

The lords of England, dukes, marquesses, earls, viscounts and barons, "peers" of the accused man, came to the trial in velvet robes trimmed with ermine, wearing, instead of coronets, "heavy cocked-hats," used when the peers sit in trial on one of their fellows accused of felony.

In this first case in thirty-one years, Baron De Clifford had demanded a trial "by God and my peers," the lords gave their verdict, guilty or not guilty, each adding "on my honor."

Thirty-four years ago, the late Lord Russell was tried for bigamy, sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the lords, pardoned by King Edward after ten days.

Lord De Clifford's family motto is "WHAT WILL BE, WILL BE." It takes a long time to change things in England, where lords are concerned.

Those who have doubted that this earth is round, including one colored clergyman in the South, who writes frequently on the subject, would be convinced by photographs of the earth taken in the stratosphere, 72,000 feet up. Forty thousand square miles of the earth's surface appear on the photograph as a section of a sphere.

It is well to have that settled. Not very long ago you might have been burned alive for saying the earth was round, because the Bible speaks of angels standing at the earth's four corners. That might have meant the four points of the compass.

President Conant of Harvard says Lucius Nathan Littauer, glove manufacturer and former Congressman, has given to the university $2,000,000 to establish a "school of public administration" to promote the art and science of government.

If you happen to know Chancellor Hitler, mention the fact that Mr. Littauer is not a "pure Aryan" and that does not prevent his setting a good example to some who think they are pure Aryans, although they are mistaken.

According to Universal Service, England and France will

Felled in Fire, Heroine Goes to Classes

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Safety today of her parents and of two other occupants of the same apartment building in Rutland street, Watertown, is thanks to the courage of this Framingham normal school student, Miss Maude Newell, 19, who aroused her family and neighbors when the house was swept by fire. She collapsed, later, from smoke inhalation. Recovering, she attended school as usual, taking half-yearly examinations with her classmates. (Story on Page 19.)

NAVAL PARITY 'OUT,' JAPAN IS TOLD

By David H. Sentner
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, Dec. 13 (INS)—Ambassador Norman H. Davis, who is presenting America's case at the five-power naval conference with vigor and firmness, has let Japan know in unmistakable terms that she might as well quit talking about equality.

No matter what argument Japan brings up, America does not intend to give Japan anything like parity in treaty form or in fact, Davis informed the Japanese delegates when they paid a "courtesy call" on the Americans at their hotel.

But Japan today did go on talking at the conference, replying to the criticisms of the "common upper limit" that came from Britain, the United States, Italy, France and

4 BANDITS GET $4500 PAY IN ROCKLAND

Four well-dressed bandits, all armed and one masked, held up the Givren Shoe Company in Maple street, Rockland, today and fled with a $4300 payroll and $200 in petty cash.

Reaching the bottom of the stairway from the company office, they kicked Arnold into a side room, knocking him to the floor.

EMPLOYES WARNED

Upstairs in the company office, five girl employes and three salesmen, warned to keep away from the telephones, were still fearful of being shot, when Arnold recovered his feet and ran back to give the alarm.

The shoe company occupies the old Emerson Shoe Co. building in Maple street, to where the $4300 payroll had just been delivered in an armored car from a Boston bank.

Arnold was standing outside the offices on the second floor, talking with a salesman, when the four bandits came quickly up the stairs.

One of the four ordered Arnold and the salesman, at gunpoint, into a corner of the corridor. The other three bandits stepped into the office.

Five girl employes were at work in the office, Mrs. Julia Brennan and Miss Margaret Donahue, both of Glen street, Whitman, counting out the payroll money, and Miss Margaret Givren, sister of the plant owner; Miss Gertrude Brennan and Miss Emma Bodge, both of Bridgewater, employed on the books.

The first bandit to enter wore sun glasses and was spokesman. To the girls he said:

"Now, girls, don't get excited. Everything will be all right if you do what you're told."

WARN: 'NO PHONING'

Two of the three gunmen in the office herded the girls into a corner near the windows. The third, wearing a black handkerchief over his face, picked up a metal waste-basket and swept into it all the money on the desk.

With a warning not to go near a telephone, three gunmen backed out of the office and joined the fourth on the landing.

As one of the girls in the office made a move for a telephone one of the bandits quickly returned.

"What did I tell you?" the gunman cried. "Keep away from that phone. I'm going to stay right here and I'll plug you if you pick it up."

U.S. Army Must Have Formidable Air Force, Says W. R. Hearst

To the Editor of the Boston Evening American:

PLEASE support heartily Secretary Dern's demand for more army aircraft.

The air forces and naval forces are the best defenses for the United States and the cheapest.

A great standing army is not in harmony with our democratic ideals, and moreover not necessary provided we have reasonable defensive training in our schools and colleges.

But a great navy and a great air force are vitally necessary to the defense of our country, our people, and our liberties.

The world is in a disturbed and dangerous state. It is under the imperialistic sway of warlike tyrants and dictators.

We would be remiss in our duty not only to our own free people, but to all the oppressed peoples of the world if we allowed the lamp of liberty to be extinguished here.

We must not fail in our sacred obligation to defend not only ourselves and our homes and our families, but our free institutions, in order that from them, as root and seed, shall spring again liberty for all the peoples of the earth.

For "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" must be the ultimate goal of all mankind.

STATE PROBE ASKED OF CURLEY

Demand for a state investigation into allegedly poisoned or contaminated ERA food will be made of Governor Curley as a result of the poisoning of five persons in Canton today.

Last week four other persons in Jamaica Plain were similarly made ill through ERA canned meat distributed by ERA officials in Stoughton.

The demand for a state investigation will be made by Dr. Herbert R. Rice, town physician of Canton, he said today.

MEAT THRICE INSPECTED

George W. Dunn, director of surplus commodities for Massachusetts, declared his office was investigating and he expected a report tomorrow. He said:

"We have distributed 5,000,000 cans of meat in this state since May. Thus far only two complaints have been received.

"It is a shame wide publicity is given to two cans. It has not been proved yet that the contents of these cans were responsible for poisoning these people."

He then added all cans of meat were inspected three times each by government inspectors before being issued to the public.

Meanwhile, welfare officials were ordered to hold up further distribution of ERA relief canned goods and to call in all that had been given out and could be located.

The Canton victims of the canned meat are Benjamin Geichell; his wife, Theresa; a three-year-old daughter, Jean, and two boarders, Thomas Parsons and Frank Moore.

Three other children of the Geichell family at 229 Washington street escaped because they did not eat any of the hash made from the canned meat.

Dr. Rice reported that when he visited the home in response to a call, he found the stricken victims in bed, suffering intense pain. He diagnosed the case as ptomaine poisoning and immediately checked what they had eaten.

Geichell, who is employed by a

HALF OF ETHIOPIA TO DUCE IN PEACE PLAN

Geneva, Dec. 13—The Ethiopian government, in biting language, threw into the tempestuous League of Nations tonight a note condemning the Franco-British peace plan as a matter which might destroy the League and the collective security of Europe.

Rome, Dec. 13 (INS)—Approximately one-half of Ethiopia would be ceded to Italy outright or turned over to her for "exclusive" economic exploitation under the Hoare-Laval peace proposals, it was revealed officially today when the Italian government published the text.

Italy would be given large slices of fertile Tigre province in the north and in Ogaden and Harar provinces in the south, and would be given "exclusive economic rights" in virtually all of southern Ethiopia below the eighth parallel.

Although Italy has not replied yet, it has been indicated Premier Mussolini would accept the Laval-Hoare proposed "as a basis for negotiation," the intimation being they embody the minimum demands but that Il Duce will insist upon even more before agreeing to a peace.

PROVISIONS OF TEXT

The text opens with a preamble referring to the fact Great Britain and France were charged with the task of attempting to reach an

'No More Children' Warning Denied

Suffolk county courthouse judges and attaches were thrown into excitement today through a report that a superior court judge, in finding a defendant not guilty of non-support, had advised the defendant and his wife not to have any more children.

The reported statement was immediately denied by Judge Ernest H. Hobson, district court judge from Palmer but assigned temporarily to Suffolk superior court.

In a sensationally headlined story in another Boston newspaper, Judge Hobson was declared to have given his advice to Charles Hurley, 30, of South Boston, and his second wife, Mrs. Eva Hurley, mother of two children.

POPE PIUS FAVORS FRANCO-BRITISH PEACE PLAN

LONDON AND GENEVA BACK HAILE SELASSIE'S PROTEST

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Rome, Dec. 13—Pope Pius was given much credit for the France-British peace proposals today by unofficial persons in close touch with the negotiations to end the warfare between Italy and Ethiopia.

These sources said the strength of Premier Mussolini's army in East Africa and his enthusiasm of his people at home to resist League of Nations sanctions were chief factors in the suddenly re-invigorated campaign for peace.

They asserted, however, that the power, skill and prestige of the Vatican and its world-wide diplomatic network also influenced considerably the decisions that may end the conflict.

NEW CARDINALS ACTIVE

Monsignor Maglione, papal nuncio at Paris, was known to have been extremely active during the efforts there to find a basis for diplomatic settlement of the controversy.

Three papal nuncios at key points in the European situation arising from the East African warfare were included in the list of 20 new cardinals to be elevated next week by the Pope.

In addition to Monsignor Magliona, they are Monsignor Marmaggi of Warsaw and Monsignor Sebilia of Vienna.

Poland took an active part in the League of Nations peace discussions at Geneva yesterday, urging that any new penalties likely to embarrass the negotiations be avoided.

Austria has opposed imposition of sanctions from the outset.

INTEREST IN ETHIOPIA

Pope Pius, aside from the religious aspect calling him to work for peace, has made unusual efforts to end the strife. Informed sources said, because Italy is naturally close to his heart and he has taken a special interest in the development of Ethiopia.

His illness has often spoken openly of that interest, and has encouraged the small Ethiopian colony which is within Vatican City itself.

agreement which would be acceptable as a basis for negotiation.

The plan is divided into two part, the first being concerned with territorial exchanges and the second referring to a zone of economic concessions to be granted to Italy.

The territorial exchanges proposed are:

East Tigre Province, in northern Ethiopia, to be ceded to Italy. This area is bounded on the south by the Gheva river and on the east by a line drawn north and south between Aksum and Aduwa, leaving Aksum in Ethiopia and giving Aduwa to Italy.

SEAPORT FOR ETHIOPIA

The frontier between Eritrea and the Danakil desert to be rectified, in order to leave the Ethiopians Assaa province and territory necessary to give Ethiopia an outlet to the sea, which she does not now have.

The frontier between Ogaden province of Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland to be rectified, the new line cutting the Webbe Shibeli river at Iddidi, leaving Gorahai to the east and Warandab to the west, and joining the frontier of British Somaliland on the north at the eighth meridian.

Use of the wells in the territory ceded to Italy must be safe-guarded so their original users may have access to them.

Ethiopia would receive an outlet to the sea, preferably by cession of Assab, southern Eritrean ports, and a strip of territory giving sea access to Ethiopia along the border of French Somaliland.

"ZONES OF INFLUENCE"

The second division of the proposed peace plan, relating to zones of economic influence and exploitation and dealing with re-population, provides:

The British and French governments would use their influence at Addis Ababa and Geneva to cause creation in southern Ethiopia of a zone of economic exploitation and re-population reserved to Italy.

The limits of this area would be:

On the east, the rectified frontier between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland; on the north, the eighth parallel; on the west, the 35th meridian, and on the south, the frontier between Ethiopia and Kenya Colony.

In this zone, forming an integral part of Ethiopia, Italy would enjoy exclusive economic rights. The zone would be administered by a privileged economic company or a similar institution which would have absolute right of property over the unoccupied territory and the right of exploitation of mines and forests.

WOULD END SLAVERY

The French and British governments would undertake to guarantee suppression of slavery and arms traffic in zones ceded to Ethiopia.

The privileged company operating in the southern zone would be obliged to contribute to the economic equipment of the country by yielding part of its profit in favor of the native population.

Control of the Ethiopian administration in the zone would be connected, under sovereignty of the emperor, to services appointed by the League of Nations.

The services would be administered by a principal counsellor, who might be an Italian acting as a deputy for a League delegate.

The chief delegate, it is provided, must not be a citizen of any border state. Assistance of the services would be one of his principal tasks, ensuring full freedom for Italians in pursuance of their enterprises in the reserved zones.

The French and British governments would do their best to promote "proper" details, which would be worked out by the League.

"forget" about the oil embargo aimed at Italy, because "an oil embargo would be too risky," meaning that it might start a REAL war in Europe.

Some Boy Scout statesmen in Washington seem eager for that kind of embargo, although it is plainly none of their business.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, back from Russia, says "Germany and Russia are preparing for a war against each other." Germany thinks Bolshevism wants to wipe out Nazism. Russia thinks Germany wants Russian territory. Both are probably right.

Both nations, according to Senator Lewis, expect war with Japan. The "war to end all wars" seems to have miscarried.

A Belgian plane crashed in England, killing eleven, because its wings were coated with ice. As it flew, with wings accumulating ice, the exhaust of that plane wasted enough heat to melt many times as much ice as could accumulate on the wings. It should not be difficult to melt the ice with exhaust-heat.

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner of the city of Boston, is seriously ill from a complication of diseases in his home, 22 Lake street, Brighton, Mayor Mansfield said today.

Dr. Mahoney has been employed by the city at various times during the past 30 years.

Dr. Bailey is director of communicable diseases division. He was graduated from Harvard medical school in 1903 and Rotunda hospital, Dublin, Ireland, in 1904. Since then he has been employed by the city of Boston.

the British dominions, all of whom rejected the Japanese thesis.

ASK DIVIDED PACIFIC

The superiority of American naval strength over Japan's, upon which the United States insists, threatens the security of Japan. Admiral Osami Nogano told the five-power naval conference.

In this connection, it was reported late in the day, that Japan might propose in later discussions that a line be drawn up and down the Pacific Ocean which would not be crossed by either American or Japanese warships.

In American circles the suggestion was ridiculed, it being pointed out such a plan would prevent the United States from sending warships for protection of its nationals in the Far East.

Japan's explanations, however, were described as "purely academic," and the discussions remained unfinished when the conference adjourned until Monday.

RESUME DEBATE

The heads of the various delegations then will resume debate on the Japanese proposals, now opposed by delegates from every capital but Tokio.

Obviously refuting reports the plan was rejected yesterday, today's communique stated:

"After the delegate from New Zealand had made observations the Japanese delegation, in response to requests from various delegations for further elucidation, furnished additional explanations regarding the nature and the scope of their proposals.

"Further observations were made by the different delegations on the explanations given by the Japanese delegation."

Japan Grants Russia Fleet Equal to Own

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—Japan granted Soviet Russia the right to a fleet equal to its own in arguing for tonnage equality for all nations before the international naval conference, authoritative quarters disclosed today.

This widening of the scope of Japan's position was regarded as one of the most significant developments of the five-day old conference.

The delegation from Tokio developed the theory that a single standard should apply to all nations indiscriminately, regardless of their defense requirements or foreign commitments, other delegations reported.

"Speaking not as a judge but as a friend, I advise you not to have any more children until you are better situated."

Mrs. Hurley was said to have hurried from the courtroom with her husband after the judge's lecture.

DENIED BY JUDGE

"I did not make a statement that they should not have any more babies," declared Judge Hobson today. "I stand on what I did say.

"I directed no remarks to the woman. Whatever I said was in the nature of friendly remarks, made in delivering my findings to the man. Whatever that paper says, I say I didn't say that they should not have any more children.

"You are at liberty to question those who were in the courtroom, including the court officers, to find out what I did say and take their word as to what was said.

BAY STATE IN LEAD AS U. S. VOTERS SWAMP 'RAW DEAL'

Another smashing blow at the Raw Deal was struck today as the latest figures of the Literary Digest nation-wide poll concerning the Roosevelt policies were revealed.

While the entire country continues to register disapproval of the present regime by 57.24 per cent, New England led the way with the loudest howl of protest.

Massachusetts, which last week was nearly three to one against the present administration, increased the margin in a week to nearly four to one, and the first returns from Connecticut showed that state second only to Massachusetts as the strongest objector.

BAY STATE HIGH

First returns from the latter state showed it to be 72.21 per cent opposed, while Massachusetts affirmed its stand with the high percentage of 78.17.

Significance of the poll was probably best illustrated in the fact that all of the states from which ballots have been reported so far, with the exception of Connecticut, voted for Roosevelt in 1932.

Whereas previous figures showed the Farm Belt state as slightly in favor of Roosevelt, the new tables reveal that these states are voting three to two against him. It had been generally regarded that because of his AAA and other farm acts, the Farm Belt would stand behind him.

SOLID SOUTH

The only consolation as far as Roosevelt supporters was concerned was seen in the votes of seven states, all in the South, averaging majorities of three to two for the Raw Deal, voting in the affirmative to the question "Do You approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?"

In all, 642,711 votes have been tallied thus far in the poll from 36 states. Of this number 276,830 or 42.76 per cent are in favor of the Raw Deal while 367,881 or 57.24 per cent are against.

The opposition continues to gain. The first report of the poll showed 53.28 against and last week it was 55.60.

| State | Vote to date | For Roosevelt's politics | Against Roosevelt's politics |
|---|---|---|---|
| Alabama | 9,022 | 6,846 | 2,176 |
| California | 50,887 | 31,244 | 19,643 |
| Colorado | 9,239 | 3,103 | 6,136 |
| Connecticut | 13,178 | 3,661 | 9,514 |
| Florida | 9,497 | 4,678 | 4,819 |
| Georgia | 14,796 | 9,962 | 4,834 |
| Illinois | 87,276 | 39,668 | 47,608 |
| Indiana | 34,991 | 14,231 | 20,760 |
| Iowa | 37,721 | 15,781 | 21,940 |

MARIE Favorite QUIN

SANTA CLAUS FINDS OUT

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service

New York, Dec. 13—The littlest quintuplet, Marie, is the favorite of American children, whose slogan this year is: "A quintuplet in every home by Christmas."

A canvas of hard-working Santa Clauses in department store toylands about town reveals that the first request of every little girl in Greater New York is:

"Please bring me a set of quintuplets."

The children know their quintuplets, too. They clip out the pictures in the newspapers and take them along to toyland, to compare critically the facial characteristics of Marie, Annette, Cecilie, Emilie and Yvonne with their toyland versions.

And Santa Claus will have to replace the stork this year in delivering quintuplets throughout America.

Life-Size Models

The quintuplets also are sold separately, in almost life-size models, and it is here that the popularity score shows up.

Madame Alexander, who sketched the living quintuplets first hand at their snug hospital in the Canadian north woods and then made the sculptured heads for the current dolls, says:

"All over the country Marie is the favorite quintuplet doll. I guess it's because the children have the common human quality of loving best the smallest or weakest.

"Yvonne comes next in sales, and this apparently is because she appeals to those who like the robust type.

"Annette is third in sales, and then come Cecilie and Emilie."

At Toddling Age

The quintuplets dolls this Christmas are shown at exactly the same stage of development as their living namesakes. They are at the toddling age, and are equipped with baby walkers, kiddie cars and play pens, with a doll nurse in attendance and a doll house built to represent the Dafoe hospital in Callander.

Each quintuplet has her name embroidered on her bib, and each doll has the same slight facial difference as the original quintuplets.

Such has been the success of the quintuplets in the imaginations of American children that the five Dionnes now threaten the supremacy of Mickey Mouse as the favorite American toy.

More than 2,000,000 quintuplet dolls already have been sold to fill the Christmas stockings of small mothers throughout the land.

And already they're planning the quintuplet dolls for Christmas, 1936, which will be a year older, and maybe wearing hair ribbons.

'Dear Santa: Yoo-Hoo!--Quin Emilie'

Jovial Yule Patron On Spot

Dimpled Hand Fashions First Hopeful Words to Old Kris

'Let's Be Friends Forever 'N Ever'

With her good friend, Dr. Dafoe, guiding her tiny dimpled hand, "Quin" Emilie Dionne is toiling industriously at her very first letter to Santa Claus. The jovial patron saint of Yuletide is going to have to rack his wits to discover something the five famous sisters haven't already been given, but, once he receives Emilie's note, he'll have at least a start toward the solution of his problem. Maybe she wants Santa to distribute among other good little girls of America lots and lots of Emelie-Dionne dolls so that Marie-Dionne dolls won't continue to be the favorites.

Good Appetite Can't Be Cheated

Conway, S. C., Dec. 13—Storekeeper S. G. Bingleterry bet a customer, Freeman Brown, that he couldn't eat a pound of cheese and a pound of crackers in five minutes.

Then he feared he had made a bad bet. He cut a two-pound slice of cheese and added a half pound of crackers.

600 STUDENTS STRIKE

Protest Barring of Hoop Star

New Wilmington, Pa., Dec. 13 (AP)—More than 600 students of Westminster College—proud of its great basketball teams—went on strike today because a star player is on the ineligibility list.

Last night Westminster went down to an "upset" defeat at the hands of Carnegie Tech, 37 to 30.

Overnight the strike leaders hatched their plans.

Westminster annually turns out one of the leading basketball outfits in Pennsylvania. Over a period of nine years its teams have won four out of every five games played.

'EXCUSE The Bum SENDING'

"FINGERS OFF" HERO RADIOS

He sat at his transmitter for three hours after his right hand was crushed in refrigerating machinery yesterday aboard the ship, 250 miles at sea, and apologized.

Notified of the accident, a Coast Guard plane picked him up, and Lieutenant L. C. Carson, naval medical officer, amputated four fingers, without an anesthetic, aboard the plane.

At the airport a stretcher was in readiness.

"What's this for?" Smith asked. "I'm all right."

He walked to the ambulance, waiting to take him to a hospital, then quickly turned back to the plane.

"I've got to thank you," he told the fliers.

Wedded 70 Years

Danbury, Ct., Dec. 13 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rockwell of this city observed their 70th wedding anniversary today. Rockwell, a Civil War veteran, is 91. His wife is 85.

Ought to Know

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP) — The picture was titled "Crime and Punishment" and it proved that crime doesn't pay. The audience was unusually attentive and when the lights went on there were tears in many eyes. Reason:

The showing was in Cook County jail.

Leonora Hughes' Husband Drowns

DON BASUALDO LEONORA HUGHES

Buenos Aires, Dec. 13 (AP) — The cattle baron husband of Leonora Hughes, famous North American former danseuse, drowned last night in a speedboat accident.

Her husband, Carlos Ortiz Basualdo, 37 years old, was one of the wealthiest and most socially prominent Argentinos.

With a mechanic, he was driving his speedboat through the icy Lake Nahuel Huati, in the Southern Argentine Andes. The boat capsized. Darkness blocked rescue attempts by villagers from the neighboring town of Bariloche.

Dona Leonora, who was married to Don Carlos February 24, 1925, in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York, is left with their two children.

The romance of the dancer and the wealthy Argentine embraced two continents. Leonora Hughes was the feminine half of the international dancing team, the other half of which was the famous Maurice.

Maurice wept in St. Patrick's Cathedral when he saw his partner being married and leaving him. The bride saw him in one of the pews as she left the altar and bent over to kiss him farewell.

Maurice himself died several years ago in Lausanne of tuberculosis.

CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND NEEDS YOUR HELP NOW

Christmas, drawing rapidly nearer, is bringing heart-warming joy each day into hundreds of thousands of hearts in Greater Boston and New England.

But for too many hundreds of unfortunates who have appealed to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, the year's greatest holiday will have no meaning.

For them it is to be just one more day in an unending round of misery and need. A day troubled by sickness, lack of food and warm clothing—with nothing to lighten their hearts or ease the burden of their misery.

Only the generosity of the thousands of luckier persons in Boston and New England can make Christmas take on the semblance of a holiday for them.

Only the immediate generosity of these thousands can help the Christmas Basket Fund Editor carry on his work in helping as many of these unfortunates as possible.

Do you realize that Christmas is less than two weeks away?

As you make plans for your own Christmas joys, does not your heart feel a momentary pang for the miserable needy?

STOP and THINK! More than 1900 appeals are being received daily for aid on Christmas Day; for just a meal for a sick and hungry husband or wife; a scrap of warm clothing for an undernourished child; help of any kind—just something to show they are not entirely forgotten, something to make the road a little easier.

Can you ignore this appeal of hundreds on whom Fortune has ceased to smile—whose need is greater than ever this year?

Can you let the days slip away and enjoy your own Christmas with no thought for thousands whose holiday will be meaningless without your help?

YOU CAN HELP. DO IT NOW.

You will be one of thousands who are sharing their Christmas joys with less fortunate fellows. And for you and them it will be a happier holiday by your offering.

16 G-Girls

Others are helping. Last night scores of entertainers gave their services in the Christmas Basket Fund show in the Casino room of the Hotel Brunswick. Next Sunday night other entertainers will give their services at the Brown Derby and others will help at many other charity parties.

Out of the proceeds of these shows generous percentages are being turned over to the Christmas Basket Fund. In the event that you are unable to attend, your donation may be sent to the Fund Editor at 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

The Casino Room show at the Brunswick was a decided success last night, and the next Basket Fund entertainment, at the Brown Derby on Sunday, will be even larger.

Next Sunday night, in addition to the regular floor show at the Brown Derby, there will appear the "Sixteen G-Girls," under direction of Miss Gertrude Dolan of Roxbury; Eddie Kenselman and his 12 harmonia newsboys; Sonny Parker, who recently auditioned with Ben Bernie; Barbara May, blues singer.

The dance team of Renato and Rita; Virginia Stuart, acrobat; the "Society Steppers," Dolan, Mack and Dobson; Margaret O'Toole, pretty Roxbury dancer; the "Three Winter Sports," Dorothy Bell, Louise Totten and Jerry Marenghi; Babe Dempsey of the Duggan School of Dancing, Worcester, and many others.

Danny Duggan of the Duggan school will be master of ceremonies.

Anthony Brando's Brown Derby is a unique night club, located in Arlington street, just off Stuart street. As in the case of last night's party at the Brunswick, under arrangement by Managing Director L. Marshal Thompson, the dinner Sunday night will be priced at $2.50 at the Brown Derby.

Dinner will be from 8 until 10 p. m., the entertainment program will last from 10 o'clock until midnight and there will be dancing from midnight until 3 a. m. Monday, with Jimmy McHale's orchestra furnishing the music all through.

"A Skater's Dream"—star feature of the Gala Skaters' Frolic of the Olympic Skating Club at Boston Arena—is another Christmas Basket Fund benefit. This will take place next Saturday night from 8 o'clock until midnight.

Admission tickets, priced at only 40 cents, are on sale at Basket Fund headquarters, 294 Devonshire street. The telephone number is Liberty 4000.

Also for the benefit of the Christmas Basket Fund, proceeds above expenses at the fashionable Silver Slipper, 95 Munroe street, Lynn, next Monday will be donated by Fred DeClerico and the management.

In addition to the regular floor show, the Silver Slipper Girls, Freddy Abbott, singer, and others, a number of state and city officials will be present. There will be a minimum charge of only $1 a person.

Today James Keating of the retail sales division of the Lincoln car division, Ford Motor Company, at 1001 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, communicated with the Christmas Basket Fund Editor and donated the use of a Lincoln car for the basket distribution.

Each day there are approximately 1500 appeals for baskets received from needy persons, for scraps of warm clothing—for any kind of help that may ease the road.

THEATER TAKES TOYS, FOOD

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 at Loew's State theater the second annual Toy and Canned Food performances will be given in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

The doors will be open at 9:15 and you are urged to come as early as possible. All food and toys collected at this special show will be donated to the poor, the food being added to the Christmas baskets and the toys to be distributed to orphans and crippled children.

You will have an opportunity to witness one of the finest shows of the season, made up of the best and funniest of Our Gang comedies, silly symphonies, Mickey Mouse cartoons and novelties. It will start promptly at 9:30 and will last nearly two hours. No cash is required for admission. All you need to admit you is a toy or some canned food. Perhaps you can spare both. Remember the more generous you are the more liberal distribution can be made among the needy.

Here is a real opportunity for you to help bring a little cheer into the homes of many unfortunate families for Christmas. Everybody is invited to attend this unusual entertainment. You'll enjoy it as much as the youngsters.

Don't forget that all you need is a toy or canned food for each single admission. Bring as many members of the family as can come. Invite your neighbor. You'll be delighted with the show and it's all for a worthy cause.

BASKET APPLICATIONS MUST BE APPROVED

In order that Christmas Baskets may go only to deserving and needy families, each application must be approved by a priest, a minister, a rabbi, or charitable organization. If you wish to apply for a basket, therefore, get the signature of one of these persons.

Address all names and lists as well as contributions to the Christmas Basket Fund, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

CONDON READY TO BLAST BRUNO 'PROOF,' HE SAYS

Dr. John F. Condon, famous "Jafsie" in the Lindbergh kidnaping, today hurled a challenge to Bruno Richard Hauptmann, and offered to meet him face to face and disprove his claims of innocence.

Here in Boston to attend the banquet of the Chinese Service Bureau, in Tyler street, Condon, declining to discuss the case in his address, later talked freely with a Boston Evening American reporter.

"I am willing to meet Hauptmann face to face over his claims of innocence, and am ready personally to investigate any detail that he challenges or any detail that he feels of importance in the case."

Reiterating his belief in Hauptmann's guilt, Condon further declared that he does not feel that Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, will intercede for the convicted slayer, and predicted that he will die in the chair for the crime.

"I think the law has the final decision," he declared. "After all, the case was Hauptmann versus the state and not Hauptmann versus Hoffman."

Jersey Moves to Have Bruno Resentenced

New York, Dec. 13 (INS)—While the state of New Jersey moved rapidly today to have Bruno Richard Hauptmann sentenced to the electric chair for the second, and probably last, time these developments stood out in the re-opened "crime of the century."

1—The records in the United States Supreme Court's refusal to review the case of the convicted killer of the Lindbergh baby have reached the office of Attorney General Wilentz and a new date for Hauptmann's execution will be set by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, the trial judge, not later than Monday.

2—Governor Harold Hoffman and New Jersey legislative heads were to hold a conference in Trenton today at which the executive was expected to invite the legislature to conduct a probe to determin whether his activities in the Lindbergh case were inspired by political motives, as has been charged.

3—Ellis H. Parker, Burlington county detective, who has asserted his belief in Hauptmann's innocence, emphatically denied published reports he had paid six midnight visits to Hauptmann's cell in the death house. "The fellow that got that story must have been a sleight-of-hand artist," Parker said.

4—C. Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's chief of defense, announced he had found a new witness, who is reported to have said Isidor Fisch, dead German furrier, had $50,000 in "hot money," shortly after the kidnaping in March, 1932.

5—Governor Hoffman denied reports threatening letters had been sent to him or that he has a bodyguard. He admitted, however, that a number of abusive letters have been sent to him since he announced he had visited Hauptmann in his cell.

6—Dr. John F. Condon, who has been making a secret hunt for new evidence against Hauptmann in case a new trial is granted him, visited Abraham Samuelson, Bronx cabinet maker, who has asserted he made the kidnap ladder for Hauptmann.

7—Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, denied knowledge of the reported arrest as a material witness in the Lindbergh case in Dallas, Tex., of Joseph Schaz, 31-year-old bookkeeper.

9—The Evening Journal, in a copyrighted story, based on hitherto unpublished records of testimony taken after Hauptmann's arrest, declares that the carpenter came close to confessing the crime for which he was subsequently convicted a few months after Baby Lindbergh's body was discovered in its woodland grave.

Hauptmann, according to the story, told his good friend, Hans Kloppenburg, that he had "something very heavy" on his mind and that it would be "too bad" if "they" caught him.

Peralta Ramos and John Caldwell Myers, an attorney, co-guardians of Peter Salm, Mrs. Ramos' 11-year-old son who is heir to an estimated $6,000,000 estate under the will of his grandfather, H. H. Rogers.

The former Millicent Rogers, Standard Oil heiress, was divorced yesterday in Reno, from Arturo De Peralta-Ramos after eight years of married life.

The appointments of the co-guardians was the result of an application by Count Ludwig Salm, of Vienna, divorced from the mother of the boy in Paris in 1924.

Myers, member of a New York law firm, formerly was in charge of the appeals division of the district attorney's office in the Borough of Manhattan.

ROOSEVELT SET TO CONTINUE NEUTRALITY

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Continuation, in some form or other, of the temporary neutrality law will be proposed to the next Congress by President Roosevelt.

He told his press conference today that the present neutrality law, enacted last August, expires next February. Obviously he is trying to get something to take its place.

Mr. Roosevelt said, however, it would be a couple of weeks before his proposal on neutrality is put into final form.

Asked about yesterday's two-hour talk with the high command of the navy, the President said this related to a discussion of increasing the naval reserves, a step he favors.

He mentioned a figure of 150,000 for reserves of all classes, but added that this would take a good many years to work out. Mr. Roosevelt said there are now from 22,000 to 25,000 navy reserves, a number he considers wholly inadequate.

The President emphasized that the London naval limitations conference now in session was not discussed in the navy talk.

THE SENATOR SAYS:

See That Crowd? It All Wants To Be Mayor!

Phalanx of Candidates On March; Joe McGrath Totes Jim's Banner

THE SENATOR:

He sees all and knows all that's going on in Massachusetts politics and most of it he finds amusing or amazing, often both. Best of all, he tells about it.

Meet him below and listen in with him regularly in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"I have found the perfect soft drink, Timmy," says The Senator. "I will have a brandy egg-nog. And see about the boys."

Well, this is the only time there is any delay in accepting.

THE SENATOR

The Senator's invitation, but there is a loud silence until Timmy has cracked the egg for The Senator's No. 1 Breakfast. Then there is a chorus of sniffs like as if the ladies' benevolent has found Sally Rand run in at a church supper, but The Senator's egg does not speak up much, so we all say we will have the same.

Right in front of The Senator there is a bowl and in the bottom of the bowl, very lonely and a trifle dusty, there is a smoked herring. The herring is lying on his side in the epilogue to the last-gasp scene and he is staring up at the ceiling with a fishy eye. It is easy to see he has become used to believing only half of what he hears.

"How long have you been keeping guppies?" asks The Senator.

"That is called the blind robin, Senator," says Timmy, "as you should know."

"I can see he is blind in one eye," says The Senator, "but I do not hear him singing. Even a blind robin will sing."

Just as this moment, down at the end of the bar, one of the steadier customers begins to sing.

"His name is O'Brien," says Timmy.

While he is having his soft drink, The Senator does not take his eye off the blind robin, and the blind robin does not take his eye off The Senator, and it looks like they are trying to stare each other down, but finally The Senator says:

"I was trying to think what the blind robin reminded me of and now I know. It is the next mayoralty contest. There are now more candidates to succeed Freddie than there are egg-nogs in a hen. I will tell a few of them off for you. There is Councillor Johnny Dowd and there is School Committeeman Maurice Tobin, and there is Ex-Mayor Nichols, Councillor Joe McGrath, District Attorney Bill Foley, Fire Commissioner Eddie McLaughlin, Councillor Henry L. Shattuck and Bob Wilson, Jr. What is your choice?"

"I will choose a small beer," says Mr. O'Brien.

After this is attended to, The Senator goes on:

"Either Shattuck or Wilson may have the backing of the anti-Charlie Innes Republicans, who want to sandbag Mal Nichols. This group that backed Hankus Parkman last time would like to have Shattuck in there, and I hear that the Harvard treasurer says they will have a candidate if he has to run himself.

"I do not think that Bill Foley will run unless the field is small, and I cannot see Eddie McLaughlin in there against Joe McGrath, because Eddie and Joe are buddies, although Eddie is a dark horse that bears some watching.

"Already there is a three-cornered battle going on between McGrath and Tobin and Dowd. McGrath retires from the council this month and will devote most of his time to electing Governor Jim to the Senate.

"McGrath has done some great Democratic organization work and unless I miss my guess he will have Governor Jim's support. This support, you may be sure, is very much to be desired.

"Johnny Dowd needs some financial backing, and if he gets it there will be plenty of fun because Johnny pulled 60,000 votes when he ran for sheriff and figured he would have been elected but for the 17,000 anti-Keliher votes that went to Doc Lyons."

The Senator gets a nutmeg-ed eggshell at the bottom of his soft drink and does not like it.

"I still do not see," says Timmy, "what the mayoralty has to do with the blind robin."

"The connection is there but sort of intangible," says The Senator. "Timmy!"

"Yes, sir," says Timmy.

"Did you see the blind robin move?"

"The blind robin is dead and cannot move," says Timmy.

Then we see the blind robin. Mr. O'Brien is floating the blind robin in his beer. The blind robin seems to be coming to life, gasping a little.

"That is what I mean," says The Senator.

(The Senator is going to an organization meeting tonight. He'll tell you what he found out in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

MAYOR'S RELIEF PLEA REJECTED BY ROOSEVELT

As 1200 Boston ERA workers were without work today following the official closing of the Boston ERA office, Mayor Mansfield announced President Roosevelt had rejected his personal appeal to provide additional ERA funds here.

The reply from Washington, signed by R. C. Branion, Field Representative WPA, said ERA workers would be re-assigned to WPA jobs as rapidly as possible and that there need be no hardship on workers.

Local WPA officials could give no indication as to when any of the ERA workers would be taken on.

FRESH STORMS

More than 1200 Lynn PWA workers, unpaid for two weeks, stormed Lynn City Hall today demanding food orders.

Food slips, which Mayor J. Fred Manning estimated would cost the city $7500, were distributed among the workers.

This latest tangle is the State WPA administration came on the heels of further criticism by Governor Curley on the breakdown of the WPA sidewalk projects.

MORE CURLEY REPORTS

Further official reports describing the breakdown were made public today by the Governor as additional evidence of his decision to handle the work himself.

According to the report of District Engineer G. A. Curtis of the State Department of Public Works, WPA projects in Chester and Lenox were forced to stop Tuesday for lack of trucks and materials. He described similar situations in 11 other western towns.

In a memorandum to the report, Chief Engineer Joseph A. McCarthy said:

"The general progress of the WPA sidewalk projects has been very slow in all districts. I believe that drastic action should be taken immediately."

ROTCH DISCUSSED

Asked whether he believed State WPA Administrator Arthur G. Rotch "was on his way out," the Governor replied:

"I wouldn't want to venture an opinion. However, I know that in my last talk with National Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, he said he disliked to remove anyone he had appointed."

Meanwhile, in Providence, R. I., and in surrounding towns approximately 1100 WPA workers were on strike, with the number increasing rapidly.

Strike started with the 250 men employed on the Neutaconkanut Park project in Providence and spread rapidly.

PROTEST ORDER

Strikers protest new order forcing them to make up time lost through bad weather and alleged irregularity of pay checks.

In Quincy, 500 WPA employes, unpaid for five weeks, were given assurance by Mayor Thomas S. Burgin that they would receive their pay checks today. Announcement followed a conference between Mayor Burgin and Boston WPA officials.

In Boston, more men were being put to work on sidewalk projects by Governor Curley and Commissioner of Public Works William F. Callahan.

Only yesterday, Joseph A. McCarthy, chief engineer in the department of public works had submitted a report to the Governor showing Administrator Rotch had provided only $1,500,000 and work for 1825 men in place of the promised quota of $4,000,000 and jobs for 14,000 men.

U. S. RECORDS BURN

$100,000 Fire in Capital P.O. Home

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The $8,000,000 postoffice building in Pennsylvania avenue, four blocks from the White House, today was scarred by an interior fire which blazed dangerously through early morning hours.

All the capital's fire apparatus was summoned to battle flames in the new structure, from which volumes of smoke billowed. More than a dozen firemen were overcome in efforts to reach the blaze, which never was visible to hundreds of spectators gathered without.

Newsmen brought up the fire at President Roosevelt press conference. He agreed the city fire department should have jurisdiction over all government buildings for purposes of inspection.

Fire Marshal Calvin G. Lauber attributed the blaze to heat from an unprotected 100-watt light located amid paper files.

Officials went their rounds, seeking to learn what valuable records had been lost. The blaze started in a file room on the sixth floor, which, officials said, housed documents of the general accounting office and reclamation service.

One semi-official estimate—and that admittedly rough—put the replacement damage at "more than $100,000."

Postmaster-General Farley was working as usual this morning, three floors below the scene of the fire. Arriving soon after 9 o'clock, he went immediately to the expensive, mahogany-covered reception room, and then retired to his own office.

Her Five Horses Serve as Her Bail

Hackensack, N. J., Dec. 13 (INS)—Five horses provided bail today for Miss Eva Rugg of New York city, their owner, who had been arrested for failing to feed them properly.

The horses were being boarded at the Bar-A-Dude ranch, in Riverside, William E. Guthrie, criminal court clerk, who accepted them in lieu of $500 bail, hasn't yet decided what he's going to do with his newly-acquired stable.

$3567 MISSING IN EVERETT

Accounts of Harold J. Gibson, former cashier in the Everett city collector's office, are $3567 short, it was charged today by Theodore N. Waddell, chief of the state division of accounts.

According to Waddell, the $3567 shortage was discovered by Herman B. Dine, assistant chief of the state division, and came about through omissions in the recording of tax payments.

Dine reported, according to Waddell, that from the examination made, it appeared that taxes had been paid into the cashier's office but not recorded until considerable time later.

Fosdick to Head Rockefeller Board

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Raymond B. Fosdick, attorney who has been identified for many years with Rockefeller interests, will become president of the Rockefeller Foundation and of the General Education Board July 1, 1936.

FACTS

Washington, Dec. 13—The Roosevelt administration announced it would buy silver in order to stabilize currency throughout the world and to establish a ratio of one-fourth silver to three-fourths gold to back United States Currency.

Since August, $700,000,000 in new gold has come into the United States.

The administration now finds it cannot afford to buy enough new silver to keep up its planned ratio with gold.

Welfare Crisis Near in Lowell

Lowell, Dec. 13—Unless money is provided for the department of public welfare by next Tuesday, the department will be forced to suspend for the remainder of the year, it was learned today.

Edmund M. Cluin, chairman of the finance commission, said the whole thing is a "mess" and, calling Mayor Bruin "the great assumptionist," placed the responsibility of any embarrassment directly on his shoulders.

3 UNIONS ROW IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, Dec. 13—According to reports today officials of the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Union will institute steps to carry on independent negotiations with individual manufacturers.

This step will be made because of reported gains by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union in their drive for supremacy of Haverhill's shoe industry after January 1.

Just what effect the entrance of the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen into the local industrial situation will have on this bitterly contested battle for shoe supremacy is what shoe and city leaders are wondering today.

'Heavy' Rice

Found, Wis., Dec. 13 (AP)—Well wishers could skip the rice when friends were married in St. Wenceslaus Church, because when the wedding bells rang the vibration shook down plaster bits from the aging ceiling and walls.

The sexton was ordered to ring more softly.

HITLER HONORS MUSICIANS HERE

Boston's Handel and Haydn Oratorical Society was informed today by Kurt Von Tippelskirch, German consul, that Reichsfuehrer Hitler had awarded the organization a medal for the excellence of its many performances of the compositions of Handel.

The medal will be formally presented next year when Germany and the tiny Prussian town of Hille will observe the 250th anniversary of the birth of George Frederick Handel, whose "Messiah" is familiar to millions.

The Handel and Haydn Society, in existence 131 years, is conducted by Dr. Thompson Stone, who went to Germany to study Handel's original scores.

Girl Is Drowned In Shower Bath

Gas Ruling Due By February 1

Hearings on the proposed schedules of rates of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, to become effective in January, had closed today before the State public utility commission.

Arguments to conclude the hearing will be heard Wednesday. The commission has until February 1 to rule on the application to increase rates, or order a reduction as petitioned by consumers.

Dr. John Bauer, New York utilities expert, told the commission that the new rates would fall on 220,800 consumers, reducing rates for 19,200.

Jesuits' Anti-Red School

Communists Plot Revolt in U. S.

(This is the sixth in a series on the first anti-Communism school in America.)

By ALAN C. FRAZER

Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American

Philadelphia, Dec. 13—Communist propaganda and threats were found today in the Gesu Church adjoining the St. Joseph's high school where America's first anti-Communism school holds its classes.

The church is conducted by the Jesuit priests of St. Joseph's who established the anti-communism school.

The leaflets had been surreptitiously thrown into the sacristy where they were found by the sacristan, who turned them over to Rev. Gerald Treacy, S. J.

One sheet, hand-printed with red crayon, said:

"We're ready. The battle is on. So go to it!

It Denies God

One pamphlet was the copy of a speech purported to have been made by one Joseph at the Ingersoll Forum, Pythian Temple, West 70th street, New York city. This read, in part:

"The Soviet Union is the only civilized society where science and good life are supported, and which is an atheist society, the fundamental religion of which is that there is no God.

"If we are going to carry on a struggle here in the United States, we have to understand that it is an every day struggle. "He is not an atheist who is not a revolutionist.

"Our aim is to build a world under the working class on the proposition that there is no God, and that there is no need of religion.

To Seize State

"As atheists we belong to the revolutionary working class, and as atheists we must understand that whosoever is today an atheist must be a revolutionary.

"To enroll with the militant atheists is to carry on the propagation of atheism among the working class. We can then go forward to a world under control of the workers and farmers."

Another leaflet said:

"We are going to get the state power and then we are going to show the church that we have no need for it."

Among the pamphlets was one labelled:

A Communist daily newspaper has also taken cognizance of the Jesuits' school with bitter invectives against it.

The Jesuit Fathers of St. Joseph's assert that leaders of the Communist party in each large city have received orders to redouble their efforts to increase the attendance at their so-called workers' schools.

Rev. Timothy J. Coughlin said:

REV. P. H. BURKETT, S. J.
Anti-Red Crusader

"At those schools not only the theory of Communism, but practical methods of revolution, are taught, and at the present time every effort is being made to lure young people from among the general public into those classes in addition to regular Communists.

"The aim is to raise up the militant leaders to infect every social class. An abundance of literature is being distributed steadily.

"Nor does the propaganda stop there. The heart of the modern state—the eternal enemy of Communism—lies in its armed forces, its army and navy. These must be penetrated if the Communist leaders declare, by a persistent attack showing the 'glories' of the new revolution.

U. S. Must Fight

"Any refusal to carry on efforts in these directions would be considered treason to the revolutionary cause.

"Communism is a powerful and immediate menace. It is a cause driven forward by blazing zeal, tireless energy and iron-fisted logic.

"It is mere social suicide to meet that threat by denying that Communism is present among us or by denouncing it roundly and letting it go at that.

"Communism craves for inaction on the part of its enemies. We who pride ourselves on our democracy and our love of freedom must be alive then and on the move to combat it.

"Marx and his chief apostle, Lenin, had no delusions about democracy in the event of a social revolution. In such an event, all the ideals of freedom must cease to be.

"Revolution is war and war is built on terror. When this comes, there will be no sympathy or pity."

SISTER FIGHTS DONNELLY BEQUESTS

Salem, Dec. 13—A decision was awaited today in the will contest filed by Mrs. Mary E. McCormick, of Springfield, who charged that her brother, the late Bartolomew J. Donnelly, was unduly influenced when he made out his will.

The will disposes of the estate, estimated at $750,000, left by Donnelly, and makes large bequests to his former housekeeper and second cousin, Mrs. Anna G. Murray, of Swampscott.

Appearing as counsel for Mrs. McCormick, former Governor Joseph B. Ely argued the motion to frame jury issues.

He charged that Mrs. Murray and Donnelly engaged in love-making in front of several servants, who would testify before a jury should the petition be granted.

BACKSTAIRS TALK

The charges were denied by Attorney James W. Sullivan, of Lynn, who defended Mrs. Murray and Attorney Albert J. Healey, who drew the will.

Statements made by the contestant's counsel, Attorney Sullivan said, were merely "backstairs talk of discharged employes and bits of gossip."

Attorney Ely, however, declared that Mrs. Murray began visiting Donnelly in 1927, after his wife died, and finally she became a resident in his home.

On one occasion, Ely said, at Donnelly's winter home in Florida, Mrs. Murray occupied an adjoining room to that of the retired stone merchant.

A chauffeur bringing bags upstairs found Mrs. Murray's room door open, her clothing on the bed, and the door to Donnelly's room closed. The chauffeur knocked, Ely said, but there was no answer except a "commotion."

TRIP TO CUBA

Later, Ely averred, Mrs. Murray dropped a remark that she was in Donnelly's room "picking out socks and ties for our trip to Cuba."

Under the terms of the will, Mrs. Murray receives $20,000 outright, and a $10,000 a year annuity as long as she lives. She is also permitted to reside in Donnelly's palatial Swampscott home.

The will bequeaths a $1000 annuity to Mrs. McCormick and a similar amount to another sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Nelmes, of Jamaica Plain, who is not contesting.

After the death of Mrs. Murray, the will states, St. John the Evangelist church of Swampscott has the right to erect a chapel on the estate, and the residue of the estate will be distributed among several charities.

ADVENTURERS TO START 15 NEW CLUBS

BY THE JUNIOR ADVENTURERS' CLUB EDITOR

Columbia's Junior Adventurers' Clubs, sponsored in New England by the Boston Evening American, now number 126 with at least 15 more to be started before New Year's Day.

COLUMBIA'S JUNIOR ADVENTURERS CLUB

Throughout the country at large the latest roll call of members discloses that more than 400,000 boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 16 are meeting each Saturday morning in their local movie theaters to share in the fun furnished by Columbia Pictures Corporation's great "kid" clubs.

Managers of motion picture theaters report the Junior Adventurers' Club movement a huge success. Membership is free—there are no dues to pay. The special show for youngsters presenting pictures suited to children and other entertainment in keeping with the "kid" mind and interests, solves lots of problems. Parents, too, have endorsed the movement wherever it has appeared.

Latest unit in the fast-growing New England chain of clubs are the Empire Theater, Portland, Me., and the Gates Theater, Lowell. The first meeting at the Portland Theater was held last Saturday. Manager H. J. Boucher writes in to report an initial membership of 800. The club is divided into four different groups.

SURPRISING TALENT

At the initial meeting of the Empire's Junior Adventurers' Club, last week, a five-hour show was presented, including a kiddie stage show which developed some surprising talent.

A little lad named Buddy Simoneau acted as master of ceremonies of the stage show, and every boy and girl got free candy with the compliments of the club and Manager Boucher. A western picture, Tarzan serial, animated cartoon and two one-reel comedies made up the program in addition to the Kiddie Stage Show.

The Gates Theater, Lowell, also held its first meeting with 500 charter members on hand last Saturday. An amateur show was given by the following 32 boys and girls:

2000 MEMBERSHIP

At tomorrow's meeting, Manager Sam Sternberg announces all members will receive their club emblems and each will also be given a prize. Following the first meeting, each boy and girl participating in the amateur stage show was presented with either a doll, camera, football, set of boxing gloves, baseball or a Scrappy Book.

By Christmas week, Mr. Sternberg predicts the club will have a membership of 2000 and the December 21 meeting—one week from tomorrow—will be turned into a big Christmas party.

At Attleboro, the Bates Theater, which was one of the first to organize a Junior Adventurers' Club reports steadily growing membership and attendance.

Tomorrow the feature of the meeting will be a showing of Jackie Cooper's latest picture "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," with Wallace Beery again starred with the famous "kid" movie star in a circus story. Because of the length of the feature film, tomorrow's regular weekly stage show, with talent furnished by the members, will be curtailed to half an hour.

DELUGE OF APPROVAL

Everywhere parents and teachers are endorsing the Junior Adventurers in a deluge of letters to Columbia Pictures Corporation, 87 Church street, Boston, and to the Boston Evening American.

Following the holidays, a full 52-week program of entertainment, exciting contests and competitions will be announced from New York by Fred A. Marshall, national chairman of the movement.

Meanwhile our advice to boys and girls: Join now—the nearest Junior Adventurers' Club. Ask your local theater manager where the nearest theater is located—or write to Columbia Pictures Corporation, Boston.

MEASURE CLIPS PRESIDENTIAL WAR POWERS

Washington, Dec. 13 (U8)—Confidence that the coming Congress will demand "mandatory" neutrality legislation—and prohibit the President naming the aggressor and promulgating sanctions in time of war—is expressed here by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan.

In initial discussions of neutrality measures last summer, the administration had asked for presidential power to designate the aggressor.

Certain groups in Congress still are hopeful the President will be given this power.

AT MERCY OF ONE

Vandenberg, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"To hand the President the power to name an aggressor in time of war would be placing the nation at the mercy of one man's decision."

It would be unfair to the President himself, the senator declared, to place on his shoulders the responsibility of naming the aggressor.

In the original draft of the present neutrality law which forbids shipment of arms to belligerents, the State Department had asked that it be unlawful to ship arms "to such countries as the President may designate."

This phase of the neutrality act was stricken out during committee conferences in both Senate and House.

RUMBLINGS RENEWED

Renewed rumblings of administration attempts to insert the "discretionary" features of the bill at the coming Congress were heard on Capitol Hill as the neutrality issue stood out in bold relief.

In the event a new act is offered to supersede the present act, which expires February 29, Vandenberg said he would insist on "more stringent features." The new law, if there is to be one, he said, should contain clauses prohibiting extension of credits and loans to belligerents.

Vandenberg said:

"Since the summer there have been multiplied demonstrations that we must run our own neutrality show. Neutrality legislation must be of a mandatory type. We must write out the formula beforehand rather than wait for emergencies and place the responsibility on one man."

Taxation Scourge Flayed:

Cut in Government Costs Demanded

BUSINESS CHIEFS RAP 'TRAVESTY' OF LIVING BEYOND MEANS

Waste and extravagance in town, city, state and federal government must be eliminated before the tax burdens of the people will be reduced, in the opinion of several prominent men who addressed members of Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in Boston City Club.

These men, who advocated a drastic economy in government expenditures, are Rodney W. Long, president of Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange; Representative Albert F. Bigelow of Brookline, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Senator William A. Davenport of Greenfield, chairman of the Special Legislative Recess Commission on Taxation, and S. H. Thompson, president of Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce.

In a ringing address, Long said:

"The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange believes in economy in government administration, re-appraisal of all Massachusetts property to establish fair and equitable assessed valuations, and a definite limitation placed on real estate not to exceed $25 per thousand of a sound warranted valuation.

Realty Exploited

"Let the home owners of Massachusetts express at the polls their disapproval of reckless politicians who sing sweet songs but chant poisonous melodies. Let them elect honest, efficient representatives of the people who can always be found to bring back the traditions of Massachusetts. Once the home owners of this state and property owners are made to realize this they will bring about a happy result. We know how real estate has been exploited, overtaxed, ruined, confiscated.

"Not only is the system of taxation here archaic and hodgepodge, but the system of assessing in Massachusetts is worse.

"As a matter of common honesty and because of the necessity of solving this tax problem in the right way it becomes a solemn obligation of those in public positions to advocate only those policies which are essential and sound.

Lacks Logic

"Our present tax system has no logic. It is a crazy-quilt of political compromises without one systematic idea except to get the money, penalize the home owner and thrifty and spend, spend, spend!—for whatever project might bring some more votes and another election.

"Taxation in this state is a travesty, a mess, a political jack heap of entangled cross-trades.

"If we want lower taxes we must elect candidates who will give us lower taxes.

"The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange is prepared to fight to the finish to save the rights of Massachusetts home owners.

"When a city can't afford permanent improvements it must do just what an individual has to do when he is in the same fix. The city must cut out the luxuries and live within its means.

"A man has no business ordering a changeo supper when he has holes in his shoes and can't pay for the pot roast he ate for dinner two weeks ago Sunday. A city is no different in this respect. When money is scarce the city must stop spending.

"We can get along without a new $5,000,000 City Hall in Boston and a new $5,000,000 courthouse in Pemberton square and without similar projects in other cities. We must learn to restrain our public spending within the limits of our ability to pay.

"Do you want to see our buildings levelled to the ground and our cities full of taxable cellarholes? Economy in government administration is our salvation."

Long said that the damage done by overtaxation "exceeds the damage done by war" and added that "whole blocks of Boston real estate are being removed" because the owners cannot afford to pay the taxes on buildings, resulting in the land becoming parking spaces.

S. H. Thompson said that town, city, state and federal officials in this country "seem to vie with one another to see how much they can spend regardless of how they get it."

Costs Will Soar

Representative Bigelow said that "some of us at the State House are trying to do what we can not to increase expenditures that are not absolutely necessary and essential." He said he expects state expenditures will increase from $5,000,000 to $5,000,000 in 1936 over this year. He said he regarded the expenditure of $100,000 for a military camp site on Cape Cod as an extravagance as well as the placing of institution employes on a three-shift basis from two.

He said that although the legislators had been practically assured that the federal government would grant $2,000,000 for improvement of the Cape Cod camp site he doubted if it would come to pass and that he believed a movement would be started in the legislature to complete the project from state funds.

Suggests Aid

He referred to the "lullaby ballyhoo" of the administration in Washington with its promise of "a more abundant life—whatever that is" and added: "Surely we all will fight against the ever-increasing tax burden." He said the executive department at the State House is the only one there that has not lived within its 1935 appropriation.

Senator Davenport suggested many ways of getting additional revenue and said that the "savings banks of Massachusetts have become the dumping ground and reservoir of wealth for the purpose of avoiding taxation" with approximately $2,500,000,000 in them.

At the conclusion of the speaking, on suggestion of William S. Felton of Salem, those present unanimously voted to extend an invitation to several leading organizations to appoint three representatives to serve as members of a general committee to develop plans for securing reductions in taxes and in governmental expenditures in towns, cities and state.

U. S. ACTS TO START AGE PENSIONS BY JANUARY 1

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Striving to get the non-contributory old-age pension system into effect soon after New Year's, officials disclosed today that they have sent a questionnaire to all States.

It is a final check-up by the social security board to determine which states will participate in the system at the beginning.

Board officials expect to be ready to put the plan into operation as soon as Congress provides the money.

The federal government will grant $15 a month for each needy individual, 65 years old or over, provided a similar amount is granted by the state.

Under the law, the federal government will give grants only to stated which:

Have an old age assistance plan in operation in all political sub-divisions so that all eligible persons can get aid.

Provide financial assistance from state funds. (Except that for one year those states with constitutional limitations can count on local instead of state funds.)

Have a single state agency to supervise the plan.

Provide for fair hearings for anyone denied assistance.

Set up administrative methods approved by the board and provide for reports to the board.

Divide with the Federal Government receipts from the estates of those aided.

Fix the age limitation no higher than 70 years, require no more than five years of residence during the preceding nine, nor more than one year's continuous residence immediately preceding the grant.

Plan Brann Rites

New Britain, Ct., Dec. 13—Funeral arrangements are to be completed today for George E. Brann, 70, cousin of Governor Louis J. Brann, of Maine.

Maxwell Girl Pins Hope on High Court

Wise, Va., Dec. 13 (AP)—Defense attorneys began today for a last effort to save Edith Maxwell, 21-year-old Wise County school teacher, from the 25-year penitentiary sentence facing her for the first degree murder of her father, Trigg Maxwell.

Miss Maxwell was denied a new trial before Judge H. A. W. Skeen yesterday.

Her counsel said the Virginia supreme court of appeals would be asked to grant a writ of error to the woman who says the only blows she struck her father on the morning of his death were wielded when he attempted to whip her for staying out late. Her only weapon was a shoe, she said, and her only thought was self-defense.

The prosecution, however, brandished her story "a fabrication from beginning to end" and charged the girl with premeditated murder of her father. They offered witnesses to testify the girl had previously threatened her father's life.

In overruling the defense motion for a new trial, Judge Skeen said there was evidence in the record to sustain the jury's verdict.

Mayor-Elect Laughs Last

DALE BARRY ERNEST E. ESTES

That ridicule ofttimes has its own kickback was demonstrated by Ernest E. Estes, Maine crossing tender elected mayor, when home town skeptics were sure it just wasn't in the cards. Above, the victor is celebrating with his two-year-old pal, Dale Barry, daughter of Maurice Barry of Auburn, Me.

ELECTION COST--ZERO

Maine's 'Hopeless Cause' Happy

Auburn, Me., Dec 13—"It's my turn to laugh now."

Ernest E. Estes, Maine Central crossing tender and mayor-elect of this city was speaking.

"They laughed at me for weeks when I announced my candidacy, but see what happened.

Without spending a single cent Estes-tender-Mayor-elect Estes won the election by 81 votes over the present incumbent, Mayor George C. Wing, Jr.

There will be no recount of the ballots, Mayor Wing said after visiting his boyhood chum, Estes, and congratulating him.

Although the Mayor here has little power under the city manager form of government, Estes pledged himself to making efforts to reduce the tax rate.

"Our taxes are too high," he said, "and I am going to try to reduce them, in fact, I'm going to try to be a good mayor, just as I promised I would, and not disappoint these loyal friends who have stood by me.

"No one seemed to want to run for mayor in opposition to the administration, so I thought I would.

"My candidacy met with a lot of ridicule, but I kept right on, believing that I had a chance of being elected, and it has come true."

Estes declared that he would keep his job as gate tender, which pays him $20.65 a week, and at which he has worked for 24 years.

In 1899, he suffered the loss of a foot while employed as a brakeman, and later he was given his present job.

Estes is married and has a daughter, Miss Audrey M. Estes, a teacher in St. Johnsbury, Vt.

Chicago, Dec. 13 (AP)—The nation's winter sneezing bill was set today at $100,000,000—no figure to sneeze at.

It will be a hard blow for Santa Claus, but the Christmas sock must be deprived of that amount for treatment of common colds until spring, declared Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

Dr. Arnold listed these other undesirable effects of colds during a single winter:

"Two million wage earners in industry, stores and offices sick for at least eight days, due to common colds and the sinus infections, sore throat, influenza and pneumonia that follow or begin as colds.

"Children losing time at school."

To cut down the cold bill, Dr Arnold advised:

"Keep fit and healthy. Avoid excess of all kinds, and keep in good physical and mental condition. Overeating, physical and mental exhaustion are as hazardous as living a 'hot house' plant existence.

WARN TEACHERS IN JOB PLAN INQUIRY

Identity of the man declared to have offered to "freeze" the Boston school teachers' list for $50 a name probably will be known Monday night, it was declared today by School Superintendent Patrick Campbell.

On that night a special meeting of the school committee will be held to consider action against the girl school teacher declared to have acted as a go-between in the job racket.

This teacher is said to have admitted calling a meeting of 10 other substitute teachers, to whom she relayed the plan for "freezing" the teacher list.

Three times before today the teacher had been summoned into session with the school superintendent, and it is known she is to be called again for questioning.

TEN TEACHERS WARNED

Superintendent Campbell, directing the investigation personally, also warned today that the other 20 teachers involved must come forward and tell what they know of the scheme proposed.

"The members of the school committee directed me to carry on this investigation to the end without regard for consequences," said Superintendent Campbell.

"In making the investigation I am acting on the authority of the committee, I am now preparing a report concerning my investigation and it will be submitted to the committee on Monday. It is their business to make it public."

That Campbell and school committee members were greatly upset over the entire affair was clearly indicated.

"The members of the committee and I personally feel this scandal very keenly," Campbell declared. "We are going to leave no stone unturned in our efforts to bring this thing out in the open so that public confidence and trust in the integrity of their school officials may be upheld.

LIST PUBLIC

"I am responsible for these appointments and no one will ever be able to 'fix' me when it comes to making these appointments.

"The eligible list is here and is public property, and the first name on it is appointed to a vacancy when it occurs. The teachers are appointed to permanent positions in the order at their rankings on the list. There will be no deviation from that plan while I am school superintendent."

Disclosure that one of their number had admitted her part in the fraud had a stunning effect on the other 420 teachers on the eligible list.

Westford Death Finding Delayed

Ayer, Dec. 13—Following an inquest lasting two hours, Judge Lyman K. Clark, in district court, today announced that he would forward his finding in the death of Gwendoline Francis Gallagher of Westford to District Attorney Warren L. Bishop tomorrow.

The 20-year-old niece of George O'Brien was found dead in her uncle's home the afternoon of November 28. Her head had been almost blown from her body by the force of a double-barreled shotgun found in the room.

Medical Examiner Dr. Frank J. Bulkeley, who has maintained that the young woman could not have committed suicide with the weapon found, was the principal witness at the inquest, which was a closed session.

Dr. Bulkeley testified that the Gallagher girl was wearing her slippers when the body was found, stretched across a bed, and gave it as his opinion that it would have been impossible to discharge the weapon unless her toes tripped the trigger.

Oklahoma Convict Fugitives Hunted

El Reno, Okla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Five fugitives from the Federal Reformatory here—"just kids, but dangerous"—were sought today. Warden H. L. Merry said the five youths probably had stolen motor

"We had reports of four auto thefts during the night," he said. "We have officers on all the highways and most of the side roads looking for them."

The five escaped after a night school class by cowing two guards with makeshift knives and using them as shields to prevent rifle fire by tower guards as they fled.

Hartford Mayor's Pay to Charity

Hartford, Ct., Dec. 13 (AP)—True to his inaugural promise, Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy is dividing his salary among three institutions that it may be used to help the needy.

Three checks, each for $49.08, were sent yesterday by the mayor to St. Francis Hospital, Hartford Hospital and Mt. Sinai Hospital.

The weekly salary of the office is $122.09, but the first check covered an extra day owing to the inauguration which took place on Dec. 3.

Mayor Spellacy will continue to divide his salary among the hospitals, he said, as long as he remains in office.

6 Suspects Held In Cuba Kidnaping

Havana, Dec. 13 (AP)—Cuba's campaign against the kidnapers of Nicolas Castano, Havana millionaire reported to be held for $500,000 ransom, resulted today in the arrests of six youths suspected of connection with the case.

Castano was kidnaped last Monday while driving on a highway near Havana, and authorities feared the ransom treasure, if paid, might find its way into the hands of revolutionaries.

Found Dead

Charles M. Dunham, 85, was found dead in his home today at South terrace, Beverly, by a neighbor, William Lefavour. Death was due to natural causes, Medical Examiner Ralph E. Stone said.

Carrel Sees Twilight Death, Renewed Life

DEAD MAY BE KEPT 'ON ICE,' REVIVED

New York, Dec. 13—The mystery of death may some day be solved, but death will never be conquered.

Science lacks proof that the soul is immortal, but no one has a right to assert man's mind does not survive his body's death.

These scientific opinions were voiced by Dr. Alexis Carrel, medical scientist and Nobel Prize winner, who were being studied by doctors and philosophers alike today. The famous biologist delivered a lecture at the New York Academy of Medicine last night titled "The Mystery of Death."

Dr. Carrel

Completely reversing a statement he made four years ago when he voiced the belief that the "process of aging remains irreversible" and rejuvenation seems impossible, Dr. Carrel declared last night.

"It is extremely probable that a greater longevity could be induced in man, as in mice, by appropriate changes in diet and mode of living.

IN COLD STORAGE

"Death could also be retarded by a rejuvination operation.

"It is not impossible that, in the course of the next two or three centuries, rejuvinating procedures will be brought within the reach of medicine.

"Some individuals could be put into storage for long periods of time, brought back to normal existence for other periods, and permitted in this manner to live for several centuries. We should remember the Utopias of today are the realities of tomorrow."

Touching on immortality, Dr. Carrel said:

"Hundreds of millions of people believe in the immortality of the soul. Such faith belongs to the domain of religion and philosophy, not to that of experimental science.

"There is no scientific proof at the present time of the survival after death of the mind or of a part of the mind. But no one has a right to say that such survival is impossible."

Back Minus Soul

One of the most intriguing portions of his address came when he spoke of resurrection. If resurrected after too long a time, he declared, man might come back to life without a soul.

He spoke of a woman resurrected after she had been legally dead nine minutes. She was paralyzed, he explained, and looked and acted like an animal.

Dr. Carrel said that clairvoyance, which ra defined as the ability to see the past and the future, is a scientific fact.

It explains, he said, much of the after-life evidences which spiritists attribute to those now head. But he said it is far from unreasonable to believe that some part of human personality may escape death.

Dr. Carrel held out no hope of taking an entire body at dead and putting it back together to make a new man and a new life out of organs, kept alive outside the laboratory, which seem to be immortal by themselves.

But he foresaw real rejuvenation changing an old man back into an "earlier stage" of life as a possibility in two or three centuries, and disease abolished in perhaps eight centuries.

"The Dead Speak"

More remote, but a possibility, would be the drying or desiccation process for keeping a man alive. The model for this, he explained, already exists in nature, and has been applied to organs of lower animals.

Concerning after-life and clairvoyance, Dr. Carrel said:

"Mental activities generally disappear before the death of the body. These activities, which we know as an aspect of the living body, never manifest themselves after organic disintegration.

"Spiritists claim that the survival of the soul has been demonstrated, that they possess the experimental proof of this phenomenon, that messages have been received from dead individuals. These individuals are supposed to have recesied, through the help of a medium, certain secrets.

"Sir Oliver Lodge believes that he is in communication with his son. A number of articles and books have been published on life after death. The evidence brought out by psychiresearch is as follows

"A medium in a trance receives from a so-called communicator information regarding certain circumstances of his life or death. These details are unknown to those present as the sitting. But later they are proved to be accurate.

"Similar revelations occur also in automatic writing. The spiritists assume that the communications received in this manner about some events of the life of the dead man show that his mind still survives.

"According to Broad, consciousness does not perish, after death, in its entirety. Only a psychic principle remains. This principle may unite with the mind of a medium, and constitute a sort of consciousness belonging both to the medium and to the defunct. Its existence would be transitory. It would break up progressively, and finally disappear.

"The importance of the facts on which these speculations are based cannot be denied. But the interpretation of the experimental results seems to be incorrect. A very serious objection can be made to the survival hypothesis.

"The spiritists neglect the fact of the existence of clairvoyance. Nevertheless, we know positively that clairvoyants are capable of perceiving past and future events. For them there are no secrets. Therefore it is not possible to make a distinction between the survival of a psychic principle and a phenomenon of clairvoyance.

"The revelations attributed by the spiritists to the mind of the defunct can be considered as due merely to the clairvoyance of the medium. There is no scientific proof at present of the survival after death of the mind. But no one has the right to say that such survival is impossible.

"We must remember that mental activities, although always bound in the body, are not completely described within the four dimensions of the physical continuum. Their nature is unknown. It is far from being unreasonable to believe that some part of human personality may escape death.

Responsible to a great extent for his new attitude toward longevity, Dr. Carrel indicated, is the "mechanical heart" invented by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. This is used by Dr. Carrel at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research to study various organs, such as the thyroid gland and spleen, as they continue to live artificially outside the body.

Describing experiments with 22,000 mice at the Rockefeller Institute, Dr. Carrel said some of the animals lived more than 38 months, equivalent to about 115 years in human beings, as a result of new diets and changed living conditions.

"The results," he added, "showed that longevity does not depend only on heredity, and that it can be modified at will.

WARNS OF PERIL IN LONGEVITY

"The average duration of human life has already been increased markedly. It is quite probable that the maximum duration of life also can be more or less considerably extended. Forthcoming discoveries may suddenly open new possibilities in the field of rejuvenation."

Then he warned:

"The fight of man against death will perhaps succeed too well. For the artificial postponement of the death of a large number of individuals would be a far greater calamity than death itself."

If men could suddenly live to 100, he said, civilized countries could not stand the economic burden of populations composed mostly of aged individuals.

"Death has been the builder of civilization," he concluded. "The weak, the diseased, the feeble were not capable of resisting its attack directly, or of learning how to protect themselves against illness. Through natural selection, the strong and the intelligent persisted, and the great races developed."

CONNER, GUILTY FACES STATE MENTAL TEST

Framingham, Dec. 13—William Ernest Conner, 55-year-old consulting engineer, who broke into headlines several years ago with his famous 'love triangle,' pleaded guilty in court today to two charges of larceny totaling $100.

He was ordered held in bonds of $500 on each charge by Judge Edward W. Blodgett and taken to the Framingham State Police barracks to undergo a mental test by Dr. Solomon Fuller.

Conner was accompanied in court by his wife, Mrs. Ines Conner, who has remained loyal to him for 27 years.

Conner was charged with the larceny of $25 from Fred Carillo, of Holliston by use of worthless checks and $75 from Paul Cousinos of Hopkinton.

Conner and his wife, Ines, who acted as a mother to May Gledhill, the "Ski Girl" of the amazing triangle, were riding in an expensive limousine when Providence, R. I., police stopped them.

Mrs. Conner was not arrested and no charges of any kind were made against her.

Brought to Framingham state police barracks, Conner at first denied his identity, claiming his name was Ernest Conner. He denied also police said, that he served a two-year term in Vermont State prison for forgery.

Police confronted him with the charge that he has been passing worthless checks in Worcester County since March, but Conner vigorously protested his innocence.

Mrs. Conner said she had no idea where the "Ski Girl" and her four-year-old son, Paul, are at present, not having heard from them for some time.

Conner, his wife and Miss Gledhill at one time lived in the same house on Long Island N. Y., until his desire to travel with the 'Ski Girl' broke up his home.

He was sentenced to State Prison in Vermont while living with Miss Gledhill in a cottage on a lake high up in the Vermont hills.

WILLIAM ERNEST CONNOR TROOPER SKILLINGS

PAUL GLEDHILL MAY GLEDHILL

May Gledhill, pretty Canadian "ski girl" model, and Miss Gledhill's son, Paul, are just a painful memory of the dead past to this loyal wife, Mrs. Inez Connor, now of New York, whose 55-year-old husband, William Ernest Connor, once announced himself in love with Miss Gledhill and the father of her child. Mrs. Connor is holding a pet rabbit which she and her husband had with them in their car at the time of his arrest on bad check charges.

Curley Silent on Mansfield Row

Governor Curley today had no comment to make in the controversy between himself and Mayor Mansfield over the state of Boston's finances.

He said he has no answer about six different sources in the present controversy over projects and that if he replied to all he wouldn't be able to do anything else.

"They will be taken care of at the proper time, however," the governor asserted.

Wife of Baby Face Put on Probation

San Francisco, Dec. 13 (AP)—Petite Helen Gillis, 22-year-old widow of the slain gangster, "Baby Face" Nelson, pleaded guilty in Federal court today to harboring Nelson. She was granted release on a year's probation.

It strikes me just about everybody's got wind of how I've been making whiskey since way back in '92 when my dad taught me. But I mean it when I say you can't give me all the credit for the mildness and tastiness you're all so keen about in this Family's Whiskey of ours.

I've got three boys—counting in my son-in-law Tom—that I've taught everything I ever picked up in a lifetime of distilling. And even if I'm their own dad—excepting Tom, and he's like one of my own boys—you can take my word for it those boys are right with me putting everything they've got into our own Family's Whiskey—just like their life depended on it. If you just go to figuring how you'd be fussing over it if it was your own Family's Whiskey, you'll get an idea of what we're doing with ours!

BLIND SINGER'S CASE READY FOR JURY

A blind street singer will learn today if he must die in the electric chair for what the state charges was the murder of his sweetheart, who died after a threesentry plunge from a Tremont street hotel last July.

The singer, Forrest K. Wells, who confessed shortly after the tragedy which cost the life of Helen Wells, alias Hazel Martin, told of that he told police he had thrown her from the window only because he wanted to die also rather than live without her.

Since then, he told a jury in Suffolk Superior Court, he has changed his mind about his desire to die and repudiated his confession.

FINAL ARGUMENTS

Today, final arguments by his defense counsel Attorney John J. Walsh, and by the prosecution represented by Assistant District Attorney William J. Sullivan will be made. Judge Thomas J. Hammond will deliver his charge and the case will be given to the jury.

Walsh argued that the girl whose past is shrouded in mystery, died either a suicide or by accident in tumbling out of the window, and that the sole evidence against Wells is the man's own confession which he now claims was not true.

Under examination, Wells testified that the girl often talked of suicide shortly after the pair came to this city early in the year, and that on one occasion when she read a newspaper article about a woman's death pledge she said that that was a good way to die.

WAITED DIVORCE

Wells said that in their days of the east in a quest for employment they sometimes registered as man and wife and sometimes as brother and sister. He said that he loved the girl, and the reason they never married because the girl was married and was awaiting a divorce.

Testifying about the night of the tragedy, Wells declared that he was awakened by screams and that when he went to the girl's room he could not find her. Neither was she or her dog in the bathroom he said and shortly after, police came into his room.

They told him that the girl had plunged from the window and had been taken to the hospital. He said that at that time he was in grief stricken at the accident that he "confessed" to pushing her from the window because he then also wanted to die.

Plan Murder Trial Plea

FORREST K. WELLS JOHN J. WALSH

(picture from International News Photograph Service)

Tears fill the sightless eyes of murder trial defendant Forrest K. Wells, blind street singer, as he hears his attorney, John J. Walsh, outline the plea which he will make in final argument today. It will be based on Wells' own testimony that his sweetheart and common-law wife, Hazel Martin, who was also blind, died not by his hand but by a suicide plunge from a South End hotel window.

Natick Lad Saves Tot From Ice

Natick, Dec. 15—James Spurling 14 of Copper street, a Boy Scout was being congratulated today for his heroic rescue of six-year-old Magnus Carlson who fell through the ice on Jennings pond.

Spurling ran to the scene with a ladder. Lying prone on the ice, he pushed the ladder ahead of him until it reached young Carlson, who grasped a rung. After pulling the boy to safety, Spurling took him home and called a doctor.

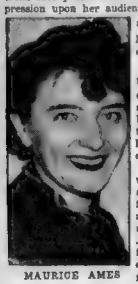
Concert by Maurice Ames Is One Of Social Season's Highlights

By BETTY ALDEN

MAURICE AMES' concert last evening in Jordan Hall was a source of unexpected pleasure, not only from a musical point of view but also from the social angle . . .

This latest addition to the parade of society girls and matrons into professional singing careers, made a favorable impression upon her audience almost instantly and was warmly applauded by the large audience of prominent society friends and relatives of the distinguished Ames clan . . .



MAURICE AMES

Mrs. Ames, who is the widow of the late Frederick L. Ames, was a comely figure in her white crepe gown studded with brilliants to match the brilliant shoulder straps, and shirred to fit snugly through the bodice and hips above the flaring skirt and modest train . . .

She arrived at Jordan Hall snugly wrapped in a long Persian lamb coat, and was, apparently, calm and unruffled, as she joked with her husband's aunt, Mrs. Louis Frothingham and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Roger W. Cutler . . . The latter's becoming white coiffure was enhanced by a modish gown of gray metal cloth with gold threads giving it a sparkling brilliance . . .

The Ames family was also represented by Debutante Rebecca Ames, wearing a trailing chiffon gown of raspberry color, and accompanied by her mother, Mrs. John S. Ames, whose long fur wrap was trimmed with blue fox . . . Mrs. Henry B. Cabot, Jr. (Olivia Ames) and her sister, Mrs. William Amory Parker (Elise Ames) of Beacon street, were also there . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams were others in the distinguished audience, as were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel de Menocal, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett Schleisinger, Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. J. Gardner Bradlee in a long metal cloth wrap of blue and rose geometric figures; Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller in emerald green velvet with a white fox collar tucked snugly under her chin; Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs with her daughter, Miss Rebekah Hobbs; Mrs. James Cunningham Gray with her daughter, Miss Catherine Gray . . .

Also Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. George Saltonstall West in a swishy black taffeta gown under her mink wrap; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Slayman and Mr. and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski.

Louise Ranney, Helen Lang in Joint Debut

Any debs who have had yearnings to dance in the warm tropic gardens of Southern winter resorts can dance to their hearts' content this evening under graceful palms and cocoanut trees without having to travel to Florida to do it . . . For it is only a short drive to the Weston Golf Club, and those who go to the party which Miss Helen Ranney is giving for her great-neices, Louise Ranney and Helen Lang, will find an artificial tropical garden as the setting in the ballroom . . .

Quite in contrast, however, will be the Christmasy decorations on the dinner tables at which the ushers and their partners will start the evening . . . These will be laden with frosted pine boughs tied with little clusters of red berries . . .

After dinner, as the guests begin to arrive for dancing, the debutantes will greet them in a small reception room of the clubhouse, in front of an old gold screen twined with ivy and flanked by tall gold candelabra . . .

Miss Ranney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley P. Ranney of Wellesley Farms, has chosen for her debut gown a model of ivory satin fashioned on simple Grecian lines, with gold clips to match her gold slippers and the coronet in her hair . . .

Her cousin, Miss Lang, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lang of Bay State road, will wear white crepe fashioned very amply with two long satin scarves floating from the shoulders and jewelled clips at the neckline . . .

Guest at Dinner for Ushers

Miss Helen Ranney, the hostess, has chosen a gown of wine red lace, which will vie in brilliance with the bluish-silver metal cloth of Mrs. Ranney's gown and the peach satin trimmed with mink which Mrs. Lang will wear . . .

Among the debutantes' intimate friends who will dine with them at the ushers' dinner will be Mary Pickering Older, Mary Tyler, Sallie Adams, Martha Billings, Polly Long, Louise Herman, Polly Olney, Adele Hooper, Jessica Marshall, Constance Matless, Harriet Brigham, Sylvia Carter, Frederica Sargent, and their cousin, Nancy Wellington . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Spencer (Margaret Lang), who were married last spring, are coming on from Hartford for the party, and will be guests of honor at a small dinner given by Amy Lang, another sister . . .

The guest list is not confined exclusively to debutantes as their parents have invited quite a number of their friends to the dance . . . Among them are a group of Weston neighbors, who will be dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carrington Thayer before going on to the Golf Club . . . This group will include Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Cabot, Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grant, Mr. and Mrs. L. Manlius Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Monks, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Dumaine . . .

Chatty News of Social Circles

MR. AND MRS. ERETT VAN NICE (Ruth Swift), who were married in Boston on the 22nd of November, have returned from a short honeymoon trip to Europe and are now living in the Blackstone Hotel apartment of Mrs. Swift's uncle, Mr. Harold Swift, until their own apartment is made ready for them.

DR. AND MRS. JOR VINCENT MEIGS of Chestnut Hill are on their way north from the Homestead at Virginia Hot Springs, where they enjoyed a winter vacation. Tomorrow they expect to arrive in New York, where they will stay at the Ambassador.

Open House at Hospitals Attracts Many

A SMARTLY DRESSED GROUP of philanthropic society women gathered at the Children's and Infants' Hospital on Longwood avenue yesterday afternoon to attend the Open House Day program.

The welfare committee of the hospital, sponsored the open house, as part of the "Come and See—Go and Tell" program of the Women's Crusade of the Community Federation.

Presiding at the tea tables were Mrs. Edwin S. Webster who was wearing a modish dark green suit trimmed with Persian lamb buttons and collar and a hat of the same fur; Mrs. Edward Donnelly in a brown suit with a beige fox scarf; Mrs. William C. Cox, trimly dressed in dark green with a Persian lamb hat; Mrs Gordon Abbott and Mrs. George Peabody Gardiner.

Among those present were Mrs. Samuel Eliot, chairman of welfare committee, who wore Ad black, Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., also in black whit a rope of heavy pearls and a mink cape, Mrs. Francis B. Lothrop, in a rosy red tweed suit and Mrs. Frederick M. Dearborn, Jr. Mrs. Edwin F. Cave was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Wadsworth Rusk, Mrs. Cave wore a black dress accented with a Tale blue vest and a velvet hat, while her sister wore steel blue metal cloth.

A checked sport suit of green and brown with a tangerine blouse was worn by Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott, and Mrs. Charles Mason, Jr., was attired in a bitter sweet woolen dress and a short beige squirrel cape. Another shade of brown was worn by Mrs. Bartlett Harwood. Miss Eleanor Gibson wore a Parisian militaristic creation of French blue with a red belt, wool lacings and very full sleeves.

Others present were Mrs. Alfred Kiddeer 2d, Miss Barbara Bremer, Miss Frances Osgood, Mrs. George H. Monks, Mrs. Robert Herrick, Jr., Miss Joanna Palfrey, and Mrs. Gelston King.

Talk Draws Leaders

Guests were offered a sip of Dubonnet wine and Professor Frank W. Hersey's impressions of "Romantic Walks in Paris," at the third of Mrs. William Dana Orcutt's Mornings of Diversion, held at the Statler yesterday, and enjoyed the foreign flavor and tang of both.

Professor Hersey illuminated his discussion with colored slides of the quaint sequestered corners of old Paris.

Black seemed to be the favorite color of the hostesses who were chosen by Mrs. Orcutt because of their work for devastated France during and after the war. Mrs. M Graeme Houghton, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies and Mrs. Horace Binney, were in all back. The assistant hostesses were Miss Louise Ranney in black and white, and who incidentally makes her debut tonight; Miss Elizabeth Jacques and Miss Priscilla Thorndike in black, Mrs. Raymond C. Lapham in black accented with red and Mrs. Charles F. Hovey in a black dress and black hat, but a black and white checked blouse

Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Jr., another hostess wore a woolen dress of rich autumn brown with a green velvet neckerchief. Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell and Mrs. Morgan Harris had both chosen grey wool.

Kirk said that under this system, drivers would be forced to check in at these stations, and that when a driver failed to report, local and state police could be ordered out in a search.

GIRL SHORTAGE THREATENS B. U. LAW DANCE

Male students at the Boston University law school are anxiously trying to solve a problem that seems to have no precedent.

Custom demands that the senior class sponsor a formal dance. This is to be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Wednesday night, December 17.

And it is also traditional that a [illegible] dance be a couple affair, [illegible] attend [illegible].

But it seems that the law men [illegible] many more [illegible] than [illegible] and [illegible] have not had much time for dates. With the result that many do not know whom to take to this affair.

So the [illegible] have met their problem together and have decided to attend as "stags," unless they find unexpectedly a girl-friend to accompany them.

Now, there are exactly six co-eds in the senior class, and, as could be well expected, they were invited to this social function weeks and weeks ago.

The "stags," however, are in high hopes that the lower classmen who will attend the event will bring along their girl-friends, in order that there will be enough girls to give each man at least a couple of dances.

No one has as yet suggested that the boys might dance with each other in case there be a woeful dirth of girl-friends. There have been, however, murmurings about "date bureaus," so that it is possible that the "bureau" at M. L. T. may get an extra-special call.

Or perhaps the legal-lads will turn to the undergraduate schools at B. U. and send out a mass appeal for co-eds.

Anyhow, the co-chairman, Ollie D. Giustina and John O'Shaughnessy, have positively decided that "the dance must go on" whether or not the boys have anybody to dance with.

It's Friday, 13th—So What?

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service)

When it comes to walking under ladders, Rene Cummings, Metropolitan Theater entertainer, must ask to be excused, Friday, the 13th, or no Friday, the 13th. It's not superstition, she says, it's just common sense, what with painters being so careless about their buckets and window washers being so hit-a-miss with their soapsuds.

HARVARD SEEKS TO LEGALIZE AID BUREAU

New hopes for the reopening of the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau in Cambridge were aroused as Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard Law School made public his annual report.

Dean Pound urged legislative or court action to bring about a legal status for the Legal Aid Bureau, [illegible] which [illegible] 22 years of assistance to Cambridge residents. [illegible] dropped [illegible] charges against [illegible] in police courts.

Dean Pound referred to the act of the legislature which led to the closing of the bureau as "perhaps the most serious event of the past school year." He added:

"The Harvard Legal Aid Bureau answered a real need in Cambridge and vicinity is witnessed by a long record of effective service to the community. At first it was looked upon with doubt by some magistrates. But it had proved itself worthy by the experience of the courts, and it had become the practice where ignorant and needy persons mistakenly applied to the courts for information to refer them to the Bureau."

Although the attorney-general and the Cambridge Bar Association have stated they would not interfere with the Bureau on the basis of the law which caused its shutdown, Dean Pound declared it necessary to "put its legal position beyond question."

"It is earnestly hoped that this unfortunate situation can be remedied at the next session of the General Court," he said.

'RED' TEACHERS' PAPER PROBED

New York, Dec. 13 (US)—Publication of a paper professing to speak for Communist teachers at Evander Childs High School has led to a thorough investigation of the possible indoctrination of students by faculty members with radical leanings, it was learned today.

Dr. John S. Roberts, associate superintendent in charge of the high schools, declared every supervisor in the Bronx institution has been instructed to inquire into the use of classrooms for spreading Communist doctrines.

This action was taken to root out the source of "The Challenge," published by "the Communist unit of Evander Childs High School," which claimed to be the voice of Communist members of the faculty and which was distributed to the 300 teachers in the school.

Famous Pond Leased

Great Barrington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Gilder pond, once used as the private fishing grounds of former President Cleveland, today was leased to the Mahaiwe Club.

Wife's Mass Murder Story Under Fire

Port Orchard, Wash., Dec. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Peggy Paulos' testimony that Leo Hall killed six persons marked only for robbery became a target for defense attorneys today.

Mrs. Paulos, Hall's co-defendant in the mass murder trial, testified for the state yesterday, describing how that 23-year-old boxer forced her to accompany him into the Frank Filcker home near Bremerton, where he killed two women and four men.

Asked why she confessed the crime after waiting more than a year, Mrs. Paulos said:

"I couldn't keep it any longer. He'd threatened me and I knew he'd kill me if I didn't do something.

"He told me to leave Seattle and that he'd kill me if I talked."

"He shot at me as I was leaving," she testified.

U. S. SPENDING IRES CHAMBER

Washington Dec. 13 (US)—Federal spending and excessive taxes "threaten our economic system," the United States Chamber of Commerce declared today in urging a halt of American business on the lines of government economy and lower taxes.

In submitting the case to a referendum of its 1,600 other organizations the chamber charged the administration's fiscal policies crippled business and retarded recovery.

The chamber declared the costs of government in this country equal the "unprecedented" proportion of one-third of the total income of the American people while taxes drain off one-fifth of that income. The chamber summed up its program:

"There should be immediately adoption of measures that will reduce federal expenditures and assure establishment of a well coordinated plan to obtain a balance of the federal budget in the near future without the imposition of new or increased taxes.

"After the budget is balanced, expenditures should be further decreased in order to reduce taxes at the earliest possible date."

TRIPLE KILLER'S MANIA TRACED

New York, Dec. 13 (INS)—Recollections of hardship endured in the Russian revolution snapped the sanity of Victor S. Kousnow and led him to kill two Columbia medical center professors before taking his own life, police investigators declared today.

Kousnow, a handyman in the school of dental and oral surgery at the medical center, seized a gun after being discharged yesterday, and killed Dr. Arthur T. Rowe, associate dean of the school, and Dr. Paul Wineg, assistant professor, and seriously wounded Dr. William Harry Crawford, professor of dental surgery, before ending a bullet through his own heart.

The police declared that both Dr. Rowe and Dr. Wineg had long known the man was a pronounced paranoid.

Kousnow was a member of a prominent family in Czarist Russia and had received degrees from Odessa and Moscow Universities. In the revolution he endured innumerable hardships and saw his family slain before his eyes. This, the police believe, developed the persecution complex that led to the tragedies here.

Despite an intensive search here, police found no trace today of the wife and child of Victor S. Kousnow 53 who committed suicide after murdering two doctors in the Columbia College of Dental and Oral Surgery in New York.

In the course of his employment, the former Russian dental expert was discharged three times, but hired again when he told officials that he needed the job to support his wife and daughter in Boston.

Air Show to Open Rogers 'Tag Day'

Commander Frank Hawks, world famous aviator and close friend of Will Rogers, will lead a squadron of airplanes over Boston tomorrow as part of "tag day" to put the Will Rogers memorial drive "over the top."

All arrangements for the "day" tomorrow have been completed by the state committee and a wide spread response to show the respect and love Boston had for America's beloved philosopher-humorist is expected.

Saugus Youth Dies Of Paint Burns

While working in the shop in Washington street, Lynn, a can of paint nearby caught fire, enveloping him in flames. He was taken to Lynn Hospital.

HOPKINS' SLUR ON LANDON

Malicious Attempt To Belittle Record

PRAISE PRECEDED CRITICISM

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Apparently the national administration in Washington changed its mind concerning Kansas' relief record after Governor Alf M. Landon emerged as a potential Republican candidate for the presidency.

For prior to Landon's political flowering, the national administration had praised the manner in which Kansas played ball with the national relief administrator.

In a press conference, Mr. Hopkins undertook to belittle the Landon achievement in economy and budget balancing.

Tried to Take all Credit

He was quoted as saying that "The state of Kansas never put up a thin dime for unemployment relief; we put up all the money."

The slur, wrong in its implications, might have been technically and literally correct if Hopkins had not added: "We put up all the money."

For, under the Kansas State constitutional setup the contributions of the people of Kansas for poor relief are made through the counties, rather than through the state treasury.

Friends of Governor Landon point out that perhaps at Washington there is less residence for proceeding in the constitutionally correct manner.

After the attack, Governor Landon simply referred to the record, and then commented:

"We did not believe in putting relief in politics. We continued the relief administrator appointed by my distinguished Democratic predecessor and he is on the job today."

Then, quoting from the report of the national relief administrator, Governor Landon asserted that 30.8 per cent of the relief burden in Kansas was financed from state-federal funds established chiefly by county and local governments.

Moreover, he pointed out that the record showed that 27 states contributed less than 25 per cent of their own relief monies and 14 states less than 10 per cent.

Kansas, he showed, ranked 15th among the states in per cent of non-federal funds used for relief, during this two-year period, despite its record of reducing the aggregate tax burden.

Praise Preceded Slur on Record

Prior to this slur from Washington Kansas had received words of praise. In connection with the launching of the civil works program, Harry L. Hopkins in a telegram to Governor Landon dated November 13, 1933, said

"The federal emergency relief administration is ready to go along with your state, on the basis already agreed upon."

Moreover, in April 1934 T. J. Edmonds, administrative representative of Hopkins for the west Mississippi territory, in a statement, paid tribute to the relief setup in Kansas, saying,

"The administration of the Federal relief and civil works in Kansas has been very satisfactory. The co-operative attitude of the State and its political subdivisions has been most helpful and encouraging.

"The organization plan of the relief and the civil works developed in Kansas is one of the best in the country . . . Kansas was one of the first states to have a complete organization of county case supervisors which met the federal regulations. These county case supervisors will continue to prove more valuable to Kansas for years to come, from a social as well as an economic standpoint."

So much for the Kansan relief record.

Skeptics have also raised the question whether economies have not resulted in starving essential services such as education.

Governor Landon points out that the percentage of the total granted to education has not significantly changed.

He likewise told me that cuts to teachers were in most instances, smaller than those given by private corporations to their employees.

On account of financial stress, some 165 district schools were reported to have closed down this year, but, according to F. H. Gund, research director of the Kansas Legislative Council, there have been no serious complaints in Kansas of the inability of children to get schooling.

Pupils Transferred To Best Schools

In many instances the closing down of small one-teacher schools has meant the transference of pupils to better equipped schools.

Under an old law it was possible for districts with closed schools to take care of their children by providing transportation and paying tuition for their children in schools in neighboring districts.

A new law has been passed enabling districts to combine and divide the cost of education.

Until the depression, there was an uneconomic survival of unduly small districts.

Yet the feeling in favor of local responsibility persists.

The legislative council recently proposed a statewide equalization fund for securing adequate funds for the weaker districts. But the proposal was voted down, because of the widespread feeling of local independence.

As to the quality of the other services rendered in the state, Governor Landon feels that they have been toned up, as governmental employees have been especially on their toes.

An appraisal of this must be largely in the realm of opinion.

My observation on two recent trips to Kansas is that the people of the State believe that their governor has done a fine job.

There is universal pride in Alf. My contact was not with bankers and corporation executives alone but also with Pullman porters, red cape, taxi drivers, waiters and barbers.

Another in this interesting series of articles on state government efficiency will be published at an early date in the Boston Evening American.)

No Smoking

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 13 (AP)—William E. Hunt insisted he couldn't pay $2.50 a week for his child's support.

"Show me how and I'll do it," he offered.

"Do you smoke?" asked Judge W. A. Huneke.

"Yes."

NATION AWAITS HIGH COURT RULINGS

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Washington, Dec. 13—The whole nation marches today in solemn step with the Supreme Court of the United States.

There is no precedent in American history for what is transpiring in Washington as the entire fabric of the New Deal, cunningly engrafted upon the ancient traditions of the founders of the Republic, comes to judgment before the highest tribunal in the land.

The ancient records of the court do not reveal, even in the days when Chief Justice John Marshall was handing down those momentous decisions which gave direction and tendency to the Constitution, or in the period of reconstruction following the Civil War, any parallel to today's preeminence of this mighty court of justice.

Congress itself, when it returns in January, will mark time until the verdict upon the New Deal is in. If much of the New Deal is declared to be outside the Constitution, Congress must either pass new legislation to bring it within the organic law, or the administration will be in a dilemma, as the campaign of 1936 opens.

Chief Justice Taft found the Supreme Court far behind in its work. Fortunately he speeded it up. Chief Justice Hughes is accelerating the momentum thus begun. The court aims today at clearing its docket by the date of its adjournment in June.

This is but a guess, but the indications are that the court will work rapidly on the "old" AAA case and that this case will go over until after Christmas, with a decision on the point of constitutionality in January.

Daddy Wins Her Smile

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

There's not a bit of doubt about it! For all of her vexation at a number of things, five-year-old Shirley Baker of Dorchester is finally managing a smile. And Daddy Solomon Baker, having just won legal custody of his daughter through a Suffolk court order, has hope now of reconciling the young woman to living with him instead of with her grandmother as heretofore.

BRADY ATTACK IGNORED BY GOVERNOR

Eugene T. Brady, president of the Young Democratic Club of Berkshire County, who demanded that Governor Curley withdraw from politics before ruining the Democratic party, does not even exist as far as the governor is concerned.

"Who is he?" asked the governor when informed of Brady's attack. "I never heard of him and have no desire to make his acquaintance."

Brady, who has been an employe of the Federal Housing Administration in Washington for the past three months, declared the governor should give up ideas of running for the Senate and devote the rest of his term to repairing the damage he had done to the Democratic party.

He also attacked the appointment of former Governor's Councillor J. Arthur Baker to the superior court bench as an "unfair and unethical means of gaining control of the governor's council."

'Gift of God' Baby Decision Upheld

St. Louis, Dec. 13 (AP)—The St. Louis Court of Appeals today upheld Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh in his report that a "gift of God" baby claimed by Anna Ware unwed servant girl and Mrs. Nellie Tinton Muench, former society matron, was the child of Miss Ware.

In his findings Limbaugh asserted Mrs. Muench did not give birth to a child. Miss Ware's baby was born here at the home of a mid-wife, last August 17.

Supreme Court Ire Roused

U. S. Marshal John J. Murphy today received formal notification from the clerk of the United States Supreme Court to serve notice on Ralph J. Baker, Harvard law school instructor, that he will be disbarred unless he deposits a check for $15.45.

The check was sent to Baker by Clerk Charles Elmore Cropley in 1934 at the conclusion of a case involving the Central Iron and Steel Co. It represented a refund due Baker as excess court costs.

Professor Baker, who teaches business organization and corporation finance at Harvard, neglected to deposit the check. The complaint charges that he ignored letters dated Feb. 1, Feb. 28, April 26 and May 2, 1935.

Marshall Murphy was instructed toto tell Professor Baker he has 40 days from December 9 to show cause why he should not be disbarred for contempt of court.

Policeman Slain, 4 Shot in Gun Duel

Pittsburgh, Cal., Dec. 13 (AP)—One policeman was shot to death and three other officers were wounded in a gun fight today with a man they declared became enraged after losing the affections of his girl.

The man, Luciano Garcia Sanchez, was shot nine times by the officers and was reported dying.

Obedience

"Cough it up, Diana," said the police surgeon, patting her on the back.

HOMELY HUSBANDS

Plain Men Win Love of Beauties

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 13 (AP)—Dr. Paul Popenoe braved the handsome men of Hollywood today with the observation that beautiful women prefer their husbands homely.

And from more than a hundred screen beauties there was a chorus of "aves."

"In a homely man, the woman first sees the essential thing—security," said Dr. Popenoe, who is director of the Los Angeles Institute of Domestic Relations.

"She realizes life with him will be harmonious. His usually realizes his own failing and goes to the extreme to please a beautiful wife, while a handsome husband usually is indifferent, wishing to please nothing but his own ego."

Only three girls out of the 50 in the chorus of the musicale "Colleen," voted for handsome men as husbands. In "The Great Ziegfeld" chorus, all but three out of 75 favored mates with plain profiles.

"Tall, dark and handsome unusually describes a man who is conceited, selfish and thoughtless, one who usually hasn't had to use whatever brains he ever had."

Three girls who agreed to disagree with Dr. Popenoe, declared:

"It's up to the woman to make the security in marriage."

"And don't forget," they added, "it's easier to look at a handsome man, which is important when you have to do it every day."

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

A U. P. dispatch emanating from, and probably inspired by, Hollywood, seems to think that our movie audiences have taken a decided turn for the better, at least morally.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

"Movie goers began to yawn about a year ago at heavy love scenes, and the long-count kiss finale was swept into the discard by surfeited public reaction. Today the essential quality of a love scene is the playing down of heavy handed emotion and the playing up of involved situations which touch the heart and the sense of humor simultaneously.

"The horizontal clinch is no longer necessary to prove passionate love. A wisecrack or a dance step suffices to put the idea across. Hollywood thanks the churches for having caused it to stop writing 'sex' in tall letters across every page of our scripts and has turned out such pictures as 'Top Hat,' 'The Gay Divorcee' and 'Follow the Fleet.' Drama's pinnacle is now the narrow at's walk between pathos and bathos. We re all tight-rope walkers now and the public ikes it."

'ublic Will Swallow 'nything It Is Given

One may add a few reflections on this rathshrewed estimate of the current trend.

The first is that the movie public will swalw anything Hollywood gives it. It swallowed olent sex, the gangster drama, the G-Men rama, and even the really dirty film. It took a olent course of outside interference and propaanda for decency to make the public realize at it could like something different.

The old-fashioned sex film was the product f conventional imaginations of the lower class. n intellect and imagination and tradition the vriters and producers of the old school were retty elementary, unimaginative, and vulgar.

The row raised last year forced the industry o hire better brains, brains with some background of decency, subtlety, humor, imagination, sense of reality, and—above all—knowledge of the general popular literature of the past. These brains awoke both the producers and the public to the great amount of "different" movie material waiting to be exploited. The result was a series of films novel in conception, background, imagination, and treatment.

Sex Films Became Boresome Because Over Familiar

It is these that have caused the public to yawn at things which a few years ago it took for granted. Furthermore, in their zeal for imitation of successful experiments, the producers have always tended to run certain genres to death. Sex films became over familiar and hence boresome, while at the same time the public, educated by the new kind of writers, learned to laugh at the elementary vulgarity they had always been satisfied with.

Nevertheless, the new type of film to which Hollywood takes so much credit is simply the result of surprised producers following the trend of certain unexpected successes in a vein which had not been adequately worked before. The outstanding examples, which I consider the real pioneers in the new type of films, were "The Thin Man," considerably fumigated from the novel of Dashiell Hammett, and that charming, rather surprising, and unexpected success, "It Happened One Night."

New Shows Have New Taste and Intelligence

Those films took a new kind of taste and intelligence and writing ability and point of view. Promptly Hollywood broke its neck trying to repeat those successes, with the result that most of our films are far more endurable than by the old traditional heavy treatment.

The new trend has spread in the musicals which no longer depend so much on elaborateness, artificial choreography, nudity, sensational water scenes, and all that sort of thing, as upon good taste, wit, grace, humor, and the human element. Compare the latest Astaire-Ginger Rogers film with an older three-ring circus musical and the new influence is manifest.

The public is neither moral nor immoral. It is a child, infinitely impressionable, responsive and plastic. It will always take what it is given. The public has not reformed. Neither have the producers. They have merely learned, considerably to their astonishment, that there are more things in earth and heaven than were known to their philosophy. Censorship hasn't made the producers any more moral. It has merely educated them, considerably to the gratification and the education of public taste.

'SOCIAL SECURITY 1936 ISSUE'

Heroine Saves 4 In Fire

THEN SHE GOES TO SCHOOL

Honors for today's pluckiest girl go unreservedly to Miss Maude Newell of Rutland street, Watertown.

Early today she was awakened by the smell of smoke. Fighting her way through the heavy clouds, she awakened her parents and an elderly couple living on the top floor. Then she collapsed from smoke inhalation.

But there were examinations to be taken at the Framingham Normal School where she is a student. Fire, smoke, collapse—what's that when there are exams.

So today she was at school busy with her tests.

Her father, too, after helping his family to safety, went to the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vail, 70-year-old couple living on the third floor.

Unable to reach them he was forced to flee and reported their plight to Sergt. Devanney.

The sergeant crawled on hands and knees through the building and reached the couple. He assisted Vail to the street and fell, injuring his knee, as he was carrying Mrs. Vail down a stairway to the first floor.

Fosdick Heads John D. Foundation

New York, Dec. 13 (US)—Raymond D. Fosdick, brother of the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Church here, has been elected president of the Rockefeller Foundation and of the general education board of that organization, it as announced here.

The naming of one man to both posts for the first time since the education board was established was explained by the statement that the board plans to expend increasing amounts of its principal funds over a period of years until their possible complete exhaustion

Olvany Shifted, Goes Under Knife

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—George W. Olvany, Jr., who attempted to end his life by shooting at Saranac Lake early Tuesday morning, underwent an operation in Neurological Hospital today.

Although officials at the hospital refused to tell even his condition it was learned the operation was performed a short time after the son of the former Tammany leader was admitted. Olvany was brought to New York today in a special car chartered by his father

Doctor to Be Tried In 'Beeftub' Deaths

Lancaster, Eng., Dec. 13 (AP)—Dr. Buck Ruxton, 36, after a police court hearing lasting nearly three weeks, was committed to trial today on a charge of murdering his wife and their nursemaid.

"I plead not guilty," the prominent physician said when the formal commitment was read.

The dismembered bodies of Mrs Ruxton, mother of three children and maid were found in a Scottish ravine known as "The Devil's Beeftub" last summer

SAILOR'S FORTUNE

Cash to Kin After 21 Years

Located after a hunt of more than a year, relatives of a Swedish sailor who disappeared 21 years ago are to share in his estate of $546 on deposit in the East Boston Savings Bank.

The search was brought to a successful conclusion by Anton B Mortensen, of Everett, former assistant pastor of the Norwegian Seamen's Mission, East Boston

He has been granted authority by the Suffolk Probate court to settle the estate after presenting evidence identifying the claimants to the estate as relatives of the dead man.

Mortenson revealed the sailor Haakon Anderson, handed him $216 in 1914 and asked him to care for it until he returned. Mortenson placed it in the bank where it has more than doubled

"Mary Costa's" Baby Seeks New Mother

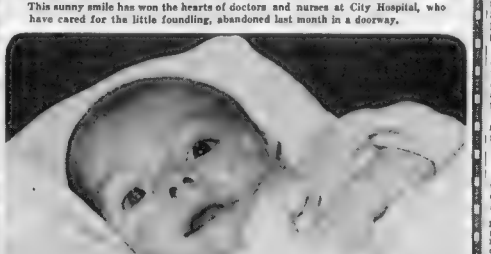
This sunny smile has won the hearts of doctors and nurses at City Hospital, who have cared for the little foundling, abandoned last month in a doorway.



Rather more pensive here, Mary Costa's baby, Dennis, looks forward with misgivings to life as a State ward, unless some kind foster mother claims him.

Baron and His U. S. Wife Finally Part

Both attributed the separation to "insurmountable incompatibility."

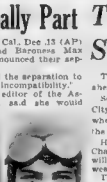
Baron von Romberg



Baroness von Romberg

They were divorced here in February, 1932, but the interlocutory decree never became final because of a reconciliation three weeks after the decree was awarded

Baby Dennis To Become State Ward

The future of a state ward looms ahead for Baby Dennis.

Sometime soon he will leave the City Hospital, his home of a month where he has won the hearts of all the doctors and nurses.

He will be transferred to the Chardon street home and thence he will be turned over to the Commonwealth to become a state ward.

The lad has done well since the day he was found abandoned in a doorway on St. Botolph street Back Bay.

Termed "a perfect baby" when he was found he has continued to live up to his reputation, gaining weight steadily

$3,750,000 Fund To Aid Hospitals

A total of $3,750,000 will be sought beginning next month by the Community Federation of Boston for the relief of 101 hospitals, social service and health agencies

John Wells Farley, who will head the executive committee, said that the campaign would begin January 28 and end on February 10

Estranged Mate Is Suicide by Gas

Leonard J. Gosbee, 36, of Park Hotel, Beverly, was found dead today in the dining room of an unoccupied house in Winthrop street, Beverly, owned by his wife, Mrs. Frances Gosbee, from whom he was separated

Death was pronounced by Medical Examiner Ralph E. Stone as suicide from gas poisoning. Police said Gosbee had attempted suicide three times before

More Girls Study To Be Doctors

This year's freshman class at the Boston University school of medicine has the largest group of women in the school's history—11 in all.

And three of them, Marion Zottoli, Helen Keene and Phyllis Hyman, scoff at man's prejudice against women practicing medicine

The trio aver they will continue practicing in the field of medicine even after marriage.

As spokesman for the three, Miss Zottoli, who is the daughter of Judge Zottoli of the Boston municipal court, said

"It is to be regretted that more women do not take up medicine. Women make just as good doctors as men. A patient has as much confidence in a woman physician as in a male physician. The obstacles, however, raised before women doctors by men are so great as to induce many women to decide against becoming doctors."

Brookline Woman Hurt in N. Y. Crash

Niagara Falls, N. Y. Dec. 13 (AP)—An automobile and a truck crashed head on just north of here today during a heavy snowstorm and Mrs. F. Jerome Tone, Jr., 30 of Youngstown, N. Y., and Mrs. William H. Riddell, 60 of Brookline Mass., her mother, were injured

Both of Mrs. Riddell's legs were fractured, her nose was broken and she suffered other injuries. Mrs Tone, sister-in-law of Franchot Tone, the movie actor, was reported suffering from bruises and shock

JOHN L. FILM SUIT

Kin Seek to Ban Scenes in Bar

An equity bill seeking to ban a film portrayal of the late John L Sullivan as a barroom strong man was on file today in Suffolk superior court

Arthur J. Lennon, administrator of the estate of the former fight champion, brought the action against the distributors of the picture "Diamond Jim," charging that such a portrayal of Sullivan is contrary to fact and degrading to his memory Damages are not sought.

Curley Sees 2 Plans

TOWNSEND'S IDEA STRONG

Governor Curley believes the big issue in the 1936 presidential election will be a "sane social security program" and the Townsend plan.

The Governor made this observation in commenting on the tenor of communications reaching both at his home and at the State House. The grist of mail, he revealed, is in excess of 1500 letters daily.

Because of the tremendous increase in the mail at his home, he has been forced to depart from his custom of reading them personally and has turned this duty over to his secretaries

Heavy Mail

While the majority had to do with jobs, many, he said, concerned questions relating to old age pensions and security.

From talks that he has had with Republican leaders—and he mentioned Charles H. Innes particularly—the G. O. P. is concerned over the advance made by the Townsend plan

He pointed out that in the town of Melrose, for instance, it is reported the plan has 6000 supporters.

In Republican Back Bay, he said, Townsendites have regular meetings, largely attended. Most of these people, he observed, were born in the British provinces.

"So I believe a showdown is due at the next election," he said.

Lauds Pensions

It was his expressed belief that the majority of the people will stand behind the sound social security program prepared by the President as an alternate to the Townsend program, because it provides for the aged, the unemployed, the women and the children

He described the Roosevelt social security legislation as the "greatest forward step" in the history of this country.

The Governor also revealed he has received approximately 2000 requests for Christmas baskets

Gen. Calles Starts Back to Mexico

Los Angeles, Dec. 13 (AP)—General Plutarco Elias Calles, retired "Strong Man of Mexico," took off by plane early today to return to his native land

The former president of Mexico, a question mark in his country's politics since his announced retirement, said his plans were "indefinite," but that he was going either to Mexico City or his ranch in Sinaloa

Manning Freed In Lowell Trial

Lowell, Dec. 13—James A Manning secretary of the Democratic city committee and known as "the King of Centralville," was adjudged innocent of receiving stolen goods by Judge Frederic A. Fisher today.

George Peloquin, 39, and his wife, both of Lawrence street, arrested with Manning on a charge of accepting goods stolen by a gang of youthful thieves from freight cars in the Boston & Maine yards, were found guilty.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

Hot-cha music is about to go arty in a big way. All over the land, groups are organizing to demand that jazz be recognized as the music of the future. This city has its share of the enthusiasts.

George Frazier, Jr., magazine writer, is president of the Boston Hot Club. Rita Church of Braintree is secretary. Park Breck and Edward Barnes of Harvard are active in the group. So is John Hammond, Jr., wealthy New Yorker spending much time in Boston. Leslie Emerson, of old Yankee stock, edits "Rhythm News," the cult organ. Frederick Gibert, B. U. senior, is an ardent propagandist.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

The craze has struck the Ell country, too. Marshall Stearns, president of the Yale Hot Club, is as busy as a bee trying to get new phonograph issues of jazz classics that have been allowed to lapse.

It is the contention of the pioneers that the tempo of the times can be best interpreted in blue jazz.

Among themselves, they refer to it as "barrelhouse music." To please the sophisticated, it must be sweet and low-down!

Borrah Minnevich Seems To Have Made Grade

It's a far cry from Dorchester to Piccadilly, but Borrah Minnevich seems to have made the grade. Advices from London indicate he and his Harmonica Rascals have taken the town by storm. Not so long ago he was seeking one-night engagements at theaters here. Since then he has played the Metropolitan several times.

Puritans they were, and proud of it. But those early settlers who first named Boston streets had more imagination and whimsy than their descendants. When they named a primitive thoroughfare it sounded like exactly what it was!

Winter street, in the olden time, was Bolt's Lane . . . It also was known as Ladies' street, for the little shops where pretties were sold were there . . . Federal street was Long Lane . . . Devonshire was Pudding Lane . . . Hawley street was Bishop's Lane . . . Boylston street was Frog Lane . . . State street was King street, and Court street was Queen street. What is now the Public Garden was then the Round Marsh.

Nearly everybody speaks of him as the "Catnip Man." Standing in heat and cold outside the Old Granary Burying Ground in Tremont street, he peddles his catnip and mullen seed and penny royal, and has made a living at it for 14 years.

He's R. J. Rennick. He votes in Boston, and has a farm in Peabody. There he raises his herbs.

Cat lovers buy the catnip for their tabbies and toms. Penny royal, says the Catnip Man, is good for whatever ails your stomach. Mullen seed is good for footbaths. He has the simple faith of the ancient herbalists in what he sells.

Remember those outlandish autos away back in 1930? The other day, among 500 cars parked in the oval at M. I. T., there wasn't even one. All new and shiny. Brokers might have been the owners!

HOLLAND

FOUR FILM Stars Shine at Orpheum, State

By GEORGE HOLLAND

The light ribaldry of "The Thin Man" is almost captured in mood and dialogue in William Powell's new picture, "Rendezvous," which is current at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

It is a quadruple-starred bill at these famous theaters this week, with two competent deliveries by the film makers in "Rendezvous" and its co-feature, "She Couldn't Take It," and with Mr. Powell, Bill Bill Burke, George Raft and Walter Connolly acting the principal parts.

George Holland

First, about "Rendezvous." Faced by a new leading lady, Rosalind Russell, who hails from Brookline or Newton and made her debut at the Copley Theater, Mr. Powell is the entrancing self as the man-who-couldn't-go-to-lo-wer.

The scene is Washington in the days of the World War Bill Gordon (Mr. Powell), a war correspondent, has rushed back to America to enlist at the declaration of hostilities. But Joel Carter (Miss Russell), whose uncle is Assistant Secretary of War, wishes him to remain within her compass. So Bill Gordon stays in Washington, and becomes the chief of staff of the cryptography department.

It becomes funny from that point on. Bill, irked at his comparative inactivity, decodes ciphers and makes himself uniquely useful to the Allied cause, while Miss Russell (doing almost as well by the role as Myrna Loy could do) manages to keep him excited and annoyed.

• • •

Spies are in and out of the film, and Binnie Barnes is the most attractive of them. Even a German secret agent comes with in the camera's scope and Cesara Romeo distinguishes himself again in this role.

It is Mr. Powell's picture, as it should be. One of the best actors in the business, the human Mr. Powel, extracts laughs and sighs and shudders from the lines and situations created by Bella and Sam Spewack, the conubial pair who last week gave Broadway its new laugh hit, "Boy Meets Girl!"

• • •

Hobo Role Easy for Arliss

By HARRIS MORGAN

Putting aside his historical garments, George Arliss becomes a tattered tramp in "Mister Hobo," on the Keith Memorial screen this week.

For those accustomed to his usual suave and polished characterizations of great figures of history, his role comes as a surprise although, of course, his legion of admirers enjoy him in any part.

When too, he is supported by a cast of agreeable English actors in this lively and sentimental play, the first Gaumont-British production since "The Iron Duke."

• • •

Despite the English cast with its very apparent British diction, the setting is in France and the convincing manner in which the entire story is handled by Mr. Arliss and his supporters is highly creditable.

In this very diverting comedy Mr. Arliss plays an elderly and philosophical tramp who bears the famous name of Rothschild although having no connection with the banking family.

However, his magic name brings him under Fortune's smile and he is literally thrust into the directorship of a bank by those dazzled by the single word Rothschild.

But the hero is an honest tramp and in his new position he finds himself able to right a number of wrongs and reunite a couple of young sweethearts.

And in the end he tosses it all aside to go back to the open road with his youthful hobo companion.

• • •

Mr. Arliss appears to be as much at home in his tatters as in the uniforms and robes of his former characters of history.

Of course, when he becomes bank director, he dons spats, striped trousers and top hat. Even then, however, he retains the picturesque walrus mustache and long hair of the hobo.

Most convincing of the supporting cast is Gene Gerrard, who plays "Fifi," youthful companion of "Mister Hobo." Frank Cellier as Barsac, the dishonest banker, is also very good.

The very pretty Viola Keats is the young heroine of the story, who befriends the elderly tramp and is rewarded by him as he sets out on the open road at the end of his brief dabble in banking.

Gladys Swarthout Awarded Lead in Operetta

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Dec. 13—Gladys Swarthout, one of the most beautiful operatic stars in the land of the Red, White and Blue, will have the lead in "The Count of Luxembourg," the Franz Lahar operetta.

Of course, the picture will not be even considered until she finishes her six weeks' season at the Metropolitan.

Franco Forrester, an American boy who became a European star, is being strongly considered for the role opposite her. Paramount signed him some months ago and they will change his name for the movies. Interesting that Miss Swarthout has turned down a 52 weeks' radio contract because of her desire to continue screen and opera engagements.

Louella O. Parsons

• • •

An intriguing title is "Hell and Texas" and, according to Samuel Goldwyn, the story it tells is even more intriguing. Sam, who is never short on ideas, will feature the formation of the Lone Star State, following the battle with Mexico, in an epic specially written for him by Edward Chodorov and Jane Murfin. It is more than likely that Miriam Hopkins' southern twang will be heard in the lead in this historical drama which deals with Stephen S. Austin's fight for the freedom of Texas.

• • •

I like to think of Patsy Kelly's success on the screen because she deserves it. When she first came to Hollywood from Broadway no role was too small for her to play and every time she appeared she registered a Kelly hit. Now she is a star on her own. Hal Roach has decided that Patsy is important enough to be head woman on his lot. Her first starring picture, "Kelly, the Second," goes into production January 20 with Lloyd Boy Williams was signed for one of the important roles and William Terhune to direct her.

Patsy Kelly

Chatter in Hollywood: Hollywood is wondering if the Janet Gaynor-Al Scott romance is cooling. Janet is seen everywhere with Harold Anderson, a wealthy Los Angeles business man, these days. Anderson has always admired Janet and is generally her escort between her crushes. Janet is said by her close friends to be very nervous about working away from the home lot. Her MGM assignment is her first in a long time away from Fox Hills.

• • •

Snapshots of Hollywood

HARRY RICHMAN admits his intention toward ROCHELLE HUDSON is matrimony; he hopes she will say yes; naturally JEAN HARLOW lunches with CLARK GABLE every day; they are in the same picture and usually eat luncheon right on the set; WILLIAM POWELL is still head man in JEAN'S life; Hollywood has given its usual quota of nobility in town—PETER COLFAX, son of LADY COLFAX, and BIR. MORTIMER THROCKMORTON are being entertained by the younger generation; the SAMUEL GOLDWYNS leaving the very first invitation for a New Year's Eve party; FRANCES MARION'S series of parties for MR. and MRS. JAMES HILTON includes a large tea Sunday; SCHUMANN-HEINK will have her Christmas dinner in Coronado with all of her family; she starts her contract the first of the year at MGM; LOUIS B. MAYER leaving for New York on business; JOSEPH SCHENCK remains in town until after Christmas. CICELY COURTNEIDGE will have a special hairdress sent to her in England; PERC WESTMORE; EADIE ADAMS at Palm Springs recuperating from a bad cold; she will be back as soon as she is well. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Lowe Adds New Film Triumph

Edmund Lowe in "The Great Impersonation" and Jimmy Barton in "His Family Tree" offer a split bill at RKO Boston in the new program and a wide gamut in entertainment.

Barton plays the lead in the film version of "Old Man Murphy."

Lowe in his dual role, Sir Everard Dominey, the young Englishman and Von Regenstein, the cold-blooded spy, is his usual smooth and polished self.

According to the story, the English nobleman is supposed to have been killed in Africa. Von Regenstein, who looks like a twin brother to Sir Everard is sent by the munitions ring as a spy to the Dominey estate.

Sir Everard's pretty wife, Valeria Hobson has become insane because she believes her husband to be dead. However the "spy" is really the genuine Sir Everard and he wins back his wife's love despite the complications offered by Vera Engels, as the princess who is in love with Von Regenstein.

Also in able support of Lowe are Spring Byington as the duchess, Murray Kinnell as a spy and Frank Reicher.

Barton, the former hoofer and comedian plays the part of an Irish saloon keeper who suddenly takes it into his head to close up his business and depart for America. He arrives at Iowa to find that the Murphys have become "Murphrees" and an "Ould Sod" backkeeper is hardly welcome in the local setting.

Well, the son is running for mayor and Mr. and Mrs. Murphree doesn't like the old man to spoil his chances, as she thinks. Her devices for keeping Murphy from making himself at home among the Murphrees are all useless, though she might have known in the beginning.

So there is a happy ending for all and a laugh in Barton's characterization.

Mystery, Comedy, Score

Rollicking light comedy and a Charley Chan hair-raiser are the double features on the Paramount-Fenway screens for the coming week.

"Coronado," although the title may be misleading is centered in California smart place with plenty of night club entertainers. Leon Errol, Jack Haley, Addy Devine, Downs and Burgess, smart hoofers and the good Eddie Duchin band furnish a plentitude of action in the comedy. Berton Churchill again shows what he can do when given a chance.

A knife in the wall is small matter what with seances and spirits everywhere. Incredible Chan is not even slightly annoyed as he traces the murderer of the heir to a large estate.

Herbert Mundin is the foil in the part of a terrified butler. He has to remain in the mansion and makes no secret of the fact that he could think of a lot of other places which would be much more suitable to one of his temperament.

Henrietta Crosby brings a strong willed old lady to life in her part. Nora Lane played as members of the Fourth Estate, Egon Beecher plays his part of dour caretaker and for those who like a mystery play there is little to be desired.

FACULTIES LINE UP ON "OATH" PLEDGES

Steps aimed to bring all their faculties 100 per cent into the fold of the teachers' oath were being furthered by representatives of six prominent Massachusetts educational institutions today.

This became known following a conference the educators held with Attorney-General Paul A. Dever and Dr. Payson Smith, commissioner of education, in an effort to reach an agreement.

Other institutions where some members of the faculty have balked at signing the oath are expected to follow the lead of the six, and it was regarded as likely that very shortly all educators in the state will have signed the bill as prescribed in the law.

Pamphlets written by Professor Kirtley F. Mather, one of the original objectors to the bill and who signed the oath only under pressure from President Conant, were being circulated today.

In it, Mather declares that it is not the oath to which he objects "but the spirit which is behind such statutes."

MRS. PRIOR OUT ON $10,000 BAIL

Mrs. Grace Prior 37-year-old mother, of Linden street, Allston, pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter before Judge John M Gibbs in superior court today.

She was released in bail of $10,000 pending trial. No date has been set yet.

Mrs. Prior was arrested October 27 on a murder charge following the fatal shooting of George Frame, 50, of Ranlou street, Revere, whose body was found in an A ston house.

The murder charge was dismissed November 7 by Judge Thomas Connally in Brighton District court, who ordered a complaint of manslaughter brought instead.

Ontario Woman Must Go to Gallows

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 13 (INS)—Mrs. Tyrrell Tilford, 30-year-old Salvation Army worker of Woodstock, Ont., must hang for the murder of her husband, Premier Leon Pointe, minister of justice, announced here today.

The mother of nine children will hang in Woodstock next Tuesday for the poisoning of her 35-year-old husband, Tyrrell, 35, last April 1.

The woman's lawyers had asked the Governor General to commute her sentence to life imprisonment on the grounds she was insane and because of her sex.

THOSE HUNGRY DEBS

New York Girls Enjoy Good Food

New York, Dec 13 (AP)—There's an unusual thing about this season's crop of Manhattan debutantes. They're hungry and they eat!

They eat praline ice cream with chocolate sauce, a dish many society heads. One of their favorite breakfast dishes is a pot of coffee, a cream cheese and beef sandwich.

Authority for this is Charlotte Hunter, hostess at a debutante coffee downtown. He was asked these questions after some of the society belles were entertained at food at a great rate.

Debs he served on his cafe include Grace Lee Bogart, Jane Hand, Peggy Hitchcock and Ann Rutherfurd. Miss Rutherfurd, she said, does that most on the table of a debutante.

He also said, while on the subject of eating:

That the average woman would gain 30 pounds in one winter if she ate debutante party food without dancing until dawn.

That debbies have a great thirst for champagne, never get enough and almost leap for the trays.

That filet mignon is the "food all and he all" of young men who go to deb dinners.

That appetite on the day after the ball is a thing of the past, and that afternoon reception dinner [illegible] supper party, and finally [illegible] dawn.

Dorgan Files Bill On Minors in Cafes

A law to prohibit minors from that part of a restaurant where liquor is served was filed today at the State House by Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester.

The bill would allow an exception in the case of minors under 21 who are guests at a bona fide banquet where liquor is being served and when a parent or guardian is present. Violation of the act by any member of the firm with whom the minor is residing, the restaurant owners, would be punishable by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

ONE COLLECTION AGENCY BARRED

The attorney-general's office today won the first round in its fight to stop collection agencies from doing business in Massachusetts when Auditor William M. Bratt filed an order of judgment in Supreme Court in the case of World Collection Agency of Lincoln street, Boston.

The order of judgment was consented to by both sides and Assistant Attorney-General Maurice M. Goodman explained to the auditor no penalty would be attached.

"The order states each of the respondents in the case, Mary R. Hevia and James V. O'Neil "be and are hereby adjudged in contempt of court, it appearing that the allegations in the information filed are found to be true.

"That a receiver be appointed to administer the affairs of the collection agency, known as World Collection Agency.

"That the respondents henceforth desist and refrain from maintaining or conducting directly or indirectly, the business of a collection agency."

One important feature of the order is that it prevents the agency from engaging in the practice of law.

It also prevents the company from collection of debts, settling claims, threatening debtors with legal action or representing creditors in bankruptcy proceedings or in assignments.

Harvard Group To Probe Schools

The Cambridge school system will be investigated by a committee of Harvard upper classmen representing the Liberal Club, it was disclosed today.

It is expected that the committee will begin its work the first of next week. Active in the affairs of the Liberal Club is Bruce Bliven, son of the editor of New Republic.

Hull, Jensen Free In One Stock Case

John T. Hull of Leominster, and Andrew Jensen, Jr., Swampscott, were found not guilty today by Judge Sheehan in Suffolk Superior criminal court on charges of conspiracy to steal.

Liggett Inquiry By G-Men Denied

Washington, Dec. 13 (INS)—Attorney-General Cummings today denied the appeal of Governor Olson of Minnesota for an immediate federal investigation of the slaying of Walter Liggett, publisher and editor, who was assassinated in Minneapolis.

Cummings suggested in a telegram if Olson has any evidence a federal offense has been committed he should lay it before U. S. Attorney Sullivan in St. Paul.

I WANT YOU ONLY

By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER 19

You've not had much fun from life."

"I won't live to see your child, Nell, I want to."

"Yes you will! You may live years."

"Oh, God forbid! What does Ricky say that you remain here, leaving him alone? A great wrong is done, Nell. I want you to be legient with him. More is asked than should be of so young a man."

Nell thought of this with tears unshed and burning on her heart. Ricky's promised letters hadn't come. She was angry and proud. She would write no more.

But it was his child. She wanted terribly his adoring care for it.

An April night like this when he had held her in his arms saying with tender flame: "I want you only—Nell. You always."

Just a year ago.

She sat down in a surge of longing: "Ricky, write to me. No matter what has happened, write. I go about in anger and bewilderment wondering why I do not hear.

"Even though you are working early and late, squeeze in a moment for just a few lines. I don't want to stoop to self-pity, but I need you most terribly. I need your strength, your courage, your devotion.

"I can hear any pain, feeling that you still care utterly. That you miss me and want me and all the hours by day or night, your thought and love are mine. Come to me at least in spirit for I think my time is almost here."

Three days passed. The last week in April. Not one word came. A frightful thing happened.

Nell in Tears

Often Nell found herself weeping. Offense still she murmured troubled, forlorn prayers. Let Ricky remain true to her. Let the strang afflicting mystery of silence be cleared.

In her heart she knew it must be cleared. He had not and wouldn't fail her. She stood at her window gazing at the Hudson—a ripple of shiny blue against the bluffs which were all golden now. Snow had vanished.

The waters put away their gay austerity. They were no longer quiet, uncompromising, old as life itself. They sparkled and were young with spring.

Nell thought of the night they had stood in the shadow of the old warehouse and Ricky, holding her close, poured out his hot, beautiful young vows. He loved her madly.

She remembered the luminous white of his face and the ardor of his blue, burning eyes. She felt his lips closing with happy anguish on hers. She was far too young and far too trusting to believe that love like theirs could die.

But with this last week of April started and no money yet sent for March, her faith was sorely tried. She didn't care about the thirty dollars.

She'd have starved for him. Gladly. But her whole being shrank from the thought that he could be deliberately blind to her need.

By day she fought these torments. Triumphantly. But at night she lay exhausted on her uncomfortable bed.

She was so short of breath. She felt ponderous and weighted. She turned restlessly from side to side, knowing that on the blurred edge of consciousness the unhappy images waited. Ricky out dancing.

Ricky at dinners and weekends. Ricky gallant and exuberant in immaculate evening clothes. Having a gay time. And why shouldn't he? He might even feel justified, thinking Vera Holmes would get him a better job.

Even in her dreams Nell fought these gnawing doubts. But she felt let down and cruelly done.

She went one day to help Mamie with the finishing touches for the baby's layette.

The bassinet was a fluttering cloud of pink and blue. Nell fingered the lace along the edge of the basket.

Mamie said: "Won't it be wonderful when we look in and see the little blue-eyed child? Ricky will be so proud."

'I'm a Fool'

"Don't mind me. I'm a fool, Mamie. I went seven letters each day. He only sends me 1. I feel so sorry for myself," she said, sobbing and laughing.

Mamie nearly deceived. Trembling, but incredulous, she got to the root of Nell's worry.

"But I can't blame Ricky," Nell ended. "I've thrown him to the dogs of loneliness and despair for five months. Even my mother says it's a bitter wrong.

"I can't expect him to get excited over a child that isn't born. And I can't expect him to cease being a man, I suppose."

Mamie waved aside all her wounding thoughts. "You DO expect him to be faithful. He will be and 10." said the small gnome-like creature, her face fanatical and lovely with devotion

Nell was comforted. After all there might be a hundred reasons why Ricky couldn't grab a pen and dash off immediate answers to her frantic demands.

No doubt he thought her needlessly upset. And perhaps he was saving the money to send it in a big, surprising sum at the last moment.

Nell got on a bus in the golden April sunshine and rode out to the clinic, where she had an appointment. She sat on the upper deck, wanting the breeze in her face.

She passed Central Park. Cherry trees were in blossom as a year ago when Ricky took her out to see them. Many flowers. White and gleaming. Like a crowd of stars.

They had sat on the bench, happy because of the beauty. Longing for each other. Wondering if the day would ever dawn when they might take their love.

She recalled tears in Ricky's eyes when he drew her to him in that young, hungry embrace. Recalled the strength and pride of his grim boy's mouth

Her trust returned shiningly. Mamie was right. There could be no untruth in the blue of those burning eyes. No disloyalty in that stubborn, fiercely tender heart.

She felt almost gay when she came out of the hospital. She was fine: the baby fine. Not much longer until she would be free again. She'd have her child. She would fly to Ricky.

If the whole world lay dying, she must, at least, see him for an hour, have one look in his face to learn that his love and thoughts were hers. Unerringly and always

It was Monday, the 23d of April. Sun flowed like a stream over the hospital gardens.

Visits Cathedral

She was a little tired and thought she would enter the cathedral. The vast spatial grandeur of the place; the color gleaming from a thousand tapestries, the columns reaching up like a forest of giant trees, filled her with a mingled awe and peace

She felt the self of her, the pettiness and trouble slip away until she was but a note—a faint, lost note in an eternal, endlessly-echoing symphony.

She now stood before the massive, deeply carved door with its noble arch and abundant decoration. Someone caught her arm with a friendly—

"Why, Nell Doran—however are you and where have you been all these months?"

It was Isabel Williams at whose home in Long Island Nell and Ricky had been to the parties.

Heart Disease Cases in Children

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT IS astonishing to learn that more than nine thousand children in New York City's Public elementary schools suffer from some form of heart disease.

Rheumatic fever is the most common cause. Often the heart is impaired as a result of some infectious disease, such as pneumonia, diphtheria or scarlet fever.

Children who are deprived of adequate hours of rest, relaxation, fresh air and sunlight, often succumb to some infection, and heart disturbance may follow. Sometimes the heart condition can be traced to repeated attacks of grippe and tonsilitis. In some parts of the world, as in England where tonsilitis and rheumatism are more frequent, heart disease is quite commonly encountered.

All children afflicted with acute rheumatic fever require prolonged medical attention. Every effort should be made to prevent involvement of the heart. Recovery is slow and in many instances infection of the valve of the heart can only be avoided by prolonged rest in bed.

AVOID FATIGUE

Exposure to dampness, excessive fatigue and undernourishment must be avoided. Where ever possible the child with rheumatic heart should be taken to a warm and dry climate where he will be assured of an abundance of fresh air and sunlight. The diet should be simple and nutritious, containing plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, cereals, milk, cream, butter and eggs.

Children with heart defects must not be considered or treated as invalids. With proper care each can live a normal and comfortable existence. A child may be permitted moderate exercise and not allowed to indulge in certain sports. Restrictions in physical activities should be determined by the physician who is familiar with the limitations of the child.

Announcing A Secret Marriage

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SECRET MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have been married secretly for two months and I am going to announce it very soon. Should I send wedding announcements to all my friends and relatives, or would it be proper for me just to announce it in the paper for my friends and send announcements to my relatives who live out of town?

2—I am going to be given a shower by the girls with whom I work. Should I send little thank-you cards for each gift I receive, or would I have to write them, and if so, how should such letters be worded? W.

1. When there is such a long time between the marriage and the announcement, I think the best way of making the announcement is to tell your relatives and close friends, and write notes to those who live too far away to be told by word of mouth.

There are the people most concerned with this announcement, and after they have been told the news will spread rapidly enough.

It is proper, too, if you wish, to make the formal announcement of a marriage, the date usually this isn't necessary if you make the announcement directly to your relatives and friends.

And your husband would follow the same procedure in making the happy news known to his relatives and friends. Since, when making a formal announcement of a marriage the date of the ceremony must be given, it is obviously less attention-calling if we make the announcement informally

2—We should never send ready-made thank-you cards for any kind of present that has been given us. At the shower you thank for each gift as you open it, and a day or two after the shower you write a note of thanks to each giver of a gift. Thanks for the kind thought, and then shat informally about the gift, expressing your appreciation.

An Unusual Signal

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Among the most trying situations at the Bridge table are those in which it is necessary to guess how to put partner back in the lead.

Among the least known of the signals is that employed by the West player in today's hand.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ A654♡ K17◇ Q85♣ 775 | |
| ♠ 9♡ A10854◇ A96♣ 1084 | North3 ♡4 ♣South | ♠ 832♡ Q◇ 107432♣ J632 |
| | ♠ KQJ107♡ 962◇ KJ♣ AKQ | |

West opened the Ace of hearts hoping to be able to give his partner a ruff. On seeing the Queen drop, his hopes were realized but he knew that his partner would have to guess, after ruffing, how to get back into the West hand for another heart lead

Had West been an average player, he would have given up trying to find a way, and said to himself. "At least he has a fifty per cent chance to guess right"

But West was a very fine player and therefore led the ten of hearts at trick two. East ruffed and recognized the ten of hearts for what it was—a signal to indicate in which suit the reentry was held

West had obviously led his highest heart to indicate that his entry was in a high rather than a low ranking suit.

It could not be spades since the Ace was in the dummy. It had to be diamonds, and West returned the diamond and obtained another ruff to defeat the contract.

Had East been left to his own devices, it is quite possible he would have guessed wrong, especially since the instinct of a good defender is to lead to dummy's weakest suit, in this case the clubs.

HARRY PHONES THAT GIRLS ARE MISSING

CHAPTER 273

A WARNING BELL clanged deep in my consciousness as Katie dropped the telephone receiver and came rushing toward me. Something was afoot which demanded caution.

I knew that from her broken ejaculation over the telephone, "No, I no say," patently in response to a caution not to speak the name of the caller aloud, and "I call her qveeck," after first demurring, "I 'fraid she no can come."

It was with a sense of bracing myself against a physical blow that I turned an inquiring face to Katie as she rushed up to me.

"What is it, Katie?" I asked quietly.

Her answer was in one of the whispers which she fondly believes are inaudible except to the person she is addressing, but which usually can be heard the length of a room.

"It's Meester Underwood He say he no vant to talk to Meesis Underwood, he must talk to you, he no vant Meesis Underwood to know he call. So I say I get you, but vot will Meesis Braithwaite do to me? She say you must not answer telephone or do anytings, you too veak."

THE GIRLS MISSING!

I smiled at my little maid, reassuringly, although my heart was beating a frightened tattoo against my ribs. Harry Underwood knew as well as did Katie that I had been forbidden any activity until my complete recovery. He would not go against the edict unless something had happened to cause him uneasiness about Marion.

"Do I look weak, Katie?" I asked, even as I started toward the telephone. "You did exactly the right thing in calling me. Now don't say anything more, and if Mrs. Underwood comes out of the library and questions you, don't tell her Mr. Underwood is on the wire."

"Me, I fess," Katie declared in another loud whisper. "Yen I vant, I kin lie shoost so fast as vun leetle horse kin trot, und I tink eet goot time now for I do."

My conscience may have protested, but my reasoning faculty agreed with her as I hurried to the telephone, with my brain repeating Lillian's words. "It's almost time for the train from Whitney Hall to reach New York. Harry promised to telephone me the moment he met the girls"

A SECRET FROM LILLIAN

I was almost breathless as I snatched up the receiver and spoke into it as softly as I could. "This is Madge."

"Thank the Lord, Lady Fair, that it's you instead of Lil," Harry Underwood said, his voice rough with anxiety. "Here's the dope But don't make any indiscreet comment. The train from Sackettsville just pulled in, and neither Marion nor Carolyn was on it. I tackled the conductor who knows them, and he says they didn't get on the train at Sackettsville. Where is Lil? Can she hear you talking?"

"No, not for the next minute or two. I'm sure of it."

"Does she know you answered the telephone?"

"No."

"Then," he rejoined, "have Katie tell her that I telephoned the train was a quarter of an hour late, and that I will phone again when it gets in. That was the spiel I meant to give her if she had answered the phone. If Katie tells her, she need not know I've talked to you, and she won't be so anxious. I'll get busy now on the phone to Whitney Hall. Mrs. Barnes will know exactly the reason for the delay. I'll telephone again as soon as I've acquired any news. So long."

"Goodby." I put up the receiver with a shiver, for I knew that big, bluff Harry Underwood was deeply perturbed.

What could have happened to keep Marion and Carolyn from taking their scheduled train? How could I keep Lillian's keen eyes from seeing that I had heard some news? Those were the questions which raced through my brain as I hurried back to my chair.

"Katie," I said in low tones with one wary eye on the library door, "I'm going to lie down over here on the couch and pretend to be asleep. You must tell Mrs. Underwood this—" I repeated Mr. Underwood's message, "and do not let her know that I talked to Mr. Underwood."

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Eye Enchantment

—POSED BY IDA LUPINO

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU CAN think of any more welcome gift than a nice eye kit for the nice light price of only fifty cents, then your imagination is a whole lot better than we suspected.

Personally we can't dream of any more valued Yuletide offering, especially one as ingenuous or commanding. This one too, is brief and simple, but not too simple or brief to give your eyes a glamorous, compelling charm.

There's a wide variety of eye kits these days but certainly none with more appeal than this new arrival. It is sponsored by specialists who have been making eye aids for the last quarter century and who know pretty well what women demand in the way of beautifiers.

The kit contains five of their regular introductory size items—mascara, eyebrow pencil, eye shadow, eyelash tonic cream and an especially designed eyebrow brush.

The mascara is harmless tear-proof and will not smart the eyes. The toning cream (colorless) will not only keep the lashes soft, silky and in good condition, but will actually stimulate their growth. The kit comes in two arrangements—one for light and medium light types, the other for dark and medium dark types.

The whole thing is so compact that it can easily be packed away in a wee overnight case. There are no what-nots to stick out and catch in things, yet inside is a blaze of very useful and lovely eye accessories.

It's all very dramatically simple and effective. Not only would it make a perfect item for the guest dressing table, but as an inexpensive gift — what could be nicer? It is one of those rare things you like to give as well as receive.

To learn the name of this complete eye treatment kit which costs only 50 cents, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What the Stars Say

SATURN RULES HOUSE OF CAPRICORN

BORN in the house of Capricorn, when Saturn rules the skies—that fact explains a lot about the nature and life-path of Marian, according to astrology!

Hugh is telling her all about it, as he locates Saturn in the winter sky.

"People born from December 21 through January 20 come within the house of Capricorn," says Hugh.

"They have every fine, staunch quality, and seldom get the credit they deserve. They are idealists, and refuse to make any effort to produce a good impression. They almost seem to turn somersaults in order to land with their worst foot forward."

Marian has to grin a little. This very afternoon she was blunt and sulky with Mrs. Martin because she suspected that the rich old lady wished to patronize her.

"Can't ask a favor, or even accept one," Hugh goes on. "Full of pride, the Capricornians are. And silent about it. They just build up a wall around themselves and remain behind it, proud and gloomy."

They are both laughing by this time, for Marian now realizes that Mrs. Martin only meant to be kind. Marian really cut her nose off to spite her face. In the future she will try to tone down the super-frankness with which the stars have endowed her.

Astrology has also taught her that a Capricornian is best mated with one from the house of VIRGO (August 21-September 20), and wasn't Hugh born on August 29?

The pair of them have also had an interesting time checking over their names in the light of numerology, and learning what's in a name, for good or ill.

Where do they get all this fascinating information? That's easy. They have one of our 40-page, illustrated Home Institute booklets, NUMEROLOGY AND ASTROLOGY, which describes the character of people born under the various signs of the zodiac, and also explains, simply and clearly, the rules for analyzing names by numerology.

Why Elders Hold Love Lure for The Young

A UNIVERSAL riddle—why do boys and girls so frequently begin their lives by becoming fascinated with women and men old enough to be their parents?

The answer is very simple, but worried parents, who write to this column about these strange fancies of their children, completely overlook this simple reason:

Older people are easier and more comfortable to get along with. They lack the gaucheries of the very young. They know what to talk about. Those agonizing pauses in conversation, when no one knows what to do or say next, are not for them.

The fascination of the mature for the young is like the comfort of a worn shoe. They fit without uncomfortable pressure.

Please don't think that I haven't heard all about "fixation" facts, which, thank Heaven, were more popular as food for discussion a few years ago than they are today. The real reason that boys and girls fall in love with older men and women is that these more mature persons have mastered the art of reducing stress and strain, and not because they resemble mothers and fathers.

A dash of old-fashioned horse sense will show you that a normal boy or girl is glad enough to get away from home, without the incentive of hunting up someone who strongly suggests mama or papa. "Fixation," as an explanation, is a bit old-fashioned today.

There is no introduction to the tender passion like youth and beauty, but these two God-given qualities often fail to hold the interest of adolescents after they have once aroused it.

Two young creatures who are emotionally attracted to each other are apt to be so sensitive, so shy, so confused that they do all the wrong things. Their feelings get hurt—and they meet on the street and hardly exchange a greeting. Each wishes, beyond the power of words to express, to make a tremendous impression on the other—but they lack the art.

The very force of this urge robs them of the ability to take the situation in hand. Time drags. The atmosphere is heavy, and each feels that he or she has been a complete "flop." The torture becomes unendurable, and they drift apart.

The boy may manage a "hello" the next time they meet, but the girl, feeling herself despised, gets a tremendous kick out of sailing by with her nose in the air.

It is then that the older man or woman looms as a refuge. Perhaps the "heartbroken" young creature may go to this older person as a confidante, and find talking out his or her troubles so comforting that he or she will return after the troubles have folded up.

Of course, what young people fail to realize is that all this getting "mad," not speaking, and writing hateful letters to each other, is just a perverse way of making love. And it means, too, that the "dew is still on the rose"—that these young people, in spite of all the censure flung at modern youth, are still artless, guileless, and innocent.

They are so untainted by worldly contacts as not to know the moves of the game. This lovely quality in youth has been the theme of poets and painters from the dawn of art. At the same time, it explains why boys and girls, in the beginning, fall for older women and men.

DEAR ELSIE:

—Says Roxbury Woman

Mrs. Eva G. Shapiro, 24 Harold street, Roxbury writes:

Dear Elsie:

To read "Listen, World!" is to build up a good, common-sense philosophy. Fearless and frank, you write unaffectedly—straight from the shoulder on everyday topic that pry into the soul and human behavior.

You present your message in a personal vein that is appealing and also impressive. And you always "hit the nail on the head" of the theme on hand.

Your keen knowledge of human nature, born of years of experience, render you fit to give advice and inspire confidence.

Reading your articles is a habit with me—one that besides being enjoyable is instructive because of their deep, sermon-like qualities. They make me think!

THERE is a growing trend toward use of the simplest old-fashioned fabrics for the most sophisticated wear. There's glazed chintz, for instance, which fashions some of the most striking evening gowns and beach ensembles of the resort season.

THE NEW spectacle case of shining armor mesh looks like the last word in makeup cases or "mad money" purses, and may be used as an evening bag itself. It's made in a flat envelope style, and comes in a new mesh design with disc links. You may have it in various colors to match your gown, in various gold finishes and in silver.

CANDLEWICK, which was fashionable last season as the ,' in smartness for beach wear, again goes south. Then there's old-fashioned wool challis, which is creating a furore in new and daring swim suit ensembles.

CALICO, in the old turkey red and indigo blue tones, with small white or yellow figures, the same kind grandmother used to use for her "Mother Hubbard" wrappers, appears as the smartest resorts.

Some are quite style and some have skirts, but all have quilted jackets or three-quarter coats, and are made for comfort as well as style.

LOUIS TO K. O. PAULINO—CONWAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
24 BOSTON, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1935

A Joke Now

How About Later?
By Burris Jenkins, Jr.

Uzcudun, Ring Guinea Pig, Submits To Louis' Fistic Test

PAULINO UZCUDUN, the Basque prizefighter who took up failure as a life's vocation and made a profitable success of it, is leasing his pimpled person as a fistic guinea-pig tonight at the New York Garden. This is a form of clinical assault in which the morbid problem is to see whether Joe Louis can knock him permanently silly or whether Paulino can stay, reeling and blind, till the last gong.

Austen Lake

This has nothing to do with the manly art, but is a laboratory test of Louis' punching power and the capacity of the human frame to withstanding sickening shock. If Louis does not bowl Uzcudun over short of the regulation distance, then he will take place with other fighters, like Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera and Max Schmeling, who slashed Uzcudun's face, crumpled his ears and slugged his stout body, yet could not spin him on his stern.

Uzcudun is not much of a fighter as foot-speed and lightning action goes. His one attribute to ring greatness is his ability to soak up slaughter and keep his gold teeth gleaming. Nature has endowed him as a physical freak with a concrete chin, and uncrackable skull and a rubber skin, somewhat on the order of "Punchproof Pete," who was a member of Professor C. C. Pyle's "Astounding and astonishing aggregation of education oddities" during the Century of Progress Fair.

For 25 cents Professor Pyle would allow you to don eight-ounce mittens and swing one right and one left-hand punch at the chin of the rock-jawed marvel, who stood with his feet strapped to the floor and his hands bound behind his back. The rules permitted the durable man to duck, or pivot away from the punches, and though his chin was tagged often and hard, he never wilted and stayed through at least one semester of the Fair, earning his master a nice profit.

"Punchproof" Answered People's Craving

PROFESSOR PYLE MADE MONEY on this exhibit by appealing to the people's craving to sock somebody flush on the lug without any retahation or danger of being socked back again. It was such an opportunity as many citizens, who through timidity or physical lack, had been yearning for all their lives. And the Punchproof Marvel's booth was always lined with waiting customers.

Of course, Uscudun's feet and hands will not be fastened tonight, and he will be permitted to fumble and paw with his padded fists. But against a man of such instant reflexes and jungle instincts as Louis, he may just as well be tied to a tree and worked on with a bung-starter.

Having seen Louis chop down two men who had four times the defensive talents of Uzcudun, I cannot see what will prevent the bout from turning into an abattoir's stucking room within a few minutes after the start. Because Primo Carnera stretched his neck to keep his chin out of line, extended his enormous arms and stampeded around the scaffold last summer, and yet came down with galloping disintegration, his jaws and chest splashed with crimson, and his joints came unstrung.

And Max Baer, though he cupped his chin in the hollow of his shoulder and folded his elbows over his face, did not see the blows that floored him. So that a man like Uscudun, who is inherently dull and clumsy, can hardly be expected to avoid being chewed into unsightly hunks.

* * *

Louis Resurrects Defunct Industry

THE PRIZE FIGHT TRADE, which has been among the nation's bankrupt industries since the money slump, is hailing Louis as its saviour, much as baseball acclaimed Babe Ruth in the critical period after the Chicago Black Sox scandal.

There is no doubt that the Trade, which is largely a Mike Jacobs monopoly by now, has much to thank Louis for. Because he is one pugilist who has stuck to the ring, instead of milking the public cow with bum stage appearances and phoney tilts with stumblebums. His one fear is that he will run out of opponents before nature takes its course and he starts the physical sag that is every fighter's lot.

So that lately, when Jack Sharkey announced his comeback, Louis was almost pathetically eager to name a ring day before something happened to Jack that might prevent the meeting. This amazed Sharkey, who hails from the era when heavyweight fighters ducked, dodged and palavered until logical opponents grew withered from waiting. In fact, Sharkey, instead of suing Louis through the newspapers, found he could have the fight at his own convenience, and cautiously decided to do a little more schoolroom work before accepting.

Uzcudun May Convince Sharkey

THERE ARE SOME PEOPLE who will submit to any torture for a sufficient reward. And Uscudun is one. Yet tonight, after peering from ringside at the clinical slaughter, Sharkey may decide that his professional return is neither sane nor safe and that, after all, he does not wish to stake new fame and fortune against the risk of being belted into a middle-aged goofy, with an imbecile drool and twitchy leg action, like an army of unfortunate martyrs who may be seen around any fight gymnasium.

Being thrifty and economical as only a Spaniard can be, Uscudun is reckoned wealthy according to his country's standards. He does not have to fight and could be living securely on his farmlands. He has a considerable investment in French gold stocks and has bought himself a little pension in American insurance. Yet, having a supreme contempt for suffering and a European's greed for money, he is glad to be a fistic guinea pig for a few minutes and carry off some more of that lovely American currency, to the amount of $30,000.

Yet, I don't think that Sharkey, who is a queer combination of sensitivity and raw ego, has ever thought of himself as a guinea pig. Being at 33 unmarred from the ring wars and worth, perhaps, a half-million in cash and real estate, is is possible that after viewing tonight's morbid problem, his native caution will come uppermost and he will resign the dread experience for reasons of health.

BRAVES In Comeback MARCH

By Joe Cashman

Baseball's annual winter wars are over and observers agree that Boston walked off with the major share of the spoils on both the American and National League fronts.

Using dollars as ammunition, Tom Yawkey, Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin of the Red Sox started their offensive immediately upon reaching the battlefield and gained an advantage they held to the finish.

The Tigers and Yankees tried desperately to stage a counter attack, but when the smoke had cleared away it was found neither had come close to matching the Fenway trio's feat of picking off Jimmy and Johnny Marcus, prides of the Athletics' army.

The Tribe entered the lists without either officers or men. National League headquarters graciously approved the drafting of Quinn from Brooklyn

The Tribal cause still seemed next to hopeless.

Then came the miracle

20,000 to Watch Massacre Of Uzcudun in N. Y. Garden

By Jack Conway

New York, Dec. 13—"Bomber" Joe Louis will knock out Paulino Uzcudun, the grinning Basque, for the edification of 20,000 paying customers in the Garden tonight. It will be the first time Paulino has ever been stopped by enemy gun fire.

The late Ernie Schaaf once had Paulino eating resin in the ring in the Garden bowl, but nobody has ever been successful in keeping the former woodchopper down for the count of 10.

The betting is 10-to-1 on Louis to win. Even a G Man would be unable to find anybody with a stray dollar to wager on Paulino. I think the 10-to-1 quotation was established when Paulino bet a dollar on himself. He felt he could spare this much from his $30,000 purse.

Big Hearted

If Paulino wins his bet he has promised to buy sandwiches for Lou Brix, his manager, and his seconds. The Basque was always big hearted.

Paulino isn't a sure thing to be counted out. It is more likely that the referee will be obliged to intervene after Louis has scrambled Paulino's face around a bit.

I saw Max Schmeling close both of Paulino's eyes with left hand punches. A socker like Louis should close both of the Basque's eyes and drive his teeth against his tonsils.

No matter what Louis does to him Paulino will still grin. He may be unable to see himself even with the aid of a looking glass, but he won't hold any hard feelings towards Louis. He will consider that it was all done in fun.

Money Bores Basque

Paulino says he is fighting Louis because he believes he can defeat the "Brown Bomber." He insists he is rich, and that he hasn't any great interest in the money he will derive from tonight's fistic effort.

I hope nobody suggests to the Basque that he donate his purse to

suggestion might cause him to decide that he feels some slight concern for the $30,000 he will receive in the payoff tonight.

The bout will draw more than $100,000 with a price scale of $2, $3, $4, $5, $10 and $15.

Louis is today the hottest boxing attraction in the world. Jimmy Braddock may be the heavyweight champion, but Louis is the young man who is putting the money into the box office. The "Brown Bomber" is likely to restore the million dollar gate to the boxing game.

Dynamite in Hook

There is dynamite behind Louis' left hook. I consider it his best punch. You will find Paulino opening up after he has been cracked on the whiskers a few times with the Louis left.

Louis is 21 years old, Paulino 36. I like my athletes young. They have the old fire and determination that gets them to the top.

Gene Tunney insists Louis is still a crude boxer. I admit the "Brown Bomber" isn't as finished a ring artist as Tunney was when at his peak, but he is improving with each start, and has a punch that can knock over mountains.

DANNO IN DANGER AGAINST STEELE TONIGHT

O'Mahoney Target as Mat Moguls Seek New King

STEELE TEMPERED TO HOT PITCH

GAEL To Return HOME

MAY GO BACK AS EX-CHAMP

By Ringside

Danno O'Mahoney, world heavyweight wrestling champion, will be fighting with his back against the wall when he meets Ray Steele in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden tonight.

O'Mahoney has won 152 straight bouts since he came to the United States. An organized effort is now being made to defeat O'Mahoney before he is able to return to Ireland with the heavyweight championship.

Steele is one of the best of the challengers. He held O'Mahoney to a two-hour draw in a bout in Minneapolis. He later tossed King Levinsky in 30 seconds in a mixed contest in St. Louis.

Steele Capable

Steele will be able to take Danno's best punch, and also match the Irishman at rough and ready wrestling. Ray is well schooled in every wrestling hold. He will make a stout hearted effort to conquer O'Mahoney and then go on to meet Joe Louis in a mixed bout between a wrestler and a boxer.

This will probably be O'Mahoney's last Boston appearance until the spring. Danno and his bride plan to spend the Christmas holidays in Ireland and will not return to this country before the later part of March.

O'Mahoney has been one of the most active wrestlers the game has ever known, and Jack McGrath, his manager, has decided to give him a rest. He is fearful one of the top challengers might catch up with O'Mahoney on an off night.

Tough Bouts

McGrath will be much happier when O'Mahoney's bouts with Steele and Ed Don George are out of the way. This George bout is booked for New York on next Monday night.

Hans Steinke, German heavyweight will collide with Leo Numa in the semifinal. Steinke is rated as one of the best heavyweights in the world, while Numa recently gave O'Mahoney a hard battle.

Other bouts will include Billy Bartush vs. Stanley Sitkowski; Michael Debres vs. Dominick Petroff; Danny Winters vs. Charley Strack; Dick Raines vs. Floyd Marshall; Count Zarynoff vs. John Spellman and Henri Piers, Holland vs. Chief Little Moose, Oklahoma.

BRUINS Tied 1-1 by CANADIENS

By Universal Service

Montreal, Dec. 13—An overtime period failed to break an one-all deadlock as Canadiens and Bruins fought through 80 minutes of scoreless hockey in an N. H. L. game here.

Both scores came in the first period. Both teams from then on slashed and chopped at each other, mainly at mid-ice.

Leroy Goldsworthy opened the scoring. Babe Siebert evened it up for Boston, when he combined with Shore, O'Neill, Beattie and Wieland.

Louis to K. O. Paulino, Says Jack Conway

They think they can lick anybody, and they usually do.

Paulino isn't aggressive enough to beat Louis. He will be in there tonight trying to protect his iron chin from Louis' blows. The Basque couldn't knock your hat off with his best Sunday punch.

The fighter who will beat the "Brown Bomber" will have to be of the rip-tearing type who will make Louis back away. Louis has to be going forward in order to score with his sharp blows. He cannot punch worth a dime when backing up.

Joe Sets Own Pace

Louis will be able to set his own pace against Paulino. He will be able to pick the spots of his punches, and out Paulino down in a systematic manner.

Louis will leave for Havana, Cuba, following his bout with Paulino. He meets Isidore Gastanaga in Havana on December 20. Then he hops to Chicago for a tussle with Charley Retzlaff, and then waits for his contest with Max Schmeling in New York next June.

It is a pleasant relief to have a fighter like Joe Louis blazing along the fistic trail. The fellow has real ability and doesn't care who he clicks on the chin.

It is Paulino's turn tonight. I hope he doesn't blame his defeat on the fact it is Friday the 13th. After all Louis is more superstitious than Paulino, but doesn't think even Friday the 13th can prevent him from scoring a kayo. Joe says it will be all over inside of six rounds, and I think he is right.

of adversaries, the Tribal chieftains captured Al Lopez, Ray Benge, Tony Cuccinello and Bobby Reis, all from the Dodgers, while they lost only Ed Brandt and Randy Moore in the skirmish.

If you don't already know it Lopez rates among the finest catchers, Benge is an experienced, effective pitcher, Cuccinello is a steady, hard-hitting second baseman, and Reis is a promising young mound prospect who can play a good game of infield, outfield and perhaps contract.

Brandt and Moore aren't losses that can be sneezed at. Lefty Ed had rather a disastrous 1935 season but he remains one of the best southpaws. Moore was a most handy guy to have around.

Yet, when all the returns had been checked and double checked, the opinion was unanimous that the Braves had scored the biggest victory of the three-day Chicago cannonading when they matched wits with the Dodgers.

FORM Vital for SKATER

SAVE ENERGY, SAYS JAFFEE

This is the fourth of a series of articles on ice skating by Irving Jaffee, holder of three Olympic championships and the world's professional title, designed to aid all entrants in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser Silver Skates Derby, to be held at a Boston park location on Sunday, January 26. Readers wishing to obtain any additional information wrote to Irving Jaffee, Boston American, who will answer in these columns.

By Irving Jaffee

The shortest distance between two points is a straight line and in order to make great speed on ice skates one must concentrate on the development of perfect form and coordination of the body.

Note that most champions are not always the brawniest and largest built men or women.

They are the ones who have conquered the fine points of their sport. In other words they learned to get the most out of their systems by the development of the best form.

Form Important

In ice skating those who have learned to co-ordinate their bodies best usually excel. Don't go in for the fancy form and wasted effort type of development that some [illegible]

Get the most out of a minimum of effort, save that extra fancy effort for reserve power that you usually need at the finish of the event.

You will note that in all races the ones who step into the lead early with fancy displays are those who are not to be counted at the finishing line, where the medals and trophies are always presented.

Don't be afraid to bend over when striding on the ice. Get the right shoulder over the right leg and the left shoulder in line with the corresponding leg when striding. This will co-ordinate your weight and help you to increase your speed. Keep your knees together, this helps your balancing.

Clasp Hands

Don't swing your arms unnecessarily after the start of an event. Clasp your hands together, behind your back, to avoid a lax on your heart from this jerky motion, conserve your energy and prevent the wind resistance, which will slow you up when outdoors. Unloose your arms from your back at the finishing spurt of the race and then go for all your worth.

Never look down at the ice, look ahead of you in the direction you are skating. Don't be afraid of falling. Keep relaxed, no tense muscles and a fall will never hurt you.

Reading or studying about sports never made an athletic champion but out and practice, practice and then some more.

HENDERSON

Ray Henderson by winning the 300-yard run in the concluding days' events in the Northeastern handicap track meet, became high scorer with 12 points. On Tuesday he won the hurdles and placed second in the dash.

WORTHINGTON BEST BET

Tuleyries Choice in First Race

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for muddy track)

BEST — WORTHINGTON

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 13—Worthington is asked to carry 116 pounds two miles over a track fetlock-deep in mud in the curtain number, but appears a cinch to turn the trick.

FIRST—TULEYRIES STAR, LUCID, ROLLING ALONG

Tuleyries Star, a superior soft-track performer, gets the call in an affair of this kind. LUCID will have ROLLING ALONG to whip for the place

SECOND—INSCRIPTION, VERITAS, BROMIDE

INSCRIPTION has only to escape trouble in the run to the first turn in order to win this sprint. VERITAS may be along in time to take the place award from BROMIDE

THIRD—INFILEE, FAN, ARDAWN

INFILEE, if able to get postward, stands a royal chance in an affair of this kind. FAN should furnish the contention ARDAWN and HARMOAK rate as named.

FOURTH—PAUL JUNIOR, DARK LOVELINESS, FAIRIO

PAUL JUNIOR is heavily loaded, but must be given the preference in the Bardstown, a mile and one - sixteenth test. DARK LOVELINESS has only to run to morning trials in order to take second money from FAIRIO

FIFTH—JINNEE, CORNER BOY, BILLOWY WAVE

JINNEE, a superior soft track performer, needs only a hustling ride in order to win the closing feature of the 1935 Eastern racing season. CORNER BOY'S recent races should be forgotten. Will have BILLOWY WAVE to whip for the place

SIXTH—IRISH VOTE, PRINCESS WRACK, JIM BROWN

It figures very close between IRISH VOTE and PRINCESS WRACK, but I'm casting my vote for the former. JIM BROWN may come to life and trim the others for the small end of the spoils.

SEVENTH—WORTHINGTON, BROWN WREN, MISS CATALAN

If anything upsets the dope and downs WORTHINGTON it will likely be BROWN WREN. MISS CATALAN will be running at the close and should be up in time to save third money.

By The Associated Press

Charley Stevenson, making a strong bid for 1935 jockey honors, is transferring his riding activities to New Orleans from Bay Meadows. He was expected today at the Fair Grounds, where he will ride until After Jan. 1, when he will jump to Miami, Fla.

Stevenson has booted home 178 winners to tie Joe Wagner of Lexington for second place. The pair still trail Wayne Wright of Toledo by nine by four.

Nominations for the $20,000 added Florida Derby, to be run at Hialeah Park in March, will be published Sunday, Charles J. McLennan, racing secretary, announced. Entries for the winter three-year-old classic, the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup, and the Nursery Stakes No. 1 and No. 2 closed Monday.

The minimum purse of $500, instead of $400, will be in effect at Alamo Downs winter meeting, Jan 1 to Feb. 22. There also will be three $600 purses daily and a daily feature of $700 or more.

Fourteen horses make up the racing contingent which E. E. Bergam, Canadian sportsman, will campaign in Florida this year. Headed by the handicap performers, Stand Pat and Biography, they are a part of the 700 thoroughbreds already quartered at Hialeah Park, where the meeting opens Jan 16

Notre Dame Asks Owen to Explain

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 13 (INS)—The Reverend John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame, today awaited clarification of the apology of Professor George S. Owen, Sr., of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who last Tuesday declared that many universities in the United States, including Ohio State and Notre Dame, hired football players.

Notre Dames demand for an apology was complied with by Professor Owen in a telegram Wednesday, but later in newspaper accounts the professor was quoted as qualifying his apology by stating:

"If my charges did not apply to Notre Dame, I apologize, but keep your eye on that 'if'."

Father O'Hara's second telegram to Prof Owen stated:

"We have no desire to prolong your embarrassment, but the newspapers quote you as emphasizing the 'if' in your telegram to me. I accepted your statement as sincere. Please clarify your position by unqualified avowal or withdrawal of any statement you have made derogatory to Notre Dame University or its coaching staff. The alternative is that proposed in my previous telegram, namely proof of alleged accusations."

ALPINE Town for OLYMPICKS

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Dec. 13 (US)—This town which will be host to the fourth Olympic winter games from February 6 to 16, lies 60 miles south of Munich.

It is a typical Alpine town, with the familiar little church steeple dominating the slant roofed pine-wood houses and the hills around thick with fir and pine trees.

For many years Garmisch has been the center of German winter sports. A number of big mountain hotels and the whole industry which caters to winter sports has been set up and developed.

Visitors to this year's winter Olympics will be encouraged to indulge in winter sports themselves. Three mountain railways are available to carry skiers up to the mountain tops from which they can ski down to the town. There are eight separate lakes for skating or ice-boating and scores of skating rinks.

There will be no profiteering at this year's winter Olympics. By order of the Ministry of Economics the prices charged for board and lodging, including service, must not exceed those of 1935.

Bruins Win First Point on Road

TEAM ASSIST ON GOAL

By Bill Grimes

Having wound up in a 1 to 1 deadlock with Les Canadiens in the Montreal Forum, the Bruins are on their way back home highly elated over winning their first point on the road this season.

They figure that if they could hold the Flying Frenchmen to a draw in Montreal, they'll do a real job on them in the Garden Sunday night.

On Babe Siebert's tieing goal, every Bruin on the ice except Tiny Thompson was credited with an assist.

Only on rare occasions do the New York Rangers open up in overtimes even when they're one man up, but last night they pulled the old surprise play on the Americans and tallied three times in the extra period.

The Detroit Red Wings, pinned the Blackhawks' ears back to retain a half interest, with Rangers as their partners, in second place of the American division.

Fights No Help

About all the Cubs derived out of their game with the Rhode Island Reds was a free meal, for they lost their eighth game in 11 starts to Manager Albert Leduc's charges . . . They did, however, do some promotional work for future conflicts by staging a couple of free-for-alls.

Hockey magnates have a complex that if their teams are in a slump the fans will continue to slide their money through the box office windows just as long as they figure there's a possibility of a free-for-all developing . . . They may be right, I wouldn't know . . . But, I do know that if the foundation of hockey is based on free-for-alls it will not be long before the game will collapse

Although I've been around hockey for many years, I've never been able to understand why the players go for those fight build-ups.

It's very dangerous to steam up 30 hockey players, each and every one armed to a strong piece of second growth elm, and sooner or later some poor unfortunate will have his skull crushed and then the reformers will step in and demand formers will step in and demand ing conditions as to ruin the game

Ross Rineer and Dave Trottier have not hit their 1934-35 season's form for the Montreal Maroons and Manager Tommy Gorman is seriously considering the advisability of recalling "Toe" Blake from the Rhode Island Reds and Sammy McManus, who is out on loan to the Philadelphia Ramblers

"Toe" Blake is a Frenchman and his right name is Blace . . . He derived the "Toe" from the French fans, who in their excitement call his given name Hector to "Toe."

Manager Red Dutton has decided that the "Kitty-Bar-the-Door" type of hockey is more suitable for his Americs, and he has ordered Nels Stewart to be the key man of the defense by playing on the "A's" blue line . . . Until he broke through against Toronto, Stewart had not scored a goal this season . . . Nels has been far too successful for any coach or manager to attempt to tell him how to play center ice

Bill McKenzie, who is Maroon property, was to have played with Manager George Boucher, but, having a girl in Windsor, refused to join the Springfield Indians.

Bill Miller, who is trying to break into the Maroon lineup, hails from Campbellton, N. B., where his father is a wealthy lumberman . . . Bill is very regular, despite his wealth and is very popular with the Gar-men

Patsy Sequin

There is a mite of a goal tender playing for the Montreal Royals by the name of Patsy Sequin . . . Judging from his size and looks he must be related to the Patsy Sequin who starred with the old Arena A. C. team.

Manager Silvio Mantha has the blame for three of the defeats his club has suffered this season on poor officiating . . . He thinks — and out loud—that the referees are giving Les Canadiens the worst end of the officiating

During the recent Canadiens-Detroit game, one of Jean Pusie's shots broke the blade of Norm Smith's goal stick . . . It now looks as though the team which will represent Canada in the coming Olympics will be an all-star club . . . In the past, Canada sent its strongest clubs to the Olympics and has a record of four straight world's championships, as a result of the success of the Falcons, Granites, Varsity-Grads and Winnipeg . . .

Mr. Boston Sharkey May Fight In London

By JACK CONWAY

SPEAKING of news: Jack Sharkey may go to London to battle Jack Peterson. The promoters at the Wimbledon Stadium believe the bout could attract a gate of $150,000.

• • •

If Sharkey goes to Europe, he will also box in France, Germany and Spain.

• • •

The recent bout between Brouillard and Marcel Thil in Paris drew $30,000. A return bout for the world's middleweight championship next February is expected to do $60,000. Proving that boxing is well on the way back in Europe.

• • •

The Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser received $935 as its 10 per cent share of the gross receipts of the indoor football game between the All Notre Dame eleven and College All Stars at the Garden.

SHUCCO FIT

TONY Shucco will be in the best condition of his career when he defends his titles as New England light heavyweight and heavyweight champion against Al McCoy of Dorchester in a 12-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at the Garden on next Friday night.

Shucco has been training for two weeks. He has been building up speed as he figures his boxing ability and speed will be his greatest assets against the aggressive, hard hitting McCoy.

• • •

THE NEXT few days will settle the future of youthful Danno O'Mahoney as far as the wrestling game is concerned. A concerted effort is being made by some of the mat bosses to knock O'Mahoney from his wrestling throne before he returns to Ireland.

• • •

Ray Steele, who clashes with O'Mahoney at the Garden tonight, has the backing of Tom Packs, Ed White and other Western promoters. They would like to see Steele the top man in the wrestling game. They believe that with Steele champion they could arrange a return bout with Joe Louis provided the latter wins the heavyweight boxing title from Jimmy Braddock.

• • •

Jim Londos would also return to the mat wars if Steele were champion. He figures he can defeat Steele, but doesn't want any part of O'Mahoney.

• • •

If Steele wins from O'Mahoney tonight, Jack Curley, New York promoter, will receive a body blow. He has O'Mahoney wrestling Ed Don George at a Christmas Fund show in the New York Garden next Monday night. Curley will try to substitute Steele against George if the former wins tonight.

• • •

Early in the summer a Curley promotion between Londos and Chief Little Wolfe was knocked over when O'Mahoney defeated Londos in Boston. Curley was fortunate in being able to get Danno to meet Chief Little Wolfe.

Cochrane Takes Job Foxx Wants

By Jimmy Foxx
(As Told to Austen Lake)

CHAPTER FOUR

It seems a small lifetime ago, though it is only 11 years, when I first joined the Athletics. I wish I could describe my feelings when I first walked into Shibe Park and looked around the acres of green painted stands.

Until then I had never been in a major league ball park, and had never seen a major league game.

Connie—we always called him Mr. Mack to his face, but he was just Connie when the players talked together—looked me over in that grave, quietly quizzical way of his.

"If you're as good a prospect as Frank Baker says you are," he said slowly, "you will go a long way. You're big and young."

Sits With Connie

And next day I was sitting beside Connie on the bench while the Athletics played Detroit. Here I was a corn fed kid just off the farm beside the Great God Connie—a man who had hitherto been a remote deity who lived only in the sport pages.

My joys and sorrows through the rest of that particular season with the Athletics are of no special importance to the present subject. I was only a young catcher trying to make a place for himself on a famous major league team, and the breaking in process was tortuous and slow.

Most of my service was seen in the ball pen where I warmed up the pitchers. I kept my eyes and my ears open and learned much of baseball, but the playing season was already far advanced and I contented myself with being a bench warmer, and looking ahead to the following year.

And at last that year arrived. That was the season of 1925 and I went south with the team to Fort Myers for spring training with exceptionally high hopes.

There was one, in particular, who soon gave evidence that he was going to furnish plenty of opposition to my ambition to do any backstopping for the Athletics. He was a red-faced, stocky kid with bushy hair and a pair of loving cup ears, whom the boys promptly nicknamed Mickey because of his peppery chatter and never-ending action.

Cochrane!

That was Cochrane, of course, and the fellow who was the real cause of my being changed from a catcher to an infielder.

Two-a-day sessions with the bat and in the field, often snatching our dinners in uniform and blazing away in the hot March sun of the semi-tropics. I soon saw by the way Cochrane was taking hold that my chance to win a regular berth as a catcher was quietly evaporating into thin air.

And so I took counsel. "Jimmie, me boy," I said to myself, "if you are going to make the big parade it is with the bat. If you can hit, they'll make a place for you somewhere."

So I hit, and I hit, and I hit.

Continued Tomorrow

IRAMERK Bouts on Monday

Boxing enthusiasts have fun ahead on Monday night at the Boston Arena, when the Irish-American A. A. will stage the finals of the Diamond Belt Championships of 1935. Competition will be held in eight classes—from featherweights to heavyweights with a total of 24 bouts.

Battle as Wings Top Hawks, 3-1

Chicago, Dec. 13 (US)—In a hockey game that wound up as a battle royal, the Red Wings defeated the Black Hawks 3 to 1.

The explosion of fisticuffs came in the latter part of the final period when Goalie Karakas made a diving save, only to have a flock of Wings and Hawks pile up on him.

TECH ICEMEN Tackle Brown

The trampled Tech hockey team left this morning for Providence, where it will stack up against Brown tonight. Coach George Owen hopes to break the jinx that has allowed R. U., Princeton and Harvard to pile up a total of 25 goals in the first three opening games.

Bill Shea, star center of the sophomore line, will not be able to play because of an injury.

Christmas Basket Fund

Something MUST be done to answer the thousands of appeals for Christmas baskets! Will YOU do YOUR part in this practical Christmas aid?

Despondent, jobless fathers silently pray for work, or food, that their dear ones may have at least one day's deliverance from the dungeon of depression and hunger.

And the bitter cold of winter that closes down like a pall on poverty-stricken homes, where even a faint flicker of warmth is as precious as molten gold.

All too true are these pictures—and YOU can change them. Such suffering must not, CANNOT be—at Christmastide.

NAVY YARD BAN HITS WATER ST.

Despite the fact that no complaints have been made to Charlestown police, navy yard authorities have issued orders to personnel at the yard to stay off Water street at night.

During the past three weeks, it was said several brutal attacks have been made on navy men and civilians in Water street, and one man died from injuries received at the hands of thugs.

In the future, Captain Harold E. Cook ordered navy men to use Wapping street when approaching the main gate of the navy yard at night. Two marines will be stationed outside the gate to keep loafers, thugs and drunks off Warping street, he said.

David P Donahue, a postal clerk, died Wednesday from a fractured skull inflicted by thugs while he was walking in Water street on his way home.

Martha Lee's Chat

Vegetables on Menus

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

Market lists this week-end tell us to buy parsnips, onions, and carrots—vegetables that are abundant and inexpensive. For there has been a surprising rise in the prices of some vegetables, namely, beans, Brussel sprouts, cauliflower, cucumbers and tomatoes.

A word in praise of parsnips—a vegetable which was for so many years the main standby of winter meals before green vegetables became available all winter long that it has come to be held in disrepute. Parsnips have a delightfully different flavor, can be cooked in a variety of ways and combine most effectively with veal. Boil them and serve them plain or saute them or make into fritters.

Our favorite way is to saute the cooked parsnip by slicing it dipping in seasoned flour and sizzling gently in butter until a golden brown crust has formed all over.

A continued decrease in the price of pork loins and chops is good news to all, for this highly prized meat now reaches more normal levels and can be served more frequently than in the past several months. As pork prices have decreased, prices of lamb have increased.

Here are two menus easy to prepare, suited to either family or party meals worked out for pleasing flavor and color combinations:

Tomato Juice Cocktail
Veal Paprikas
Fluffy Rice Sautred Parsnips
Tossed Green Salad
Rolls Butter
Lemon Tarts
Coffee

Pan-Fried Pork Chops
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Onion Sauce
Carrots, Vienna Style
Broccoli with Melted Butter

Hanson, Dec. 13—Troubled by illness for some time, Stanley F. Shaw, 65, formerly a well-known novelist and short story writer, shot and fatally wounded himself in his home here, police said today.

AUNT ALLOWED TO KEEP BOY

New Bedford, Dec. 13—John Perriers, 8, is probably New Bedford's happiest boy today and his aunt, Mrs. John Perry, is the most overjoyed woman in the city.

Together for the past four years since his mother's death, the boy and aunt were threatened with separation when welfare officials decided to send him to his father in California.

Mrs. Perry had lost her job and officials feared the boy would become a public charge. But neighbors and friends intervened and secured temporary guardianship of the boy for her.

And now Mayor Charles Ashley is interested in the case. He has promised to find a job for Mrs Perry.

NEW MILK WAR LOOMS IN N. E.

Possibilities of a milk price war as a result of opposition of some dealers to the equalization fee and the base rating plan of the proposed AAA agreement loomed in New England today.

No definite statement of policy was offered by any dealers as the AAA hearing at the State House closed but several expressed their opposition to these two features of the agreement as unworkable.

Judge George Thompson of the Bellows Falls Cooperative Creamery Association charged that equalization, declared "void and unenforceable" by the courts last May, had cost New England farmers $1,250,000.

LEWIS HANEY ON TREND:

Industrial Curve GOES UP IN NOVEMBER; Steel Outlook Good

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

New York, Dec. 13—Although showing a little loss of momentum, the curve of industrial activity continued to rise in November. On the whole, the figures now available for the month make a favorable showing, and warrant hopes that the rising trend will continue.

To begin with, average daily steel production was up more than usual for the month, and this gain was accompanied by a rise in pig iron production. These two related industries were in good balance, at around 71 per cent of "normal."

While shipments of United States Steel Corporation were off a little, and this suggests some stocking of crude oil, the outlook for this great basic industry remains good.

Production of zinc rose to the highest level of the year, as did zinc shipments. Stocks of zinc were further reduced, while unfilled orders gained. This is a very favorable indication.

* * *

The decline in building permits is explainable on seasonal grounds. Anyhow, the figure was the highest for any November since 1931.

Construction of non-residential buildings actually increased. Since the volume of the heavy engineering type of construction (which includes public works) was lower, this probably means industrial building.

Rents have been rising, and have gained considerably on building costs, so one may infer that the outlook for residential building is improving.

One fly in the ointment is the continued backwardness of railway freight traffic. According to my estimates, shipments by rail declined in November just about as much as usual. This is not bad, since it means that the recovery of the preceding three months was held. But railway traffic has hardly risen in proportion to industrial production.

* * *

The distribution of goods at retail, however, came back nicely in November. Figures for 530 department stores in 251 cities show a sales greater than usual for the month. In comparison with October, the adjusted index rose from 77 per cent of the 1923-25 average to 80 per cent.

It is notable that the sales returns were less spotty, the gains being general throughout the country. Trade reports indicate more diversified buying, and interest in higher priced merchandise.

This is evidence of increased "purchasing power." One could wish that less of the "purchasing power" were government bonuses and work doles, but part of it is increased employment and earned farm income.

Somewhat surprisingly, New York State factories report a 1 per cent increase in employment and a 2.7 per cent decrease in payrolls. These declines are a little greater than usual, but that may be due to the more general observance of the Armistice Day holiday this year.

It is to be noted that metal industries continued to show increased employment, including automobiles and parts, brass and copper steel works, and instruments and appliances.

* * *

Commodity prices rose a little during November. A typical bill of goods at wholesale which cost $102.83 in the beginning of the month cost $104.03 at the end. This was chiefly due to higher livestock, provisions, textiles and metals. Many political and international uncertainties, however, caused much irregularity, and prices have recently sagged irregularly.

Of course, living costs rose. One estimate is that the typical expenses of a low-income family were 0.5 per cent higher in November, chiefly on account of food.

According to the government's November figures, if your retail food bill was $328 in 1932, it rose to $354 in 1933, $375 in 1934, and $407 in 1935.

Supply seems to have gained on demand, and that a little hesitation in business would normally be expected to follow.

LONDON Baffled on SILVER

CAN'T FATHOM U. S. TACTICS

By WYLIE KING
London Financial Times
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

London, Dec. 13—The London silver market remained an annex of Washington today.

Dealers did not fix the silver price until late yesterday, when the United States took an estimated 18 per cent of the silver marketed at a price of 26⅞ pence, down ⅝ pence.

It was rumored that Eastern speculators own 50,000,000 ounces on deposit in London. There were no forward dealings.

The United States' silver tactics, incomprehensible in London, are causing anxiety lest they have a disruptive effect on the Chinese and Mexican economies.

New Arbitration Committee

By virtue of an amendment to the constitution of the Boston Stock Exchange, an arbitration committee of five has been created which includes in its membership two non-members of the Exchange who may be considered as representing the public.

These two members are A. C Webber, member of the Massachusetts department of the Public Utilities and Roger Amory, well known Boston trustee

The other three are members of the Boston Stock Exchange, namely, Charles A. Colling, chairman, Stephen Paine and William B. Long.

The three Exchange members will act on a committee to investigate and decide differences arising between members of the Stock Exchange.

The full committee of five will investigate and decide differences arising between persons outside of the Exchange and Exchange members.

CURB STOCKS Work Higher

New York, Dec. 13 (INS)—Curb stocks worked moderately higher in rather dull trading in early dealings. Mining shares were fairly strong and active but the list held in a narrow price range for the most part.

Pittsburgh & Lake Erie fluctuated considerably, dipping ¾ at the opening, climbing to almost a point net gain and losing the advance on the next sale. The earnings statement issued for October was favorable.

New Haven Loadings

Freight car loadings originating in 34 Connecticut cities on the New Haven Railroad for the month of November showed a gain of 19.2 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934. The total was 8,178 cars against 6854 last year.

New England Trade Above Year Ago

New England trade is running above a year ago on consumer buying of necessities, luxuries and holiday goods, combined with the slow rise in call for materials in industry, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said in its weekly review of business conditions.

Woolen mills continued at a high rate with prices of raw wool well maintained. Government orders were the strongest single factor in new business, according to the survey.

There was a good demand for gray goods for staple and fancy lines of cotton cloths, with the market for all grades of finished goods better at steady prices.

CLEVELAND Iron Net $911,435

Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. reports for nine months ended Sept. 30, 1935, consolidated net of $911,435, equal to $1.87 a share on 487,343 no par shares of $5 preferred.

Current assets Sept. 30, 1935, including $1,511,873 cash, were $12,532,220, and current liabilities, including $23,946,971 collateral trust notes due Oct. 23, 1935, and extended conditionally to January 23, 1936, aggregated $26,805,196.

Wall St. Sidelights

New York, Dec. 13—Expansion in power production to new high records almost weekly for about two months indicates the total is likely to attain 2,000,000,000 k. w. h. for a single week before the end of the year.

With a reasonable break in the weather and maintenance of present commercial activity there is a strong possibility that this mark will be attained before the first time in the industry's history.

Output the first week this month was 1,969,662,000 k. w. h., which was about 18,000,000 k. w. h. more than in the preceding high record week this year. The high volume week of the year normally occurs the third week of December when consumption increases, due to pre-Christmas night shopping and window lighting.

Last year the third week this month used 44,000,000 more k. w. h. than the first week of December.

Commodities Hit By Silver Decline

Unsettled market for several major commodities this week is attributed almost unanimously by Wall Street observers to the acute situation in silver.

There were unconfirmed reports yesterday that several large foreign speculative positions in cotton and wheat had become weakened by the crash in silver and were being liquidated for protection.

At the same time the financial viewpoint contends that there is even a closer interrelation between the commodity price structure and the silver program.

It is contended the latter was adopted as part of the scheme to restore commodity values to the 1926 levels and primarily designed to raise prices.

While there is no way of determining what particular selling has been the most effective, it is argued the trend of one commodity reacts on others to almost the same extent as offtimes is the case in securities.

* * *

'Reorganization' Bonds to the Fore

As the Cotton Belt reorganization decision was announced yesterday, Wall Street turned its attention toward other reorganization bonds. Estimates of what would be the outcome of several situations carried the bonds involved to further heights.

One broker averred that even the most drastic reorganization than must generally value in excess of existing quotations for the Bi-furcated Mercantile obligations.

Improved earnings, he asserted, are likely to show such sharp improvement that the negotiations of a reorganization agreement is made considerably easier.

Chicago & Northwestern bonds had not paid much heed to the statement by the road's president that if earnings continued to improve in a normal way, it might not be necessary to reorganize its capital structure.

On reorganization bonds like the Richfield Oil 6s the opinion was voiced that they are a suitable medium only for those willing and able to forego an income in order to gamble on future price appreciation.

AGREEMENTS Imports Greatly Aided

Up to the present time seven nations have concluded reciprocal trade agreements with the United States under the Administration's policy of expansion in our foreign trade.

Four of these agreements are in effect. Our Canadian and Brazilian pacts become effective Jan 1, 1936. No date has been set for the inauguration of our agreement with Colombia.

This chart concerns, first, our trade with Cuba, Belgium, Haiti and Sweden, the four nations with whom we have been trading on a reciprocal basis for a varied number of months.

Our Cuban agreement became effective in September, 1934. Comparing figures for the first eight months of 1934 with the same 1935 period, our exports to Cuba increased 39.5 per cent, our imports from Cuba were up 11.6.5 per cent, and the total trade gained 84.8 per cent.

The Belgium agreement became effective in May, 1935. In the five months following, compared with the same 1934 period, our exports to Belgium rose 7.3 per cent, our imports increased 50.3 per cent, and the total was 24.2 per cent higher.

Our exports to Haiti in the four months since the effective date (June, 1935) increased 22.2 per cent, imports dropped 13.2 per cent, and the total rose 10 per cent.

In the two months since the Swedish agreement (August, 1935) our exports to that country compared with the same 1934 months gained 17 per cent, imports increased 16.9 per cent, and the total rose 9.5 per cent.

With the exception of Haiti our imports from these countries increased more substantially than did our exports to them.

The chart next compares the changes in our trade with these four countries, compared to the changes in our total world trade. In the first nine months of this year our exports to all nations increased 0.6 per cent from the corresponding period of last year.

At the same time our total imports rose 21 per cent, while the value of exports and imports gained 9.5 per cent.

Excluding our trade with the four "reciprocal trade nations," we find that our exports to the world in the nine months' period decreased 0.5 per cent, imports increased 17.7 per cent, and the total gained 7.8 per cent.

NATURAL Economic FORCES

"NEW DEAL" EXCESSES

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

New York, Dec. 13—The recoil of business interests from the excesses of the "New Deal" has created a new fashion of extolling natural economic forces.

Furthermore, efforts should be made to modernize economic machinery within the framework of the Constitution and the American system rather than through European planning our setup.

But it is a truism that in our modern complicated society the government must continue to play a substantial role—at least as policeman.

* * *

The real issue is not between conscious control and natural forces, as commonly stated, but rather whether management is to be exercised by private initiative or by bureaucrats.

Likewise, on the high cost of government, it should be recognized that taxes represent a transfer of purchasing power from individuals to bureaucrats. The question for the people is how much they want to deprive themselves of purchasing power in order to turn it over to public agencies.

But in a world of tariffs, regulatory commissions, high taxes and well intentioned but ill-timed private management, it is archaic to talk of the free interplay of natural forces.

The essential problem of management is the large lag in balance output with demand, and to create the conditions of a balanced economic life under which there can be the freest circulation of goods and services.

Brokers' Comment

Paine, Webber & Co.—Stocks are now confronted with an important test of their underlying strength or weakness. At the moment it looks like the impending test will be unsuccessful and that new leg on the down side will materialize barring only the possibility of some more important and favorable news development of a general nature. Before delaying new trading purchases.

Josephthal & Co.—We doubt that the reaction goes much further and are inclined to feel that yesterday's low will hold, but in view of the uncertainty caused by the break in the silver market we would play safe and confine any new commitments to carefully selected stocks such as the oils, certain merchandise stocks and the rails.

Shields & Co.—The market continues to evidence that the only reason it does not go higher is to lose positions. This condition will remain unchanged so long as the trade continues to keep large holders of stocks from taking profits. Year-end influences, together with existing factors of nervousness, can cause spasmodic unsettlement but do not change the bullish prospects for the pull.

Hornblower & Weeks—Until a sustained reversal in the recent down trend is indicated, we would continue to treat rallies from the point of view of their being minor affairs.

J. S. Sachs & Co.—The promising business picture encourages the view that the irregular phase which has been in progress since November 29 represents but a temporary interruption to the market's major upward course.

Elects TWO NEW Directors

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The National Shawmut Bank of Boston announced today that two new directors were elected yesterday at a meeting of the board.

They are O. M. W. Sprague, holder of the Converse Professorship of Banking and Finance in the Harvard School of Business Administration, and A. N. Madison, Boston trustee and real estate executive.

Dr. Sprague has had an interesting career. His connections range from professor of economics at the Imperial University of Tokio, then back to Harvard, from which he graduated, thence on to the position of financial adviser to the Bank of England. In 1933 he returned home at the request of President Roosevelt to become our currency aide. After a time he again returned to institution at the business section

• • •

Mr. Madison, in contrast to Dr. Sprague, has long been closely identified with Boston affairs. He is a partner in the firm of George L. DeBois and A. N. Madison, trustees and managers of real and personal property. He is vice-president and director of the Bay State Mortgage Corporation, Fifty Associates and a director of the Fiduciary Trust Company. He is also vice president and director of the Lexington Co-operative Bank and the Lexington Home for Aged People, as well as a member of the investment committee and a trustee of the Home Savings Bank, and a trustee of the Kimball Building Trust and the Dix-Atwood Real Estate Trust. At present Mr. Madison is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Bits O' Gossip: While we are on banks here is an item the savvisleights we heard . . . The savings in interest on certain types of deposits is proving a powerful aid in offsetting loss of income through reduction of interest on investments and contraction of loans . . . Twentieth Century Fox is given a boost, here and there . . . The new picture the company is making of the epic Dupees is in great demand they say . . . And the recent housecleaning of the film office is also in order . . . Twentieth Century Fox is given a boost, here and there . . . The new picture the company is making of the epic Dupees is in great demand they say . . . And the recent housecleaning of the film office is also in order

The market . . . improved the lows of last week and closed the week for the most part on optimistic notes . . . We will do if the sellers succeed in forcing new low . . . Indications are, however, while last week's lows are important they are minor compared to 1937 levels corresponding with 138 on the Dow-Jones 30 industrial average. The latter is a big point. If it is broken a while of about 8 additional average points is a fair reasonable expectation. Breaking of last week's lows then simply implies a test of 8 nearly important price levels . . .

• • •

Technical Action: However, if sellers fail in their attempts to break last week's low prices a good rebound may be in the offing . . . We would pay particular attention to rails, steels, oils and rubbers . . . And if a level of 138 does develop we would watch for signs of failure by sellers and then favor the same groups . . . Now if a slide of fair proportions does ensue, we will ride it out . . . Those who do not care to follow this course should place stop loss protecting orders at prices corresponding to 138 on the industrial average . . . Then stand one side or wait for a new buying indication.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Edward K. Moore, 17, is the artistic adventurer who made this interesting pen and ink study of our story sleuth.

Edward lives at 33 Juniper Street, Brookline, and, judging from this specimen and several others we have seen, we would say that he has very definite ability with the drawn line.

Many thanks, Artist Moore, and good luck to you!

The Editor.

Navy 'Undress' Parade

Accident Turns the Heroic Gobs Into Nudist Colony

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

All aboard! boys and girls. Clamber right up that gangplank there and make it speedy. We're bound for the Panama Canal on the United States Destroyer Satterlee. See those big numbers on the side. You can read 'em a mile away. That's our number, 190. But for the love of Mike be careful of those depth bomb racks on the stern. The World War is just over and those things are loaded with T. N. T.!

All of which brings us to Frank Edward Hanke, who is taking a bath in the destroyer's washroom as our story opens. Frank resides at 401 East 156th street, New York, N. Y., now. But don't forget that bath. You see Frank was taking that bath when he had the most exciting adventure of his entire career! Here goes the story gang-plank.

Frank has been through many narrow squeaks. But his closest shave took place during the joint maneuvers of the Atlantic and the Pacific fleets in 1920. Destroyers then still carried full war loads of explosives in the depth charge "submarine killers" that hung in racks on the stern of the ship.

The fleets were passing through the Panama Canal. At the Gatun Locks Frank's destroyer—the Satterlee—had already entered the locks and was waiting for the U. S. S. Mason to follow her in. The docks were lined with beauteous damsels come from far and near to get a glimpse of Uncle Sam's natty sailors and Frank was primping up in the washroom with three or four other gobs, getting ready to give the girls a treat.

Frank glanced through the washroom window at the Mason, which was flying through the water at a fast clip. He stopped scraping himself for a second and pondered absently as to what would happen if the Mason accidentally collided with the depth bombs on the stern. As he pondered and watched, the commander of the Mason shut his ship into reverse.

But Frank, to his horror, saw that the reverse lever or something had gone wrong and the ship was still coming on. A collision was certain!

In those depth bombs, Frank knew, was enough T. N. T. to blow up the locks and everything in them. He let out a yell and pointed. His shipmates in the washroom saw the danger, too, and with one common accord they shot out on deck.

Well, sir, Frank says he doesn't think the explosion itself would have caused half the commotion his little sailor nudist colony did when they appeared on deck. The locks are very narrow at that place and it was just as though they had strolled naked on a ballroom floor in the middle of a dance.

He and his pals, though, weren't thinking of that. They had no idea the sensation they were causing the ladies of the Canal Zone. Their idea and the idea of any self-respecting sailor was to avert by any means possible a catastrophe.

The soapy nudists rushed for the stern of the ship, ready if necessary to place their gleaming bodies in between the oncoming ship and the T. N. T.

He never gave it a thought in the moment before the collision but as the prow of the Mason ascended at the last moment and instead of hitting the depth charges smashed into the heavy four-gun mount to one side he turned and gave them a piece of his mind for laughing at a tense moment like that!

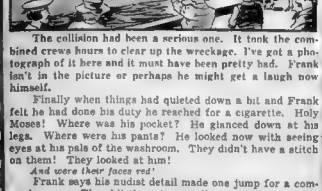
Then he and his pals went to work at a barked command from an officer. And they worked hard. On the docks the laughing went on. Frank looked around for the cause of it. He couldn't see anything to laugh at in a collision that might have taken the lives of hundreds of people and he went right on working and growling at the strange sense of humor of these Panama Janes.



The collision had been a serious one. It took the combined crews hours to clear up the wreckage. I've got a photograph of it here and it must have been pretty bad. Frank isn't in the picture or perhaps he might get a laugh now himself.

Finally when things had quieted down a bit and Frank felt he had done his duty he reached for a cigarette. Holy Moses! Where was his pocket? He glanced down at his legs. Where were his pants? He looked now with seeing eyes at his pals of the washroom. They didn't have a stitch on them! They looked at him!

Frank says his nudist detail made one jump for a companion way. They hit the entrance all at once and jammed. Hysterical feminine laughter rang in their ears once more, and they tumbled head over heels below.

Well, sir, Frank and his pals came in for a lot of kidding after that, but he says he didn't notice any gobs kidding him at the time of the accident. Officers and men were all so excited at what they knew might happen that they didn't even notice any sailors working without benefit of clothes.

And, come to think of it, I guess most of us would forget all about clothes if we saw tons of steel speeding toward enough T. N. T. to undress the whole navy in one blast!

And that's the end of our trip today, boys and girls. While we're on the subject, though, how about that adventure of yours?

Tomorrow's broadcast from this same column has a swell yarn. Be sure to listen in at this same time, and until then keep your shirt on!

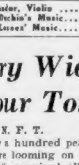
Revive "Merry Widow" On Radio Hour Tonight

By N. F. T.

Shades of 1907 and many a hundred performances on stage and screen since that year, are looming on coast to coast radio dials with "The Merry Widow" promised (WBZ) as a full hour broadcasting feature between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight.

It's rythmic waltz melody and romantic story trend puts "The Merry Widow" in the well known perennial favorite category.

Program players have cast the tenoring young James Melton as the dashing Prince Danilo of the piece, Josephine Antoine, striking Metropolitan opera soprano sings the role of Sonia, glamorous widow of the title. Instrumental music from the Franz Lehar gem will toll forth under the baton direction of Al Goodman. Adaptation for the air waves is by John Barclay.



Eleanor Powell, who sings, dances and acts on the weekly "Fanfare" program (WNAC) will branch out into mimicry with impersonations of prominent stage and screen folk. She may be heard in this added capacity beginning with the broadcast of this evening from 8:00 to 8:20 p. m.

Miss Powell plans to give her impersonations instead of portraying a scene from the play, "The Lake," as arranged previously. Her imitation of Katharine Hepburn in a recent broadcast won a spirited response from listeners and the substitution was decided upon as a result.

• • •

Art Kassel has been getting a lot of fan mail since he joined the Mills Brothers in the Elgin Campus Revue programs.

Many of the letter writers want to know the name of the theme song which he used to introduce the broadcasts (WEEI) every Friday at 10:30 p. m.

Art has decided to play the tune in its entirety as part of the program scheduled for tonight. The name of the number is "Doodle Doo Doo" and the author is—Art Kassel.

• • •

Freddie Bartholomew, English child actor who won fame by his screen characterization of "David Copperfield," will head a trio of noted guest stars who will appear on Dick Powell's "Hollywood Hotel" program (WNAC) this evening, from 8:30 to 10:00.

Best Bets Tonight

8:00 p. m.—WEEI—Jessica Dragonette; Santa and Rettenberg pianos duo; Rosario Bourdon's Orchestra; Grantland Rice to name 1935 All-American team.

9:00 p. m.—WNAC—Freddie Rich's music; with Eleanor Powell and the Tavern Singers.

9:00 p. m.—WBZ—The Beauty Box Theater presents Josephine Antoine and John Barclay in "The Merry Widow."

"Lucky Friday, 13th"—For Used Car Buyers
YOUR LUCKY DAY FRIDAY 13th
It's the predicament that auto dealers are in today of putting back in circulation their surplus supply of cars taken in trade altogether too fast for this season of the year.

TAX-SUPPORTED "AGITATORS"

THE time is rapidly approaching when teachers who "agitate" in our universities and public schools will be dismissed.

Americans send their children to school and their young men and young women to the universities to STUDY, not to be TAUGHT red shirt, black shirt or brown shirt dogmas, all of which in this country aim at the destruction of our liberties, our form of government and the substitution of the dictatorship of some brutal regime.

The revelations in the Hearst papers of a COMMUNIST CONSPIRACY to organize the teachers in the Evander Childs High School make of pertinent value an editorial in the "Yale Alumni Weekly" of an article headed "Unrest at the Universities."

Speaking of the rights of teachers, it says:

"It is not the individual's opinions as a scholar that are at issue. It is his PUBLIC APPEARANCE IN ACTION AS AN AGITATOR."

THE classroom is a "public appearance." To teach any one of the alien-minded isms that are chiseling into our very political and economic vitals is a matter that is the concern of the ruling authorities of the universities and schools and of EVERY AMERICAN.

President James Rowland Angell of Yale has also these pertinent remarks on the same subject in the same issue of the "Alumni News":

"A teacher may conceivably exploit his connection with an institution to gain a hearing for views which his own unaided advocacy could never command . . . After all, the university is a creator of the society which supports it and IT IS SET TO SERVE THE DEEPEST AND MOST ENDURING INTERESTS OF THAT SOCIETY."

All of which reduces itself to this:

If a teacher wants to teach COMMUNISM, or any other PERSONAL ISM, in our tax-supported and tax-exempt public institutions, let him resign and hire a hall.

NOW THE CITY AND THE STATE ARE ACTUALLY PAYING CERTAIN TEACHERS TO TELL THEIR PUPILS HOW TO OVERTHROW THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE CITY, STATE AND COUNTRY THAT SUPPORT THEM!

An American Movement For Americans

INTEREST in establishment of an anti-Communism school in Philadelphia as the first step in a nation-wide campaign by the Jesuits to awaken America to the menace of Soviet intrigue transcends religious lines.

The program of the Third Internationale, through which Soviet Russia plots and works, aims principally at the destruction of the United States government and the interment of all its freedom for the individual.

Existence of the Catholic Church, either here in America or in any other country, is naturally hateful to the Communists whose ruling philosophy is "There is no God. The grave is man's goal."

But equally hateful to the Communists is the continuance of Protestant churches and Jewish synagogues. They, too, stand in the way of Red domination of the world.

Perpetuation of any institution—Christian or Hebrew—which teaches that man as an individual exists for any purpose save servitude to the all-powerful state is anathema to the disciples of Lenin and the followers of Stalin.

Hence the position of the Jesuit priest in the eyes of the Soviet differs in no way from that of the Protestant minister or the Jewish rabbi.

JESUITS are men of vast learning and long experience. With priests of their order in every corner of the world they are in a position to KNOW the menace of Communism. Born of this knowledge is the warning so well expressed by the Rev. T. J. Coughlin, S. J.:

"If our freedom and democracy mean anything to us in America, now is the time to defend them. A little later—and it may be too late."

Truly the movement instituted in Philadelphia extends far beyond the sphere of a special creed into the realm of the entire nation—the greatest on the face of the earth—whose constitutional liberty and justice are openly defiled and admittedly menaced by the godless of Moscow.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

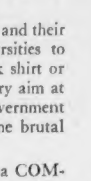
That's a mighty important question these days when Life is handing out so many of them. Bank accounts busted. Jobs lost. Homes gone. Loved ones dying of need or desperation. And away go the pride and hope of a lifetime! So what? What's the Proper Procedure for a Broken Heart?



Elsie Robinson

I'm thinking particularly of people over 35. Before that, life carries you along by its own momentum. You're hurt. You cry it out—rave. But the story is still new, and you're curious. Filled with a natural egotism, too, and self-confidence. You don't wait to stop.

But by 35 you're apt to be fed up. You've had a good many bad breaks. You've grown cautious—lazy, too. What's the use of going on? Is life worth it? You wonder. And life volunteers no answers—offers no lures—as it did ten years before. It's up to you now. What's your answer?

HOW'LL YOU TAKE IT?

Here you are, on a spot. How'll you take it? Being human and a little weary, you'll want to take it lying down—as comfortably as possible. Or play safe. Find the nearest exit. Maybe dig in, where things can't get at you any more.

All of which is easily managed. It's not hard to duck life—if one really desires to do so. Send instinct oneself against further pain. One can stop feeling quite easily, and avoid situations which might force one to feel.

Hurt people have a tremendous advantage. They can do endless cruel, lazy, unfair and cowardly things without loss of face. They can wrap themselves in an armor of indifference, or martyrdom, or grief, which no one will dare dent.

FOLK WHO PLAY SAFE

Look at the people who play safe—what price do they pay? They pay a big price, though often they're unaware of it. Or refuse to admit it. They pay with CURIOSITY. They pay with ENTHUSIASM. They pay with AMBITION . . . and SYMPATHY . . . and HUMAN COMPANIONSHIP. They pay heaviest of all —with the CAPACITY FOR FURTHER FEELING, FURTHER SUFFERING.

Nine out of ten people over 40 solve the problem in the same way—they decide to play safe. They repress further curiosity, frown upon enthusiasm and carefully shun all situations which may necessitate FEELING.

THEY MISS REAL LIFE

Even those who make a racket of their grief, by forever parading it, are inwardly valueless. Life stopped for them the moment of the Big 'Quake. They no longer have the slightest interest in anyone else's misfortune —and, by their parade, they protect themselves from any further anguish.

Having come through their Golgotha, they are forever more immune from the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune." And the world considers them "smart."

But are they? Not what death could be worse than the loss of FEELING—what suicide more shameful than this wilful destruction of one's own curiosity and enthusiasm—this deliberate dodging of all life's challenges and adventures, however hazardous?

As for me, whatever the price, I'm determined to take all life has to offer, even though the others boo me . . . to wonder and weep, gamble and laugh, burn and risk till the curtain goes down . . . AND DIE WITH MY BOOTS ON!

The Crepe Hanger

Look pleasant, please, Mr. Taxpayer!

But how can you when facing that candid camera, that gloomy photographer and that ghoulish-looking bird?

Together they will get you coming and going—the Tax Collector coming and the black vulture going.

You won't recognize your picture when it is taken—you will be so "touched" and "retouched."

But look as pleasant as you can or the next thing you know he will be taking your fingerprints.

If the police were only as vigilant in keeping track of criminals as the Tax Collector is in keeping track of taxpayers, delinquent and otherwise, there would be less crime.

House of Rothschild

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

A yacht is bearing to Palestine the bodies of the late Baron Edmond de Rothschild and his wife, where, according to the last will and testament of the Baron, they will find their final resting place. Baron Edmond died last year after having reigned for two decades as ruler of the "House of the Red Shield."

Edwin C. Hill

He was as much a philanthropist as he was a banker, and Jews the world over knew him as "the father of Jewish colonization in Palestine." So fervent was he in the establishment of his people in Palestine that his last wish was that his remains, and those of the Baroness, be buried in the Holy Land.

Baron Edmond became the elective head of the banking house in 1917 on the death in England of Lord Rothschild. Edmond's title was Austrian. He married, in 1905, Hermaine Hainpen, daughter of a French financier, whose grandfather had been a rival of the Rothschilds during the reign of Napoleon III.

WED OUTSIDE FAMILY

The Rothschilds ever have been opposed to marriages outside of the family, but Edmond's choice was accepted and in due time he came to be master of the gloomy club-like edifice in the Rue St. Florentine.

An unimposing pile, there is no sign on the door to mark it, no reason to give it a second look until you are told that there stands the House of Rothschild. It was Baron Edmond's lot to bring together the Rothschilds who had been separated by the World War, with one branch serving the Allies, and the Viennese Rothschilds serving the army and the treasury of the Hapsburgs.

He amassed probably the richest collection of drawings and etchings in the world, which he willed to the Louvre Museum in Paris.

"A family that works together is invincible." The Rothschild dynasty was built on that phrase and has continued in power by living up to it in letter and spirit. Mayer Anselm Bauer never tired repeating it to his ten children, but especially to his five sons, as they grew up on Frankfort on Main in the last quarter of the 18th century.

INSPIRED BY CHESS

Old Mayer Anselm, himself, the son of a merchant, was the founder of the house which was to take its name from the sign of the "Red Shield" which he placed over his money-lender's shop in the Rhenish city. The story is told that Mayer Bauer got his real start while watching a chess game in which the landgrave, William, later to be Elector of Hesse, was getting the worst of it. In the course of the play the ruler turned to Mayer and asked:

"Sufficiently well, your serene highness," was the reply, "to induce me, were the game mine, to castle on the king's side." William did so, won and decided that Mayer was a pretty shrewd citizen.

In any event, he deposited with the pawnbroker of Frankfort the $20,000,000 which England had paid for the hire of the Hessian soldiers for service in the war against the American colonists. And when William was forced to flee his domain for a time, the first of the Rothschilds buried the treasure, later to return it intact, save for interest charges.

The third of the five brothers of Frankfort, by name Nathan, is recognized as the financial genius of the family. His mission was to to Manchester and London, where he amazed the bankers by his daring and ultra-modern methods.

ENRICHED BY WATERLOO

He employed carrier pigeons and the fastest boats for the transactions of his business and when the French Revolution came, he staked all on the ultimate defeat of Napoleon and thereby profited enormously after Waterloo.

A flourishing bunch were the Rothschilds. They pioneered the railroads of France and Austria, and as early as 1836, Lionel, Nathan's son, was writing to Metternich that steamships would cross the Atlantic and bring the two worlds immeasurably closer.

The first Jew to sit in the House of Lords was Nathan's grandson, another Lionel who, in 1885, was raised to the peerage by Gladstone. The family that has stuck together under its red shield with the motto, "Concord, Integrity, Industry and Fidelity," has gone on to the invincibility which Mayer Anselm Bauer predicted for it.

The Price of Speed

The picture shows the wreckage of one of the automobiles in a triple collision in Lexington street, Waltham. In it Walter A. Colson of Arlington met his death.

Ice and speed almost always spell death. To this more than 300 of the nearly 800 Massachusetts highway fatalities of the past year bear witness.

Study this picture. Imagine, if you can, the force necessary to hurl a man through a windshield as Colson was thrown. Then ask yourself this question:

IS SPEED WORTH THE PRICE?

New York Day by Day -:- O. O. McIntyre

New York, Dec. 13—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when a fellow could build up an estate for his family? Skid-on-a-banana-peel name: Yasha Bunchuk. And the name of the English author Warwick Deeping suggests an armored knight guarding the bridge over a castle moat.

O. O. McIntyre

Stuffed animation: Buff Cobb. Everything is "mid-night blue" in men's evening dress. Anna May Wong always pivots the sidewalk crowds. A stiff sudden breeze and away would go Joe Weber. How Dave Stamper can pick 'em up and lay 'em down. Crack muffler Wearer, Whitney Warren.

Top in salty ribaldry: Peter Arno. The town No. 1 Laugh: A. Robin, the clown in "Jumbo." Add fellows who look all right in derbies: Roland Young, Major Bowes and Billy Seeman. The editor writers rarely see: Hilton Oursler. They're certainly stuffing George McManus with lunches and dinners.

Democracy, 1935: The Marquis de Falaise de la Coudray receiving a commoner's greeting of "Hi Hank." Few ladies look so distinguished as the white-haired Mrs. Walter P. Chrysler. Or express the fragile beauty of Clare Booth Brokaw. Whatever became of money?

Those twins, Lady Furness and Gloria Vanderbilt, look as though they had just "shot the works" in a beauty parlor. You know, glossy. Title for a travesty on success articles: "Worthless Advice of a Failure." Girls holding up General Hugh Johnson for autographs. Something about a soldier!

They buried Ralph Barton's brother Homer the other day. Long a player of small roles, he was one of those dependable actors who never achieved a spectacular role. But attained a contentment rare among stage folk.

All his New York years he lived in a typical theatrical hotel hard-by the Palace but was little interested in the capers of Broadway. He was one of the town's most indefatigable explorers.

There was scarcely an inch of the island he had not been over afoot. He knew it from the Battery to Spuyten Duyvil as few men of his time.

The so-called "Algonquin crowd" recently came in for this pot-shot fired by Time. In speaking of two volumes of the collected work of F. P. Adams the magazine observed: ". . . his association with the tight little group of egocentric characters who think they do New York's journalistic thinking."

Think is high in understatement. The boys know they do.

Harry Lehr was first of the dandies publicly to boast using perfume. He would exploit some new scent by dashing it plentifully on his cuffed kerchief and flirt it under the noses of ladies at dinner parties. Many thought it an additional gesture of his chronic boredom, but it was a publicity stroke for a Parisian parfumier. Incidentally, there are now 32 different perfumes, toilet waters and colognes designed especially for men.

Zoe Beckley is farthest north among the clock atheists. She abhors them. To her every clock is a horological horror. She once fled a London hotel in the middle of a foggy night because of the hourly booming of Big Ben.

In her Connecticut home the only time-piece she permits is in the kitchen. When traveling the first thing she does in reaching her hotel room is to order the clock, if any, removed.

Edgar Wallace or Wallace Eddinger—I'm always mixing them. Anyway one or the other as the story went, always carried a biscuit-sized hunting case watch that closed with a snap. The tick could be heard a foot away. It was a 21st birthday present and without it the owner simply felt lost. And could not sleep.

U. S. Defense Menaced

By James T. Williams, Jr.

At the coming session of Congress the Common Defense will be the target for one of the most insidious attacks ever made under any administration.

This attack is now being organized by political Reds, Pinks and Yellows through whom alien Communists and their domestic tools and dupes are striking in an attempt "to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown" in the American system.

CRITICAL TIME

Unfortunately, the House Committee on Military Affairs is afflicted with a chairman whom the President of the United States was forced to rebuke publicly for giving world-wide publicity to some of the most vital secrets involving the Common Defense.

This Chairman, Mr. McSwain, has done his best since he became chairman of this committee to discredit the military establishment, destroy public confidence in the United States Military Academy and incite public suspicion of the commissioned strength of the Regular Army.

SAPPING EXPEDITION

The session of Congress which convenes next January will be a most critical time for this country because the sapping expedition against the Common Defense is well organized, well subsidized and the sappers will attempt to divert public attention from their diabolical purpose by shouting "economy."

This sapping expedition against the Common Defense which will attempt to stampede the Congress at the next session has adopted the following legislative objectives:

First, To prevent the Regular Army from obtaining the increased enlisted strength voted at the last session by refusing to appropriate the money necessary to train and equip an army of 165,000 men.

Second, To bring about the abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps by refusing to authorize the 2000 additional officers necessary to train the R. O. T. C.

Third, To prevent the carrying out of the recommendations of the Baker Committee by refusing to appropriate the money necessary to equip the Army Air Corps with the additional modern planes which are absolutely essential.

Fourth, To prevent the motorizing and mechanizing of the Army in its various branches by refusing to appropriate for these purposes.

A SUPREME TEST

If Mr. Roosevelt will hold fast to what has been gained and will refuse to surrender to the sappers who are opposing the upbuilding of the army, public sentiment will support him.

It will be a supreme test of the courage and sincerity of the President in standing in the field of national defense.

If he wavers at this point he will lose far more among loyal Americans than his administration can ever gain by currying favor with the political Reds, Pinks and Yellows that are waging guerilla warfare against our Defenders with the Colors on land and sea and in the air.

Text For Today: "Boast not thyself of tomorrow for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."—Proverbs 27:1. Suggested by the Rev. Arthur D. Stroud, First Methodist Episcopal Church, Boston.
